EX LIBRIS

AS you read this book remember that those who advertise here have made it possible to produce the book. They have taken advertising space as a business proposition and it is the duty of Rutgers men to see that the investment is profitable to them.

You can trade as economically in New Brunswick as you can in New York and there are agents in town for all standard sporting goods. You pay exactly the same prices as those asked by the manufacturers and in many cases save shipping expenses.

Be fair, and help those who have helped you.

RUTGERS COLLEGE

EXAMINATIONS FOR ADMISSION:

Friday and Saturday, June 2 and 3, 1916

Monday to Wednesday, Sept. 18 to 20, 1916

COURSES OF STUDY

THE College offers courses leading to the degrees of A. B., Litt. B. and B. Sc. Under the last are included a general science course, and technical science courses in Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Chemistry, Ceramics, Agriculture, and Biology. The A. B., the Litt. B., and the general science courses permit large freedom in the choice of electives and provide liberal preparatory training for the professions of law, medicine, theology, teaching, and journalism. The technical science courses are designed to prepare for industrial positions of leadership, except the course in Biology, which aims to give a liberal training in the sciences, and is especially appropriate as a preliminary to the study of medicine. Short courses, not leading to a degree, are offered in Ceramics and in Agriculture

MICHELIN

UNIVERSAL TREAD

¶ The New Michelin Universal Tread has behind it Michelin's eighty-four years' experience in manufacturing rubber, and Michelin's twenty-one years' experience in making and selling pneumatic tires—both exclusive advantages that are at once the envy and the admiration of the tire world.

¶ The motorist who believes in using quality goods but who has never tried Michelin Tires is urgently requested to give this new tire a fair test on his car in competition with other makes. The company is willing to have all motorists decide their future tire equipment by the results of such tests.

About Synol Liquid Soap

Synol is not a mere toilet soap. It is a soap for the toilet, but it is a great deal more. Its four principal qualities are well described in these four words:

C l e a n s i n g

A n t i s e p t i c

D e o d o r a n t

D i s i n f e c t a n t

Synol Soap was inspired by leading physicians who wanted something they could use in baths; something that they could rely upon to thoroughly cleanse and to sterilize their skin.

Now doctors buy Synol Soap for their own personal use and a discriminating public has found it best for cleansing the skin and scalp.

Take a Synol bath and get that clean feeling.

Foreword

It has been the purpose of the editors of the 1917 Scarlet Letter to make this book somewhat historical in nature. Realizing that it appears on the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the college, we have endeavored to introduce a touch of the past together with those events which have occurred during the current year, and which truly represent the life on the campus today.

For the undergraduates we have tried to make the following pages reflect their various activities, to furnish a record to which they may refer in later years, and be a reminder of the formation of lasting friendships.

We have conscientiously striven to present to you a truly Rutgers book; we trust that our efforts have not been in vain

1916 Senior Class History

HISTORY as it is worded
 By a poor, cold, unskilled pen
 Is different from that as recorded
 By the actual lives of the men
 Whose actions and deeds have afforded
 The theme of the historian.
 And so if this tale should seem idle to you,

And its interest barren and dead,
 Remember it is but a short review
 Of the four long years that the class passed through;
 And much must be left unsaid;
 And much that is said is perhaps untrue,
 For the past unveiling discloses to view,
 Written in characters bold,
 A number of facts and deeds and acts
 That in words cannot be told.
 So if in aught the tale falls short,
 Or fails to attain its aim,
 Or its verses halt, pass by the fault;
 Be not too quick with your blame.
 When the theme is great, 'tis a trick of fate
 That the poet be young and green.
 So be not severe, but lend your ear
 To the swan-song of nineteen-sixteen.

'Twas four years ago, in the fall of the year
 Of nineteen-twelve, that we entered here;
 And first a solemn oath we took
 To be true and upright in word and look,
 To hold the name of Rutgers dear,
 To love her, to honor her, and revere,
 And to publish her honor both far and near,
 Then we signed our names in the book.
 That night we began our long career;
 We met at the gym and gave our cheer,
 And the echoes, resounding vibrant and clear
 Through every nook of the town,
 Like the trump of doom smote each Sophomore's ear,

As he paused in his haste and listened to hear,
 Or crouched in the darkness and trembled with fear;
 And then we hunted them down.
 We hunted them down in lean wolf packs,
 We smashed their defense with our fierce attacks,
 And we ripped the shirts off their cowering backs.
 We rolled them down from the railroad-bank,
 Then pee-rated home with unbroken rank,
 And the upper-classmen, outspoken and frank
 In their praises of the rush,
 Said that the fight we put up that night
 Showed in the class a latent might,
 Which sooner or later would come to light;
 And predicted great things of us.

And what at that time they predicted,
 Of a band that was new and unskilled,
 Has not been one whit contradicted,
 But rather completely fulfilled.
 Four years have now passed since that ominous night.
 We've been weighed in the balance since then;
 We've been measured and tested by Time in his flight.
 He has tried us and proven us—MEN.
 Like men we've fulfilled expectations,
 Like men we have worked and made good;
 (Of course we all have limitations
 And perhaps we've not done all we could),
 But we fear not the world's condemnation,
 For we've lived as true Rutgers sons should.

We have stood by the college and grown with the class,
 We have turned out good men for all teams,
 We have boned, crammed, and studied and managed to pass,
 We have drilled and have written out themes.
 We have treaded the sunshiny pathway of youth
 With a step that was carefree and gay;
 We have plunged into science and delved after truth,
 And we've laughed many hours away.

We have worked a little and shirked a little,
 Much as each class has done;
 We have lived our spell and lived it well;
 Now the time has come to pass on.
 And so we pass, as each former class,
 For the march of time ne'er stays,
 And the chapel bell is tolling the knell
 Of our undergraduate days.
 The race is run; the play is done,
 The curtain descends on the stage,
 And the hand of time puts an end to the rhyme,
 Scrawling FINIS across the page.

So here the poet must lay down his pen,
 Though his poem is scarcely begun;
 For Time alone can fashion the end
 Of the tale he has thus far spun.
 And Time alone can disclose to view
 The future years we must yet pass through,
 And the doughty deeds we have yet to do;
 Nor can this ever be done
 While one of us live with the strength to give
 The best that in him is
 Of power for good and true manhood,
 For the college he claims as his.

In Memoriam

WALLACE WARREN KLOEPFEL

It was with a feeling of great sadness that the Class of 1916 bore the loss of a faithful and worthy member on Thursday, March 2, 1916. His sudden passing into the life beyond was more sorrowful by the fact that he was within a few months of the completion of his college career, and that he was soon to enter into the larger field of his life work.

Wallace Warren Kloepfel had proved himself a most diligent student, a genuine friend, and a most worthy classmate. That his ideals were of the highest, that his personal life was without blemish, and that his spirit was truly noble no one will doubt. Having surrendered himself to the unselfish service of his fellowmen and his Maker, he made that sacrifice the dominant part of his whole college life. Conscious of a divine mission, he pursued his work persistently to the end. He never failed to set the highest standards for himself and then endeavored to measure up to them to the fullest of his ability. All who knew Wallace could not fail to admire his cheerfulness and enduring helpfulness. As a friend he was as true and loyal as a brother. As a student he was trusted by teacher and classmate alike. He participated in student activities and took an active part in promoting the best student ideals.

But God in His wisdom has called him from us to his eternal reward. Let no one think that his short life was in vain. For his memory shall linger to inspire and encourage us to live the better for having witnessed his life.

SCARLET LETTER

History of the Class of 1916-17

HE light was slowly fading in the west:
 As o'er the world there drew a soothing rest.
 The last faint gleam of sunset lingered there,
 The treetops towered nobly to their crest;

Amid the shades of the descending sun
 There gradually gathered, one by one,
 As if some twilight phantoms lingered still,
 To gambol in the shadows, seeking fun.

From near and far across the campus green
 New shadows passed that Queens had never seen;
 Another class about to enter there,
 The class of nineteen hundred seventeen.

By count, one hundred fifty-eight there came,
 The largest class e'er pledged to Rutgers' fame,
 To learn traditions Alma Mater bears;
 Determined, too, to win for her new fame.

They quickly took their place among the life
 In college, showing merit in the strife
 That marks the early period spent there,
 Those days when campus struggles keen are rife.

In all the rushes well they took their share
 Of victories, well won; nor did they fear
 The sting that comes when men meet but defeat,
 Which they withstood and stalwartly did bear.

The Freshman year passed quickly on its way;
 However cherished, one can not stay
 The unceasing passage of the fateful hand
 That marks the fleeting minutes of the day.

Then came the Sophomore year, and with it brought
 New liberty with many trials wrought;
 But proud of having gained ascendancy,
 From every rush a victory was brought.

The task of hazing, though an arduous one,
 Was mixed with seriousness as well as fun,
 To show new Freshmen they must learn to be True men, as soon as college life's begun.

And Juniors next! How quickly time has flown!
 Three years of life in college now are known
 As history, and soon will have become Tradition, dear to every Rutgers son.

Nor have achievements been of any small degree;
 In things athletic great ability
 Came from the ranks of nineteen seventeen,
 That often to the teams brought victory.

Our men have shone on football field and track;
 When Rutgers called not one did e'er hold back
 From answering to the call of Alma Mater,
 And showing all that courage ne'er did lack.

But not athletics and in class alone
 Was all the class' prowess to be shown,
 For social life and ingenuity
 Were not by bigger things to be o'ergrown.

The Prom! There never was more pretty sight
 Than swaying, lovely maids—like moths of night—
 That hovered, balanced, glided, here and there,
 To strains that floated as on beams of light.

Thus, with the passing of the Junior year,
 There ends a time that's filled with naught but cheer;
 Three years of goodly fellowship we find;
 And still another dawning bright and clear.

So, to the orient we turn our gaze,
 To see the rising year dispel the maze
 Of deeds undone, of friendships to be won,
 Ere yet is marked the end of college days.

HISTORIAN.

DAVID MILTON ABT

"Dave"

Running first on the list, as he does in the quarter;
Running the Targum as he orter;
With many a smile and nary a frown,
You can't find a one to run him down.

DAVID GREENLIE ACKERMAN

"Dave"

In Dr. Scott's class this young student
Thought he would be modest and prudent,
So he marked his work zero,
Which brought down on our hero
A reproach that showed that he shouldn't.

LAUREN SINCLAIR

ARCHIBALD

"Archie"

Here's Archie, an Aggie as wise as an owl;
Don't you think he resembles that elegant fowl?
Like the bird, so they say,
He turns night into day
With the aid of a lamp and a wet
Turkish towel.

HERBERT WALDEMAR BOES

"Herb"

Some speed to this very versatile boy;
It's hard to find such another;
When not running out on the cinder track
He runs for some office or other.

PAUL MITCHELL BOWEN
"Bowic"

Naow here's a boy whom yew all knaow;
A pitcher like him you can't name us;
He manages football and class track
And continues to make Shiloh famous.

ROBERT OSWALD BOWLBY
"Ossie" "Bob"

The center is all a-shiver,
For home he begins to pine,
And both husky tackles flivver
When Os Bowlby hits the line.

CHARLES EDWARD
BLOODGOOD

"Charlie"

A man of honor and an honor man,
Who studies away as hard as he can;
And when Prohibition he has to defend Makes speeches for hours and hours on end.

WINFRED COLBY BLOOM

"Gus"

A model youth with no earthly cares,
Who never chips and never swears;
But as an officer of the Y. M. C. A.
Saves souls among us every day.

LAWRENCE FULTON BRAINE
"Larry"

Since old maids would make the best mothers,
 (At least, so some people tell),
 As a Y. M. C. A. missionary,
 Wouldn't Larry be swell!

MORRIS BREITKOPF
"Breity"

He's surely a second Fritz Kreisler,
 So in getting his college degree,
 He's second to none in fiddling around
 While doing his chemistry.

FRANK HAVILAND BROOME
"Broomy"

Some say that he wants to live up to his name,
 Or it may be from economy.
 But they almost "mop"ped Broome
 when he first came down
 With that brush on his physiognomy.

JOSEPH LESLIE CHAMBERS
"Joe"

He's got a quiet, dove-like voice,
 But that's not strange, you know,
 Because, just like a pigeon,
 A bird of a tumbler is Joe.

LOUIS APGAR COOLEY

"Red"

With hands in his pockets, and pipe in his mouth,
Brightest head in the class so 'twould seem;
At dancing a bear,
At fussing he's there!
And as cheer leader surely supreme.

PERCY EUGENE CUNNIUS

"Cuney"

Over the river and cross the bridge,
Back and forth to college he goes,
A pretty good classical fellow,
As each of the classicals knows.

DONALD EDWIN DAVIS

"Don"

"Like father like son" is a certain old rule
That doesn't always pass,
For imagine Don a professor;
By George, I pity the class.

MAX DRILL

"Max"

Max has seated himself to bone,
When up the stairway comes a yell,
"Drill's wanted on the telephone."
(And now comes the part that you mustn't tell),
It's a call from someone all alone,
And the lessons can go to—tomorrow.

WILLIS PIERRE DURUZ
"Pete"

This sturdy young fellow Duruz,
 He surely wears magic shoes,
 For on his feet
 He's very fleet;
 You'd think him quite a centi"pete".

HERMAN EISENBERG
"Eisy"

Why ever he took the Aggie course
 I can't see at all, can you?
 'Cause in almost every class
 He tells the profs a thing or two.

RUDOLPH ELMER
"Dutch"

As happy as the day is long,
 No trouble him can touch;
 All the time with that smile,
 A man truly worth while,
 Is our own class president, "Dutch."

HAROLD WILLIS FAINT
"Harold"

The first one through an analysis
 Is always young Harold Faint;
 Finds two hours ample
 To go through a sample,
 Finding percentages where they ain't.

HAROLD IRVING FAWCETT

"Spick"

This gentleman whom they call
 "Spick,"
 Though a poet is still pretty slick
 At swinging one club
 Without making it rub
 With the other, and that's quite a trick.

LAWRENCE HENRY FRENCH

"Frenchy"

He plugs away so hard at night,
 Driving knowledge in his bean,
 That we don't see very much of him,
 Although there's much to be seen.

EARL COURTNEY GASKILL

"Earl"

He looks so guileless and innocent,
 But you know still waters run deep,
 And if someone some day
 Might hear what he'd say,
 He'd better not talk in his sleep.

ISIDOR BIP GLUCKSMAN

"Bip"

Bip Glucksman, meekest of the meek,
 The quietest man 'neath the sun,
 A strawberry huckster, a steam calliope,
 A brass band all rolled into one.

MANTON LEWIS GRAFF

"Manton"

Now rings the bell that tolls the long hours' end;
 All swiftly leave, but one a trifle slow
 Hears their rude cries as out their way they wend,
 "Stick 'im!" "Leggo that leg!"
 "Leggo!"

BENJAMIN BERNARDUS
HAGEMAN*"Hagy"*

Hagy, the silver-tongued orator,
 Who talks a blue streak now and then,
 But it's some time between;
 It seems months intervene
 Before you can hear him again.

HERBERT DEFREEST HAMM

"Herb"

Here's Herb Hamm from Troy,
 He's a pretty good boy
 And a grind, though you wouldn't suspect it,
 For that's only so 'cause he loves
 Greek, you know,
 And all things (save one) with it connected.

FREDERICK BENJAMIN
HEITKAMP*"Big Ben" "Heity"*

His middle name is busy, and believe me you'd be dizzy
 If you ever worked like Fred, our edin-chief;
 On the side he takes the cash
 For McCormick's beans and hash,
 And in tennis makes opponents come to grief.

WILBUR COPELY HERBERT
"Cope"

In tones of perfect rapture
 He'll say adoringly
 About his very latest crush,
 "She's some dancer, kid, believe me."

ALFRED MERVIN HICKMAN
"Hick"

A general sci man is our Hick,
 Yet an engineer ought he to be,
 To build that tunnel from north to south
 And call it the "Underground Railway."

ALFRED GUSTAVE HEWELL
"Hewel"

Hewel went to N. Y. U.
 Before ever coming here,
 But thought better late than never
 And now he's our star engineer.

HARRY BRITTON HOLCOMBE
"Harry"

As fine a man as you want to see,
 Is our "Aggie" classmate, Harry B
 (The B stands for Britton,
 And take it from me,
 It was hard to solve the mystery.)

ALBERT WILLIAM HOLZMANN
"Holzy"

He's every inch a soldier,
 And our country need never fear
 If our cadet corps
 Were led into war
 By Albert, the little dear.

ARTHUR FRED HOPE
"Freddy"

He knows the name of each girl you meet,
 And he never makes a mistake.
 If he calls this a lie,
 Here's his own pet reply.
 He can go—fall into the lake.

HARRY LATIMER JANEWAY
"Harry"

O, thou immortal Sapphic bard,
 With brighter poetic ray
 Than Shelley, Byron, Ginsberg or Keats,
 Made famous in a day.

JOHN WILLIAM JOHNSON
"Johnny"

The bulwark of the bowling team,
 The ball's a bullet with his steam;
 To be an M. D. is his dream,
 But as a biolog he's a scream.

JEROME KAHN
"Kanz" "Kubla"

Although he looks fairly happy,
 He's really quite full of woe,
 For gee, no matter how hard he may try,
 He can't get a drag with R. O.

HARRY RAMPEY KLEIN
"Kleiny"

At "learning's fair and honored shrine"
 Is this youth named Harry Klein,
 Who some day hopes to be
 A great and prosperous E. E.

HERBERT CLARENCE KOEHLER
"Bo"

The thickest man in the class is Bo;
 He's certainly slowest of the slow;
 He's sure to get stuck,
 And except for good luck,
 How he'll ever get through I don't know.

WALTER FRED KROEMMEL-BEIN
"Krummy"

An ardent prohibitionist
 Is that staunch young fellow Krummy;
 But his meaning's not clear
 When he shouts, "Down with beer."
 For look at the size of his tummy.

JOEL LEE LAREW
"Larry"

Larew, you know, commutes;
Each day for the Pennsy he scoots.
I can't see for my part
Where he finds time for art,
But just look at his pictures; they're beauts.

ROY FRANCIS LAYTON
"Roy" "Cheese"

Layton, speed king from the Bronx,
You can see his smoke afar,
Holding tight between his teeth
A great, long, black cigar.

MARVIN LEEDS

"Marv" "Ickie" "Minka"
With that corn cob pipe
And that systematic air,
Take it from me,
Our Marv is there.

MAXIMILIAN LEVY
"Tub" "Mex"

With all of them Mex has one big drag,
So for lessons he don't give a hoot;
He's in right with R. O.,
And with Johnny, you know,
And he's surely great friends with the Lieut.

BENJAMIN SAMUEL LIPSON
"Ben"

Lipson, another poetic guy,
Who for love and the ladies does always sigh;
Though he dresses with care
To appear debonair,
He looked best when he wore that black eye.

CLIFTON HENRY LUSTER
"Lus" "Bullneck"

The pride and joy of the engineers
Is husky, apple-cheeked Luster;
In history a shark
(About thirty's his mark),
And in football a crashing line buster.

JOHN BROOMFIELD MADDOCK
"John"

He never appears to worry
Whether or not he'll pass,
But though he's stuck in most everything,
Sticks right along with the class.

EARL LANSING MARTENIS
"Earl"

They say that pie makes a person stout,
And that's surely the reason why
Martenis is so dreadfully stout;
For him his lessons are pie.

ROBERT VAN EMBURG
MARTIN

"Bob"

Bob Martin has more college spirit
Than many another can boast,
And when it comes to cheer leading
He's got them all tied to the post.

FLOYD MEHRHOF

"Hub"

It's merely a statement of fact,
Not at all to be classed among jokes,
That the reason they call Mehrhof
"Hub"
Is because he so seldom speaks.

ALAN BERTRAM MILLER

"A"

Serious minded and sedate,
Who'll never vainly trifle
With the worthy ambition
To escape a condition,
He sometimes studies—a trifle.

CLIFFORD PIERSON OSBORNE

"Doc Tecius"

Clif Osborne, a future divine,
Who in all his classes does shine;
A wonder in Greek—
Reels it off like a streak;
Gee, I wish that his marks were mine.

GUSTAVE PATZ

"Gus"

Good old Gus is sure some worker,
Goes at everything with a vim,
But like a tobacco chewer,
Life's just one big plug for him.

GEORGE AUGUST PERPENTE

"Perp"

Perp will never give up the ship,
But always keeps on tryin';
In running for office he's tied with Boes,
And Boes is tied with Bryan.

ALFRED LESLIE PFEIL

"Les"

Pfeil, the phlegmatic, whom nothing can phase,
A man quite settled in all of his ways,
With a passion for quiet,
Makes study his diet,
And thus spends his nights and his days.

JOHN LAWRENCE PITT

"Larry"

It's one of life's dark mysteries,
Ominous and sinister,
When a boy from Atlantic City
Studies to be a minister.

JOHN KINGSLEY POWELL
"King"

King Powell, Pride of Metuchen,
And class president Sophomore year,
But who spoilt the banquet
For all those who drank it,
By putting a ban upon beer.

CHRISTOPHER SUTTON
ROBINSON
"Robbie"

Robbie's the best-hearted boy in the world;
He'd give you the last cent he had,
And he did it once, too,
For some man no one knew,
But it left him more sorry than glad.

ANDREW WILLIAM ROY "Andy"

Here's Corporal Roy,
He's surely some boy,
And also some athlete, you bet;
He'd have captained the team—
Now this is no dream—
If he hadn't been stuck in Qualitative Analysis.

KARL HENRY RUH, JR.
"Karl"

The girls are sure to look around
As by them he does pass,
The Chesterfieldian Karl Ruh,
Beau Brummel of the class.

FRANCIS JOSEPH SCARR

"Fannie"

A shining gridiron star
Is that fleet young quarterback Scarr;
Just leave it to Fannie,
With judgment most canny,
To find where the weakest spots are.

SYDNEY SEIDLER

"Syd"

Syd Seidler, a man of resource,
With the gym team he's there on the horse;
The reason's quite clear,
He practiced a year,
While taking a Xenophon course.

EDWIN ARTHUR SEIDMAN

"Eddie"

Eddie Seidman wrote these rhymes
With such apparent ease
That his thoughts must come as quickly
As his hands go o'er the keys.

HERBERT WALTER SEIDMAN

"Herb"

He makes more noise than all the rest,
With his big gass drum strapped to his vest,
He pounds the thing with mighty flows;
How the "army" stands it no one knows.

WALTER HAMILTON SEWARD
 You'd never think him an athlete;
 At 105 he tips the beam,
 But yet all the same
 He played a great game
 At right guard on the class football team.

BENJAMIN SHANEFIELD
"Benny"
 A pretty good fellow is Benny,
 But still he's a puzzle to many.
 In classes he tries to get ahead
 In a way by which some of us are led
 To believe that he hasn't any.

ANSON FOWLER SHERMAN
"Abe"

He's determined to be a Phi Beta,
 As the General Scis sometimes will,
 And after two years of Winants
 Moved over to Holy Hill.

LANSING PETER SHIELD
"Lanse"

Here's Shield, as good a biologist
 As most anybody could wish,
 Who explores the liver for kidneys
 And calls a whale a fish.

HARRY SPITZER

"Spitz"

A happy-go-lucky fellow,
 Who's far removed from gloom,
 And who's earned quite a rep as a card shark
 Down in the commuters' room.

FREDERICK SUMMERILL

"Bop" "Freddy"

He came here with armor of innocence,
 Sir Galahad's heart wasn't calmer,
 But nevertheless,
 We have to confess,
 They've put some dents in his armor.

ROBERT GERALD TEST

"Tic"

They say that Tessie got all fussed up,
 When a maiden so pretty and chic
 Kept on teasin' and teasin'
 Just to find out the reason
 Why on earth they all called him
 "Tic."

LAWRENCE DORLAND
THOMPSON*"Larry"*

The only one left of the famous four Who got "pinched" way back in the days of yore;
 Thought the Aggies too tame,
 And a Biolog became;
 A good fellow right down to the core.

JAMES WALLACE THOMPSON
"Wop"

A student of romance languages,
 And that's why they call him
"Wop,"
 And who loved his French so very much
 That two years in the class he did stop.

WILLIAM PHILLIPS THORP, JR.
"Phil"

Such feelings of pity were Thorp's,
 When in lab he gazed at the corpse
 Of a cat that was dead,
 That it went to his head,
 And he went without luncheon, 'tis said.

LOUIS TRIMNELL, JR.
"Looie"

A sound of heavenly harmony
 Comes from the room within;
 Hark to the colorful moving tones,
 Like wails and sobs, and moans and groans;
 It's Looie playing his violin.

IRVING RUSSELL TROLL
"Irv" "Jig"

From zeros he never does suffer,
 'Cause he's sure one colossal bluffer;
 Does it time after time,
 And it's really a crime,
 But the worst is profs let it get by 'em.

FREDERIC VOORHEES

"Fred"

A rising young artist is Freddie,
For he draws with a hand true and steady.

His work is so good,
I'm quite sure he could
Draw better than Gibson—Hey,
Eddie!

HAROLD EHLER WETTYEN

"Wetch"

A track man of note is old Wetch,
And this is no mere fancy sketch.

How'er fast they go,
They're bound to look slow
As he comes "dashing" by in the stretch.

WILLIAM WHYNMAN

"Whyny"

What would a Junior meeting be
But a mass of hopeless confusion
Without Whyny there
To shout from his chair,
"It's against the constitution."

WILLIAM STANLEY
WOODWARD*"Si"*

Last is Woody, who smashes the pins,
Where others leave off he only begins;

He appears to be a quiet guy
'Round college, and that's why they call him "Si,"

But a devil at home to our best belief, (And now we finish, with a sigh of relief.)

History of the Class of 1918

JUST two years ago we had yet to experience the thrills and excitement of our first rush, and we remember looking forward to it, probably with a little anxiety as to just how we were supposed to act, and whether we would kill or be killed in the battles to follow. What little anxiety we had was soon subdued as we gathered our forces in front of the gymnasium the night of the proc rush. We saw that we had quite a formidable band of "huskies," and that the Sophs would have to use siege guns, poisonous gases, and repeating rifles, if they wanted to conquer such a host of savages. All we wanted now was for someone to start the ball rolling. This was soon done by a Junior, who read to us from a sheet of paper that is called a "proc." What a vocabulary those Sophs must have had to call us such names. We did not know what they all meant, but we thought that they must have been pretty bad by the tone of voice in which they were read to us.

By the time we had heard all that was written on the proc, we were fairly boiling over with eagerness to get at the Sophs and see just what they could do to defend what they had written about us. We resolved that if there was any murdering to be done, we would be the murderers. So off we started, and to the tune of:

Ricka racka, ricka racka, ricka racka reen,
Rah, rah, Rutgers; Rutgers, Eighteen;

we repulsed every attack of the Sophomores and drove them back with heavy losses. As a result of this victory some of the Sophs took such an aversion to the rushes that in our frequent "after chapel" skirmishes they could be seen running around back of the chapel to get out of sight, or hurrying off the campus as if they had an important engagement which they "just happened to remember." Thus, all through our Freshman year our efforts were crowned with many victories and but few defeats.

This year began, as does the second year for most all Sophomore classes, with a battle against odds; but the odds were much greater than they have ever been before. Nevertheless, our class made up in spirit what we lacked in numbers, and by the ferocity with which we fought one would have thought that the advance guard of the German army had arrived and was making a drive through New Brunswick. At last, however, the odds proved to be too great and we were repulsed.

The following morning we were forced to give way to the Freshmen again, not on account of lack of spirit or grit, but on account of superior numbers.

In the rope rush, although a fair amount of equality was supposed to have been made between the two classes, we started out under the difficulty of not being allowed to have our football men entered, while the Freshman squad was there in full force. Nevertheless, after the battle was over and the smoke had cleared away, only one of our number was found "all bound around with a woolen string."

In the tug-of-war things were about even until "Sandy" and most of the football team had dug their heels in the turf of Neilson Field and pulled with the Freshmen; then, of course, "Sandy's team" won.

Just before our Christmas vacation, the Freshmen thought that it was about time they were putting up their procs, so with the greatest of secrecy they went about preparing for the event. They thought that by putting them up about 3 A. M. they would not be molested. We do not doubt that their theory was all right, but somewhere they made a mistake in their calculations, and the ever alert class of Nineteen Eighteen got wind of their plans. Well, almost enough has been said about this event; the procs were torn down almost as soon as they were put up, and the poor little disappointed Freshmen had to wend their weary way homeward with their expectations soaring amongst the stars.

Our last rush of this year was the hat rush. In this rush Nineteen Eighteen was again victorious, overcoming the odds by their fine team work. The hat, resting on the head of our president, seemed to the Freshmen near, and yet so far away. As fast as they tried to climb over towards the coveted prize, they were hurled back to where they started from, and when time was called the hat had yet to feel the touch of a Freshman.

On election day the honors were divided between the two classes, the Freshmen capturing the football game in the morning and the Sophomores winning the baseball game in the afternoon.

Nineteen Eighteen is well represented in 'varsity athletics. We had four men on the football team, who doubtlessly did much to bring about such a successful season as we experienced last fall. We also had men on the baseball, the track, the basketball, the gymnasium, and the swimming teams.

Not only was Nineteen Eighteen represented in college athletics, but also in the realm of social activity, for on the tenth of last December we gave our Sophomore Hop, which, by non-prejudiced people, was said to be one of the best dances ever held in the Ballentine Gymnasium.

Now, as our Sophomore year is nearing a close, we can look back and review the events of the past with entire satisfaction. We can feel proud of the fact that we are members of a class so well represented in the various activities of the college, and that each and every member of the class has been always ready to uphold the honor of the class and the dignity of the college.

Hoorah, rip rah,
Rip rah reen,
Bow won Rutgers
Double '19.

History of the Class of 1919

FOR months past youth all over the country had heard and spoken the name of Rutgers with devotion and interest and had looked forward to the day when they could count themselves part and parcel of their chosen Alma Mater. The day came, and on September 22, 1915, one hundred and eighty-six men gathered around the standard of the Freshman Class, already proud in the strength of a victory won over the overbearing Sophomores on the preceding night, ready and fit for another trial of strength in the cane rush, which proved to be another feather in the now well decorated cap of the Class of 1919.

Thus began the remarkable history of our beloved class, by far the most promising that ever filed into the chapel and raised their lusty young voices to the vault of heaven in stentorious praise born of confidence and strength. Although we so strikingly proved our great superiority over the feeble Sophs, we not only pride ourselves in overwhelming physical strength, but also in strength of personality and character, and above all else we count ourselves true gentlemen. In short, we are the embodiment of all that is great, wise, and good. If, by chance, you ask for more than mere words we triumphantly point to the gridiron, where we had seven men on the 'varsity squad, and where the heart of the scrub team was purely Freshman; look again to the field sports and if you inquire you will learn that the Fall Track Meet was a sweeping victory for our class; neither stop here, go to the Ballentine pool and each afternoon you will find there Freshmen diligently training to bring swimming honors to the Alma Mater; lift the lid of inside college activities and again you find the Freshmen worthily engaged on the Glee and Mandolin Clubs, on the debating teams and in the various other activities. Oh no, we boast not in vain words, but, as the Sophomores knew us in our first strength, so shall the college know us in our genuine worth.

Our Class Banquet was held the Monday evening following the mid-years in Newark, and, that they might escape the ridicule of the upper classes, the Sophs learned our date and contrived to hold theirs on the same night, that they might have some excuse for their inability, thus openly confessed, to get our worthy president. True it was that we, too, failed to get their leader, but it was simply from the fact that we revolted at the idea of feeding a "sophomoric" mouth at our table.

It is far beyond the weak power of the historian's pen to fittingly portray the sterling strength of old 1919. In sooth, our history needs no telling, for our superiority has already become of such great moment that it will be passed along from class to class, held as the high prize and goal of each successive Freshman Class to which to lift its vain hopes and aspirations.

And so, as we have begun our college career on the banks of the old Raritan, we will strive in all faith and confidence to continue it, constantly putting forth our best efforts to uphold the honor and forward the interests of our Alma Mater, that, in parting, we may look back upon a triumphant career, a shining example to all future Freshmen.

SPRINGFIELD GAME

CAPTAIN "TAL" TALLMAN

MANAGER "CHARLIE" REED

Football

SINCE the first intercollegiate football game in the United States was played between Princeton and Rutgers in 1869, it seems only natural that football should be our most popular activity. This game was played on the "Commons"—directly opposite our present athletic field—and incidentally, Rutgers won from Princeton by a score of 42-16.

In those days each team was composed of twenty players. They were called "runners," "fielders" and "keepers." In 1876 the same style of game was played, a Football Association having been formed in the meanwhile. It was the next year, 1877, that the Football and Baseball Associations were combined and known as the Rutgers Athletic Association. Radical changes in the game were also made at this time. The old American college rules were discarded by all the leading universities in the country and the Rugby Union game was established. This game resembles our present mode of play, the team being composed of but eleven players instead of the original twenty. Among our opponents at that time were Princeton, Yale, Columbia, University of Pennsylvania, Lafayette and Stevens.

Interclass football also received much attention and games were played every fall for the college championship.

In 1882 we note that Rutgers ranked fifth among the American college teams. As other colleges began to be represented in the football world, games with them were arranged and our schedules gradually increased to include Williams, Lehigh, United States Naval Academy, New York University, United States Military Academy, Swarthmore and Wesleyan.

Although we have always maintained our prestige in football, our development during the last five years has been remarkable. Through the efforts of our alumni we have been fortunate in securing the services of one of the best coaches in the country. Results are much in evidence, and with a wealth of material we again rank among the leading college teams of the United States.

Football Season of 1915

HE football season of 1915 was undoubtedly the most successful and the most important in the history of the development of the sport at Rutgers. The same hard work and earnest co-operation by all which was so apparent in 1914, with the advantage of another year's experience, resulted in great improvement in the men, which was manifested by the higher scores and much better team work. It is interesting to note that Rutgers was the highest scoring eleven in the East during the past season; that Bracher was the greatest ground gainer, carrying the ball over 1,000 yards, and that Talman was the highest point scorer.

One significant thing of the past season which contributed largely to the team's success was the establishment of a summer training camp at Eatontown, N. J. As early as July 6th training was begun and candidates flocked to camp as readily as if it were a part of their vacation. The Freshman material was taken care of by Coach George Foster Sanford himself. Here they soon became acquainted with "Sandy's" methods, and by the time that the veterans of 1914 appeared they were in shape to put up a strenuous resistance to any team. Coach Gargen was present during the early weeks of the season and with his help and that of Toohey, "Sandy" was able to present the team in mid-season form for the Princeton game.

The opening contest took place with Albright on September 25th, at Neilson Field. The game took the form of a workout, but the contest revealed to a certain extent the real development of the team. The game was won by straight football with a score of 53-0.

The following Saturday, October 2nd, practically the whole college journeyed to Princeton—to see the Scarlet win. The chances for victory seemed splendid and all were enthusiastic—yea, confident. But Princeton's great speed and ability to take advantage of an opening, resulting in a long run by Tibbott during the first few moments of play and a field goal by the same man somewhat later, made the score 10-0, and so it remained. Our team showed to advantage in steady ground gaining and line plunging at all times, but was unable to overcome the early lead of Princeton.

Our next game was with R. P. I. This year Rensselaer was unable to stand up against our attack. The game was enlivened by long runs for touchdowns and the Scarlet's great machine was shown in all modes of attack. The visitors were not allowed to tally and the record score of 96-0 was rolled up.

October 16th brought Muhlenberg to New Brunswick, and under the leadership of "Red" Fleming, of Washington and Jefferson fame, they put up a stiff fight and presented an interesting contest. Our attack, however, was well planned and the final score of 21-0 plainly showed our superior strength.

With the team in its best possible shape after a lapse of a week, the Scarlet journeyed to Newark on October 30th to meet the strong Springfield Y. M. C. A. aggregation. The game was played at the Federal League Park and a most spectacular contest was witnessed by a large crowd. Our advantage in weight and line plunging told in the end and we came out victorious by a score of 44-13.

Another rest was given the team on November 6th. The following Saturday they were called upon to face Hamilton Fish's All-Star team, composed of former college stars, at the Polo Grounds in New York. The veterans' keen knowledge of the game held us scoreless in the first quarter, but our weeks of training and team work could not be downed. The final score was 28-7.

The annual Stevens game was next and, as usual, the game was played at Hoboken. A large crowd made its appearance, but the game was rather disappointing, especially to us. When the final whistle was blown only 39 points were shown to our credit and, worst of all, Stevens had scored a field goal for 3 points. This was the first time for three years that Stevens had scored upon us and the victory, such as it was, far from satisfied us.

On Thanksgiving Day the final game of the season was played with N. Y. U. at Ohio Field. The mighty score of 70-0 was rolled up, Captain Talman kicking eight goals after touchdowns.

It is difficult to say to whom the most praise is due for our most successful season. It has been the unceasing co-operation of the alumni that has made the season possible. Coach Sanford has certainly won his share of appreciation. The faithful work of his assistant, Toohey, also has been a great factor in our success. The "scrubs," those who have worked the whole season and those who have done the most in getting the team into condition, deserve great credit. To all these factors and to many more, assisted at all times by the splendid spirit shown by the undergraduate body, do we attribute the season's success. Although one defeat has been marked against us this year, this has certainly been Rutgers' most successful season. The outlook for next year is especially bright, and under the leadership of Captain-elect Scarr, whose generalship this year is to be commended, we may confidently expect another successful season.

Next year's schedule shows many changes in our opponents. Games with Brown, Washington and Lee, University of West Virginia, Colby, Washington and Jefferson, Holy Cross, Villanova and Albright have been arranged. The Stevens, N. Y. U., and Princeton games do not appear on the list. Manager Bowen has been working hard for a good schedule and some fine games are assured.

REPRESENTED by two strong teams last season, Rutgers was again able to maintain her supremacy at our national game. The 'varsity itself developed into one of the hardest hitting and best fielding combinations among our eastern colleges. Under the leadership of Captain Twing, hits materialized at the critical moments and a stone-wall defense was always in evidence. Although a poor start was made, the team soon struck its stride and played in mid-season form. Victories over N. Y. U., Swarthmore, N. Y. U., Dartmouth, Union, and Hamilton followed in succession. The final game of the season was played with Stevens at New Brunswick on June 14th. This was commencement day, and our victory of 5-2 added much to the spirit of the occasion.

Through the efforts of Mr. L. F. Loree, the Scarlet was also represented by a second team, called the "Reserves," during the past season. The Reserves have certainly won some appreciation for their work and their season may justly be called a successful one. The team accomplished in a great measure its purpose, that of bringing the college into close touch with the different high school and preparatory schools of the nearby states.

History of Baseball at Rutgers

IN looking over the history of baseball at Rutgers we find that the Scarlet has boasted of a nine for many years. As far back as 1871 the Scarlet Letter of that year gives the "University Nine," with the players. The game then seems to have been practically the same as it is played today. Class baseball also took up a large part of the athletic interests of college life and each class was represented by a ball team. In 1876 the Baseball Association was formed. This body took charge of all baseball matters. In 1877 we find the Baseball and Football Associations being merged into one, which was called the Rutgers Athletic Association. This was the beginning of the present Athletic Association. Much interest was shown in baseball even in these days and winning teams were usually turned out. In 1880, for some unknown reason, Rutgers was not represented by a 'Varsity nine, although class baseball still continued. The following year, in 1881, the team was revived, and from that time on we have always had nines which have brought credit to the college. Colleges and universities such as Columbia, Stevens, and Lafayette were among our first opponents. On February 9th, 1884, the Intercollegiate Baseball League was organized by delegates from Lafayette, Stevens, and Rutgers, and league games between these institutions arranged. During the later years the schedules have been greatly increased and, owing to the enthusiasm and interest shown by all in our national game, Rutgers has always been able to compete with college teams of any calibre.

AS in the case of other sports at Rutgers, interclass track contests are other events were added, such as three-legged races, potato races and standing broad jump, 440-yard dash, and the baseball throw. In 1882 contested included the 100-yard dash, high jump, one-mile walk, of ancient origin. In 1878 the events for which college honors were the shot put. It was not until 1883 that we first won a place in the intercollegiate games at Manhattan Polo Grounds, on May 27th, 1882. Interest in track work began to increase and soon both outdoor and indoor interclass meets were held. In 1893 we won our first dual intercollegiate meet from Stevens by a score of 51½-20½. Later we hear of our relay team winning at the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival and also from Swarthmore. On March 22nd, 1895, the First Annual Indoor Meet was held in the new gymnasium, which had recently been completed. These meets were continued for three years. Boxing, fencing, and wrestling were also arranged as additional events during these meets. In 1897 we were represented at both the Pennsylvania Relays and at the Mott Haven Games. Interclass meets introduced much rivalry and soon material began to develop rapidly. Dual meets were won from other colleges with much regularity and an organized team was established. From the very beginning Rutgers has always been represented by winning teams, but during the last ten years the track seasons have been especially successful.

Track Season, 1915

OOD, hard, conscientious work on the part of the team last spring enabled Rutgers to turn out one of the best track teams that has ever represented the Scarlet. Three clean-cut victories are credited to the team, with one tie and but one defeat. During the season college records in four events were shattered and equaled in two others. The quarter-mile record was broken by two-fifths of a second by Coleman, '16. Talman, '17, broke both the shot put record and the discus throw record. Nash, '16, also broke the discus throw record. Butler, '18, easily broke the high jump record. Bowles, '16, tied the hundred-yard dash record of ten seconds and Segur, '16, tied the high hurdles record of sixteen seconds.

In the dual meets, Stevens and N. Y. U. proved easy victories. The meet with Swarthmore finally resulted in a tie score. The one defeat was at the hands of Lafayette, by a score of 57-55. However, the team took ample revenge at the Middle States Conference on May 15th and succeeded in winning first place over Lafayette.

The team loses Captain Campbell and Ashman, '15, by graduation this year, but the rest of last year's team is intact. The interclass meets have brought forward some very promising material in the Freshman class, and under Captain Segur a team will finish this year's season with practically a clean slate is certain.

VARSITY GYM TEAM 1916

Gym Season of 1916

IT was in 1895 that a gymnasium team was first organized. Of course, gymnasium practice had been going on many years previous to that time, but on March 22nd of that year the men took part in their first exhibition, the events including club swinging, tumbling and the horizontal bar. In the season of 1898 two meets were arranged between N. Y. U. and Rutgers and much enthusiasm was displayed in the team. The first contest was lost, but in the second we won our first victory, which was to be followed by many more. So much interest was shown that plenty of good material was available, and in 1900 we won all our meets. The succeeding years were also successful, Lafayette, N. Y. U., Haverford, Swarthmore, University of Pennsylvania, and Lehigh being among our opponents met and defeated. During the past few years interest in a gymnasium team seems to have waned, not only at Rutgers, but also at other institutions. This is perhaps due in part to the fact that so much enthusiasm is being shown for football and other outdoor activities. All sports have their dull periods, however, and it is only the question of a few years when gym will again claim a larger share of our interests.

Season 1916

FROM the standpoint of meets won and lost, the past gymnasium season cannot exactly be called a successful one. Hard luck seems to have hovered over us in this branch of sport during the past two years. Last year it was the losing of men by graduation which crippled the team. This year we have in part the same excuse, although the mid-year examinations certainly helped out—one man leaving college at this time and two others being unable to compete.

The first meet of the season with the Navy at Annapolis was lost by the score of $37\frac{1}{2}$ to $16\frac{1}{2}$. This was not especially disheartening, however, as no college ever expects to win from the Navy in their own gym.

Our first home meet was with the University of Pennsylvania the following week, and in a closely contested match we won by the score of 29 to 25.

On March 3rd the team journeyed to Haverford, Pa., to meet the Haverford College team. In this meet we again experienced misfortune, our bar man falling during one of his series, injuring his wrist, and we lost, the score being 34 to 20.

Crippled as we were, the final meet of the season was lost to N. Y. U. on the following evening.

All have profited by this season's experience, and since Acting Captain Minton is the only man who will not return to college next fall, there is every prospect for one of the best teams in the history of the college.

Basketball Season of 1915-16

TO the class of 1908 the credit is due for the introduction of Rutgers into the basketball world. At that time class teams had been competing for the championship of the college, but no move had been made to establish the sport as one of the intercollegiate activities. With the advent of the class of 1908, however, a fast and aggressive crop of basketball players made their appearance and won the college championship with ease.

The grade of basketball shown promised enough to warrant the game to be taken up as an intercollegiate sport and accordingly the season of 1906-07 opened with a 'Varsity team representing Rutgers. Incidentally, the class of 1908 supplied almost the entire team. From a percentage point of view, the season was not successful, but great enthusiasm for the game was manifested and the attendance at the games and the interest displayed warranted its continuance for another year.

The season of 1907-08 was an improvement over the previous year and again gratifying moral support was given the team. But with the graduation of the class of 1908 went the nucleus of the past two seasons, and as a result the material was so depleted that the sport was dropped from the 'Varsity calendar and resumed as a class affair. This condition obtained until 1913, when increased growth of the college supplied a sufficient number of players of 'Varsity calibre to return to the intercollegiate basis.

The season of 1913-14 was supported by class contributions and was not officially recognized by the Athletic Association. A schedule of five games was arranged and with Dave Armstrong as coach the team won three and lost two, but as the game was in the stage of experiment, this was satisfactory enough to cause basketball to be adopted by the Athletic Association.

The ensuing season was disastrous, the last game of the schedule against Muhlenberg supplying the only victory, but preparations were made for another season. The fall of 1915, however, found the Athletic Association without funds to appropriate for basketball and it seemed as though it was about to drop back to the class team standing again. But the crisis was bridged over by the liberal support of the student body and interested alumni, and with a revival of interest the season of 1915-16 started.

That basketball has come back to stay as a 'Varsity sport is manifest by the attendance and the enthusiasm shown during our past season. Owing to the work of Coach Frank Hill and the untiring efforts of both the 'Varsity and scrub teams, a well-balanced aggregation resulted. Although but four of the eight games are credited to the team as victories, the scores of some of the other games show how closely they were contested.

The first game of the season was with the Alumni, which was won by a scant margin, due to the fact that all the new men were given a trial. In the second game we met the strong N. Y. U. team and, while Rutgers lost, the game indicated that we had the material for a winning team. This fact was brought out by the following game with Albright, whom we overwhelmed by a score of 50-7. The Seton Hall game followed, and in a fast and well-played contest we were again victorious by a score of 40-20.

The University of Pittsburgh was next on the schedule, and a lightning fast game ensued. At times the Pennsylvanians were completely baffled by our rapid passing, but our men could not seem to find the basket. Our opponents, however, made every basket count, and the final whistle showed the score 34-24 in their favor.

The Union Seminary game was won with comparative ease. Muhlenberg and C. C. N. Y., however, proved more worthy opponents and we were forced to end our season with a defeat, being nosed out by C. C. N. Y. by one point.

The team loses Seiler, Rockafeller, Nash, Browning and Captain Coleman this year by graduation, but with the scrubs as a nucleus, Captain-elect Wittpenn expects to turn out even a more successful five next season.

Swimming Team, 1916

THE generosity of Mrs. Robert F. Ballantine in presenting to the college funds for the erection of a large modern swimming pool placed Rutgers in a position to enter intercollegiate swimming. James H. Reilly of the New York Athletic Club was engaged as instructor in swimming in the spring of 1915. He immediately started work on a team for the following winter. Great interest was taken by all classes and a class meet held before the close of the term showed considerable promising talent. The entering class of 1919 furnished much good material and work was started early in the fall. Another interclass meet won by the Freshmen created much enthusiasm. Hard work on the part of a large squad brought about marvelous improvements and by the time of the first meet with Perth Amboy Y. M. C. A., Coach Reilly had a very creditable, well balanced team that won easily over their strong opponents. The next meet with Swarthmore, another easy victory at 40-28, was held during the Junior Week and was a novelty to the visitors that created much enthusiasm. The Freshman team lost to Princeton Freshmen, 20-32, after a hard fight in a strange pool. A meet scheduled with Syracuse was still to be held when this issue went to press. No small part of the credit for the success of the season was due to Coach "Jim" Reilly, who gave his best to develop the team.

During the past season the sport was not conducted under the management of the Athletic Association, but was supported by the meets and exhibitions held in the pool. The great success of the team and the enthusiasm shown by the student body augurs well for the future of swimming at Rutgers, and with a well appointed pool, plenty of material and an excellent coach, the sport seems to have found a permanent place.

Class of 1917 Junior Prom

The Junior Prom this year was one of the most successful ever held at Rutgers. The attendance was very large, which only added to the merriment and high spirits of the dancers. The decorations were decidedly novel and harmonized beautifully. The color scheme was a graceful blending of white, light blue and light pink, draped artistically from the overhead beams and the running track. There were no booths, but in place of these a line of columns was erected from the floor to the track. These columns were decorated in accordance with the general color scheme. The moon dance was probably the feature of the evening. For this dance all the lights were turned out with the exception of a large round white light, placed at one end of the gymnasium. The glow of this light upon the whirling dancers and upon the hanging decorations presented a very picturesque scene.

The general opinion was that the music furnished by McKee's Orchestra was the best that had ever been heard at any of our college dances. During the intermission, Stinson, '18, sang several solos, and led the singing of college songs.

THE regular meetings of the Y. M. C. A. on Wednesday evenings have been well attended. The Association has adopted a plan whereby an out-of-town speaker will alternate with a local speaker each week. Interesting talks have been heard from Mr. Russell of Princeton; Dr. Logan; Mr. John T. Sproul, president of the Coal and Iron National Bank of New York; Mr. Blanchard, '14; Mrs. E. T. Caverley, M. D., of Arabia; Rev. James Cantine, a missionary in Arabia; Prof. Agee; Dr. Berg; Mr. Edwin F. Hann of Philadelphia.

The Rutgers delegation at the Eaglesmere Student Conference last summer consisted of the following men: White, Conklin, Ackerman, Heitkamp, Garrett, Fink, Pfalz and Phillips. The Eaglesmere committee was able to reserve one of the most prominent cottages for the Rutgers headquarters, and the delegation made a most excellent showing in every respect. The conference was a little smaller than usual this year, with but a few more than four hundred delegates. What it lacked in size, however, was made up in quality, for in almost every case the representatives from each college were selected by popular vote.

It was the general consensus of opinion that the Rutgers stunt, given in the Auditorium during the annual celebration, was the best on the program.

The employment bureau, under the management of C. H. Reed, has been very active this year and has helped many of our self-supporting students to secure positions around town.

Several new features were introduced this year in the Freshman Handbook. It was sent out to the members of 1919 two weeks before the opening of college and thus gave the men an opportunity of becoming thoroughly familiar with the different phases of undergraduate life. The book this year is considerably larger than ever before, with 104 pages neatly bound in a flexible black cover.

The annual Freshman reception was held in the gymnasium on the evening of Wednesday, October 6th. A large crowd was on hand and enjoyed speeches by Dr. Scott, Professor Barbour, Mr. Moran (a Rhodes scholar), and a solo by Mr. Wimpenny, '19.

History

On May 6th, 1876, at a prayer meeting in Dr. Campbell's room, it was proposed that an association be formed for the purpose of promoting Christian growth and zeal in the college. Dr. Campbell was elected president and E. C. Scudder, Jr., was elected secretary.

Up until 1899, the meetings were held in the rooms of the professors, but in that year a room in Van Nest Hall was fitted up for the Association through the kindness of Mrs. Ann Van Nest Bussing. A dedicatory service was held in the new room on February 24, 1899.

The Senior Council intends to take an active interest in college life and discover ways to bring about a greater Rutgers spirit. The first meeting of the council was held on September 21st to discuss the new system of underclass rushes and Freshman privileges. At the next meeting the system was again discussed and a change advocated. It was also decided to recommend to the Junior Class that the Scarlet Letter Board be chosen from members of the Targum staff. At the meeting on November 4th the Honor System was discussed and it was decided to draw up a constitution which would include both clauses that caused so much dissent last year among the student body.

The Senior Council was organized in May, 1914. Its purpose was to act in an advisory capacity and also to furnish initiative and leadership.

TARGUM CABINET

The Targum 1915-16

AS to its main features the Targum is practically the same as last year. It will be the policy of the paper to create a more pronounced student opinion than has been manifested heretofore. Its columns are always open to communications and the Board urges that all who have anything to say regarding college activities will not hesitate to use the Targum as a means of expressing their ideas.

Appointments to the staff are to be made strictly according to merit. Every underclassman on the staff is placed under an associate editor, who observes carefully the interest and ability shown by the men. Plenty of work will be given to the Sophomores and Freshmen, so that by a process of elimination a highly efficient staff can be selected.

In order to express college opinion more fully, the editor-in-chief will have an advisory board consisting of the assistant editors, an associate editor and three members of the Senior Council. This body will act in a purely advisory capacity.

The Targum was first issued in January, 1869, and was thereafter published on the 15th of every month during the college year. It was originally a small sheet of eight pages, with no advertisements, and was mainly devoted to literary articles. The board of editors consisted of three, one being elected each term.

THE PHILOCLEAN LITERARY SOCIETY has done a great service for its members and for the college, and its influence is ever widening. Its value in developing the intellectual side of life is comparable to class room instruction and contact with one's fellows. But in addition to its service to Rutgers men, it is creating an added interest in the college among the high schools of the state through the interscholastic debating league which it has formed. Last year sixteen schools were represented in the league and enthusiasm ran high. This year it is planned to increase the number to 48 and so reach parts of the state that were not included in last year's contest.

The Philoclean Literary Society was founded in 1825 at the same time as the Peithessophian Society. Both of these organizations held a very important place in the life of the college. In the course of their development a keen rivalry sprung up between them, which resulted in many spirited literary contests. The first of a series of public debates between the two societies was held in 1874. Interest seems to have subsided somewhat in the early '90s, and finally both societies passed out of existence in 1896. A movement was set on foot in 1907 to start a literary society again and in December of that year the Philoclean was reorganized under the name of the Rutgers College Literary Society. It met with opposition at first, but soon won a firm place in the college. In June, 1909, the name was again changed to Philoclean and as such it has continued down to the present time.

The Prohibition League has been in existence at Rutgers for a number of years. Its purpose is to foster an impartial and sane study of the liquor problem among students. Each year a study class has been organized and a series of meetings has been conducted under the guidance of various professors. Meetings are held regularly for the discussion of the question by students and for the hearing of addresses by men who are versed in the subject. The local league is affiliated with the National Association, and the New York State Association. Each year a local oratorical contest has been held, the winner of which competes in the state contest. The Rutgers representatives have received third and second place in the state contests in the years 1913 and 1914, respectively.

GLEE & MANDOLIN CLUB

Rutgers Glee and Mandolin Clubs

Season 1915—1916

THE GLEE CLUB this year is under the direction of Mr. Hall, Yale '14. Thorp, '17, has charge of the Mandolin Club. The first trials for the clubs were held on October 4th. A large number turned out, the Freshmen being very well represented. The first concert of the season was given at Somerville on December 17th and was a decided success. Concerts have been arranged at East Orange, Irvington, Westfield, Freehold, Chatham, Hackettstown, Dover, Tarrytown, Plainfield, and Merchantville.

The Rutgers Glee Club began its existence in 1880 following a concert given in New Brunswick by the Princeton Glee Club. The club was organized by J. R. Verbrycke, '81; A. F. Skinner '83, and J. W. Scudder, '83. Their efforts were not crowned with success at first, but after the services of Loren Bragdon, '76, as leader, had been secured prospects began to brighten. The first concert was given at Bound Brook on January 19th, 1881, and the club was very well received there. The club appeared for the first time in New Brunswick on February 2nd, 1881. During the years 1882 and 1883 some sixty concerts were given in some of our largest cities and towns. Throughout the succeeding years the club has maintained its high standard and has certainly been a credit to Rutgers.

MILITARY drill was first established at Rutgers in 1866, simultaneously with the State College and Scientific School. The law of July 28, 1866, provides that the President may, upon the application of any college of not less than 150 students, detail an army officer to instruct the students in military science.

The first officer to be appointed was Colonel Josiah Holcomb Kellogg, Brevet Major, United States Army, who also taught engineering in the college. He was succeeded by George W. Atherton, who was professor of history, political economy, constitutional law, and was also military superintendent. In 1880 Samuel Nelson Holmes, First Lieutenant, Thirteenth United States Infantry, was appointed. Frank Loring Dodds, Second Lieutenant, Ninth United States Infantry, followed in 1882, and John Thomas Honeycutt, First Lieutenant, First United States Artillery, in 1885.

The Battalion was formally organized and uniformed in 1889 by S. E. Smiley, Second Lieutenant, Fifteenth United States Infantry. Exhibition drill, selection of the "best soldier" and in fact nearly every feature of the military course was originated by Lieutenant Smiley.

In 1891 Rutgers was extremely fortunate in obtaining John James Brerton, First Lieutenant and afterwards Major, Twenty-fourth United States Infantry, as successor to Lieutenant Smiley. Through the force and vigor of his personality he inspired the men under his instruction and so created an enthusiasm for military drill. During his administration the new gymnasium was finished, with its increased facilities for drilling.

The next instructor was George Burwell Davis, Lieutenant, Fourth United States Infantry. During a brief stay he accomplished a great deal, but was soon called away to the war, as was also Major Brerton. Captain William C. Buttler, Third United States Infantry, succeeded Lieutenant Davis, but he was shortly called to his regiment in the Philippines.

As no officer from the regular army was appointed to succeed Captain Buttler, the duties of instructor fell upon Cadet Major Laurance P. Runyon.

In 1899 Captain Quincey O'M. Gillmore was appointed to the position of military instructor. In 1903 S. E. Smiley, then Captain Fifteenth United States Infantry, returned to Rutgers as professor of military science and tactics. He has since become Major Twenty-first United States Infantry. He was succeeded in 1906 by Ralph Brewster Parrott, Captain, Twenty-seventh United States Infantry. In 1910 First Lieutenant A. E. Ahrends became commandant of the Rutgers Cadets and he was followed in 1913 by First Lieutenant A. Ellicott Brown. He was succeeded in 1914 by Lieutenant S. C. Leasure, who has reorganized the Battalion and increased the interest in military drill to a great extent.

The military department of the college is undergoing a complete reorganization so that the efficiency of the students as individuals and as a body may be raised to a higher standard than heretofore attained.

The companies are organized as follows: One company of Seniors and Juniors, one Sophomore company, and two Freshman companies. This organization will serve to stimulate rivalry among the classes and also avoid mixing up the old and new uniforms.

URING the season of 1915-16 Queens Players has undertaken to produce two plays. This innovation has been the natural outgrowth of the expanding influence of the college and of the organization. Last year the "Varsity play," "Drifting," was for the first time presented in other places than New Brunswick, and, encouraged by the success of the enterprise, Queens Players this year undertook to produce a more elaborate play. That chosen was "The Fortune Hunter," by Winchell Smith, and was produced on the evening before the Junior Prom, February 17th, in the New Brunswick Opera House. The club was fortunate in again securing the services of Miss Edna L. Barbour as coach, and to her is due the major portion of the credit for the success of the performance. It need hardly be said that "The Fortune Hunter" was heartily enjoyed by the guests of the college at the time of the Prom, and by the other members of the audience. The cast was as follows:

Almost immediately after the affairs of the mid-winter production were concluded, the trials for the cast of "The Knight of the Burning Pestle," by Beaumont and Fletcher, were held. It was especially desired by all concerned that an older drama be presented this year, in view of the tri-centennial celebration of the death of Shakespeare. The play is to be presented out of doors on the evening of June 10th, as a part of the commencement festivities. At the time of writing everything bids fair for one of the most attractive entertainments ever presented at a Rutgers commencement.

The Rutgers College Agricultural Club was organized in October, 1908, for the purpose of promoting interest in agriculture among the students of the college by discussions of topics pertaining to agriculture. The founders of the club realized the benefits to be derived from social contact in the meetings with the professors in the agricultural department and with each other. They also saw the necessity of a college man being able to get on his feet and express himself intelligently. In pursuance of these ideas the early meetings were largely conducted by the students themselves, each member taking a turn in preparing a paper of general interest. An occasional lecture was given by some member of the college faculty.

During the last seven years the student members have taken little active part in the literary program of the meetings; with a few exceptions outside speakers and members of the college faculty have addressed the club at each meeting. During the present year several prominent men from other institutions have spoken before the club, the most noteworthy being Dr. L. H. Bailey, formerly dean of agriculture at Cornell.

In connection with the activities of the club, three debates on agricultural topics have been held with teams representing the short courses. The first debate was held in 1913, the second in 1914, and the third in 1915. The short course men won the first debate but lost the following two. No debate was held this year, no challenge having been made by the short course men.

The Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Club is the outgrowth of the Electrical Engineering Club, which was founded in Rutgers in 1907. During the first two years the club consisted only of students pursuing the course of electrical engineering. In 1909 the club was reorganized to include members both of the electrical and mechanical courses. From that time on the club has enjoyed great success in all its undertakings and has been of decided advantage to its members.

The club endeavors to bring before its members the more practical side of modern engineering, as well as to give its members practice and experience in reviewing and reporting on various articles from time to time.

Unlike other technical clubs at Rutgers, the Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Club includes only the Seniors and Juniors taking the course of electrical or mechanical engineering. Meetings are held semi-monthly and the programs consist of various papers, lectures and discussions on appropriate subjects delivered by the members and men prominent in the engineering world.

The Mathematical Club was formed early in the college year of 1914-1915 by a number of the students and members of the faculty for the purpose of promoting interest in mathematical topics in the college; to provide an opportunity for the reading and discussion of papers and the presentation of problems in mathematics which fall outside the general routine of college work. Its membership is open to all those interested, and more especially to the students who are pursuing mathematics among their studies. The meetings have been marked by steadily increasing attendance, which tends to show that there is a real place for the club among the college organizations. Numerous interesting papers and talks have been given by members of the faculty and students.

Chemical Club

President.....CLIFFORD J. COLVILLE
Secretary and Treasurer.....HERBERT C. KOEHLER

The Chemical Club was organized in 1908 and since then has met with continued success and prosperity. Its growing popularity is evident from the increase in membership and the excellent audiences which attend the lectures throughout the year. The year now coming to a close can truly be called the banner year of the organization, for with a membership of fifty students and the various professors and instructors connected with the Chemistry Department, the club has displayed a marked increase in aggressiveness and power over that of all previous years.

Much of our success is due to the exceedingly interesting and attractive manner in which our lecturers present their subjects. We feel especially grateful to Dr. Wright for his talk on "Dyestuffs" and to Dr. North for his interesting lecture on "Color Photography." Other lecturers were Mr. G. B. Gifford, manager of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey; Mr. Lyndore, of the Willard Storage Battery Company; Mr. H. B. Smith, of the Edison Storage Battery Company; Mr. Durham, of the Metuchen Rubber Company, and Mr. H. D. Greenwood, chief chemist for the United States Metals Refining Company, of Chrome, N. J. All are recognized authorities on their respective subjects.

We feel greatly indebted to our faculty members for their advice and timely aid, and tender them our sincere thanks.

Civil Engineering Club

OFFICERS

President	DEAN CARTER JENKINS
Vice-President	WILLIAM HENRY BOWLES
Secretary-Treasurer	MYRON JAMES FOLENSBEE
Historian	WALTER DILTS REESE

With the organization of the Civil Engineering Club in 1908, membership was limited to members of the Senior and Junior classes who were pursuing the Civil Engineering course. This custom prevailed until June, 1915, when members of the Sophomore class, electing Civil Engineering, were made eligible to membership.

This increase in membership instilled new life and greater interest in the activities of the club, with the result that the year now closing has been a very successful one.

The list of speakers for the season included Mr. March, Rutgers '93, who gave an interesting and instructive lecture on "City Planning," and Mr. Atkinson, '85, City Engineer, whose subject was "The New Brunswick Water Supply System." Many thorough and carefully prepared talks were given by the undergraduate and faculty members.

The co-operation of the faculty members has been a source of great gratification and the success of the club has been due, in large part, to their efforts. These members are Professors Titsworth, Morris, Lendall, Stephenson and Johnson.

Biological Club

President.....J. WALLACE THOMSON, '17
Secretary and Treasurer.....FREDERICK SUMMERILL, '17

The Biology Club developed from the old Lab Club, which had its beginning in September, 1895, and had as its members those who were pursuing all the science courses. The first outgrowths from this club towards specialization were the Bacteriology and Agricultural Clubs, which were organized in September, 1908. The former may be said to be the immediate predecessor of the present Biology Club, and had an existence of two years when the latter was finally organized.

The present club dates from December 14, 1910, when the constitution was adopted and the first election was held, and since then meetings have been held fortnightly and each year several lectures have been given by Dr. Nelson and Dr. Lipman, both of whom had been responsible for, and had directly encouraged, the organization of the club.

During the past year the meetings have been held monthly and each time a lecture was given by some member of the faculty. These meetings were supplemented by a weekly seminar under the direction of Dr. Chidester, when current publications of research were read and discussed, which proved to be of great value to those pursuing the course.

Rutgers Interscholastic Debating Committee

RALPH W. VOORHEES, '16, Chairman

DR. LOUIS BEVIER RALSTON R. HANNAS, '16 CHARLES E. BLOODGOOD, '17
ADRIAN C. MINTON, '16 SHERMAN L. CONKLIN, '16 FREDERICK B. HEITKAMP, '17

Interscholastic debating has proved one of the most fruitful ways the student body has found to express its deep interest in the secondary schools of New Jersey. From small beginnings initiated by the Philoclean Literary Society, the movement has grown to large proportions under the leadership of the Interscholastic Debating Committee.

Its object has been four-fold:

- (1) To encourage the art of debating as a school activity.
- (2) To develop in our secondary schools an active competition along literary lines.
- (3) To cement more closely the bonds of union between the secondary schools of New Jersey and Rutgers College.
- (4) To promote among the secondary schools an intelligent and vital interest in questions of a civic nature.

Two years of activity have shown these ends to have been attained to a large degree. The first year saw the results of the organization of a league of sixteen schools. In enthusiasm, interest and spirit the debates surpassed all expectations. This year forty high schools have been organized into three separate leagues and a total of thirty-seven debates have been held.

There is every promise that interscholastic debating will play even a greater part in the future life of the secondary schools and that its benefits will be more and more apparent. That it has brought about a fuller understanding of the relation of the college to the secondary schools; that it has fostered a feeling of mutual helpfulness and has proved a means of promoting a larger sense of service no one can doubt. It is to be hoped that this movement so well begun shall find a permanent foothold among inter-school activities and promote in the future as it has in the past a larger and more enduring sense of mutual service.

Voices of Nature

Whisper, whisper, whisper,
Ye winds of a restless sea,
That blow o'er the boundless ocean
And speak of eternity.

Ripple, ripple, ripple,
Ye quiet waters by,
That tell of the peace of the unknown deep
And the stars that shine on high.

Twitter, twitter, twitter,
Ye birds in the leafy tree.
Come warble your song with the wind and the wave
And never depart from me.

Whisper, whisper, whisper,
Ye voices of nature sweet—
Oh, teach me to love and to cherish
The beauty that lies at my feet.

History of Rutgers College

RUTGERS COLLEGE, at New Brunswick, New Jersey, was founded as Queen's College, November 10, 1766, by royal charter. A second charter, slightly amending the first, was granted by George III through William Franklin, Governor of the Province of New Jersey, March 20, 1770. The college was called Queen's in honor of the royal consort, Charlotte. It was founded in response to a petition of the ministers and elders of the Reformed (Dutch) Church in America, but is non-sectarian, the charter only providing that the president shall be communicant member of said church. The purpose of the college is declared in the words of the charter to be "the education of youth in the learned languages, liberal and useful arts and sciences and especially in divinity." In 1825 its name was changed to Rutgers College in honor of Colonel Henry Rutgers, a distinguished citizen of New York, a devoted leader of the Reformed Church, and a generous supporter of the college. The college work did not actually begin until after the granting of the second charter in 1770. The first tutors were Frederick Frelinghuysen and John Taylor, each of whom became a colonel in the American army. For a time John Bogart was tutor in their place. For more than fifty years the college had little growth and at times its doors were closed. During this period, however, many men were graduated who became greatly distinguished in church and state. In 1809 a new site, the present beautiful campus, was secured and new erection was begun, the stately Queen's Building, for many years the only building and now the central building of the extensive college group. In 1825, after a season of inactivity, a new era of life and prosperity began and since that time the doors have never been closed and the work has constantly grown. In 1863 a department known as the Scientific School was established, and in 1864 the State of New Jersey declared the "Trustees of Rutgers College, maintaining Rutgers Scientific School," to be the State College for the Benefit of Agriculture and the Mechanic Arts, appropriate to the Land Grant Act of the United States, 1862.

The presidents have been Jacob Rutsen Hardenbergh, D. D., 1785-1790; William Linn, S. T. D. (pro tem), 1791-1794; Ira Condict, D. D., 1794-1810; John H. Livingston, S. T. D., 1810-1825; Philip Milledoler, S. T. D., 1825-1840; Abraham Bruyn Hasbrouck, LL. D., 1840-1850; Theodore Frelinghuysen, LL. D., 1850-1862; William Henry Campbell, D. D., LL. D., 1863-1881; Merrill Edwards Gates, Ph. D., LL. D., 1882-1890; Austin Scott, Ph. D., LL. D., 1891-1906; William H. S. Demarest, D. D., LL. D., 1906-

The governing body is a Board of Trustees of forty-one members. The Governor of the State of New Jersey, the Attorney General and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court are members ex-officio. The other thirty-eight members are elected by the Board itself, five of them on nomination by the Association of Alumni. There is also a Board of Visitors to the Scientific School appointed by the Governor. The corporate title of the college is "The Trustees of Rutgers College in New Jersey."

Flower-o'-love, for you
 I dream and long;
 Oh, how your glance draws up
 My tides of song!

Eager you are, and brave.
 I see you nigh;
 Ah, in your lifted face
 Centuries sigh.

A throng of swift desires,
 Crowding on me,
 Are pressing close and will Not let me be!

Oh, shall I like a moth,
 Blind to the cost,
 Be in the flame of you
 Utterly lost?

*Flower-o'-love, for you
 I dream and long;
 Oh, how your glance draws up
 My tides of song!*

History of College Farm

THE land owned by Rutgers College and reserved for the uses of the Experiment Station and of the Agricultural Department of the College is designated as the College Farm. It comprises, in all, about 305 acres, and is located partly within the limits of the City of New Brunswick and partly in the Township of North Brunswick. The distance of the college campus from the Agricultural Building at the College Farm is slightly greater than one and one-half miles.

The old portion of the College Farm, comprising in all 98.4 acres, was purchased by the trustees of the college in 1864. Soon after the purchase of the farm by the college, an area of six acres was sold to a commission representing the City Water Company, of New Brunswick, N. J. Subsequently, another tract of five acres was purchased, so that in the early seventies the area of the College Farm was 97.4 acres. In 1905 and 1906 the area of the farm was increased by the purchase of about six acres of land from the Newell estate. This area is located on Nichol Avenue and adjoins the older portion of the farm. Soon after that Prof. John C. Smock, of the class of 1862, gave to the college a tract of thirty-five acres. In the spring of 1911 the Dairy Farm was purchased from the heirs of the late George H. Cook. At the same time a tract of woodland, located between the old College Farm and the Dairy Farm, was also purchased from the Blew estate. The farm purchased from the heirs of George H. Cook comprises, in all, 95 acres, while the Blew tract contains about 35 acres. In 1915 Mr. James Neilson, of the class of 1866, gave to the college a tract of woodland comprising, in all, about 32 acres. Finally another area of five acres, formerly a part of the Blew tract, was purchased by the trustees of the college in 1915, as were also a few small parcels of land adjoining the city reservoir, bringing the total up to rather more than 305 acres.

The College Farm represents land which has been under cultivation for many years. It is probable that at least a portion of it was first cultivated in about the year 1700. It was farmed in the usual way—that is, a portion of it was kept in permanent pasture, while the rest, which was better drained, was devoted to the production of general farm crops. When the first purchase was made by the trustees in 1864, the farm contained only 49 acres of tillable land, 15.4 acres of pasture and 33 acres of uncleared land. Farm operations, under the direction of the trustees of the college, were begun in 1865. The soil was very poor, having been subjected to an exhaustive system of tillage for years. The crop of wheat in 1864 averaged only six bushels per acre. The corn was very poor; the small area in grass yielded less than one ton per acre of weedy and unsalable hay, and most of the land was entirely unproductive. The fences were down, and the land on which they had stood was marked by wide hedge rows of bushes and trees. The barns and outbuildings were old and out of repair, and the dwelling needed a new roof. The two advantages of the farm were that it offered a good field for improvement by tillage, manuring and drainage, and that it was so near the city and railroads as to be easily accessible to students and visitors.

By the end of 1874 all of the land originally purchased was under cultivation, most of the fields had been drained by means of tile drains, and the buildings and fences were put in a fairly good state of repair. Moreover, the soil had been improved and enriched by cultivation and crop rotation and the crop yields had been increased to such an extent as to allow a gross income of $4,000 per annum.

Under the direction of George H. Cook, professor of agriculture in the college, experiments with fertilizers were instituted soon after the purchase of the farm. Some of the newly introduced fertilizers, among them muriate of potash, ammoniated superphosphate of lime and others, were tried out. Crops like corn, wheat, turnips, timothy, etc., were grown extensively. A dairy herd was kept on the farm and the milk produced was retailed in the city of New Brunswick. From 1875 until 1895 comparatively little progress was made in increasing the usefulness of the farm for experimental and teaching purposes. But in 1895 Dr. E. B. Voorhees, then director of the Experiment Station and professor of agriculture in the college, established his home at the College Farm and, by arrangements with the trustees of the college and the Board of Managers of the New Jersey State Agricultural Experiment Station, made provision for utilizing the land and buildings of the College Farm for experimental work in dairy husbandry, horticulture and agronomy. Departments of Horticulture and Dairy Husbandry were established in the Experiment Station, greenhouses were erected, an apple orchard planted, and experiments were begun on the production of soiling crops. In 1898 further experiments were begun in the field of soil fertility. Provision was made then for cylinder and pot experiments, which are still being continued. In 1906 the Short Courses in Agriculture were established and the Short Course Building was erected. Other buildings, including the Stock Judging Pavilion, the Horse Barn and Poultry Houses, were erected soon after that. A forestry nursery was established in 1907 and fertilizer experiments on twentieth-acre plots were begun in 1908. A number of poultry buildings and extensive greenhouses for experimental work in floriculture were erected in 1911-12. A modern dairy barn was built at the Dairy Farm in 1913 and the dairy herd was then removed from the College Farm to the Dairy Farm on Riders Lane. The Agricultural Building, housing most of the departments of the Experiment Station and containing an auditorium, laboratories and classrooms, was completed in the fall of 1914 at a cost of $87,000. It was equipped out of an appropriation made by the State for this purpose at a cost of $25,000.

The College Farm, its buildings and equipment, are serving at present as a laboratory for students in the Long and Short Courses in Agriculture, for graduate students and for members of the Experiment Station staff. The land has been brought up to a high state of cultivation. Its roads have been developed and improved and fences have been erected. A comprehensive plan of landscape development has been prepared by Messrs. Manning and Taylor, of Boston and Cleveland, respectively. It is expected that future development will be in accordance with the plans outlined by these landscape specialists.

EXPERIMENT STATION BUILDING AT FARM

Eoënie

A wandering shepherd in the morn,
I lead my flocks through wood and thorn,
On the purple mountain side
I watch my flocks at eventide.
 You my love shall ever be,
 Love but you,
 Eoënie.

When the twilight shadows grow
In the valleys far below,
'Tis of you I dream of, far away,
Where fades the glory of the day.
 Then I pipe a song to thee,
 To my love,
 Eoënie.

My flock I lead to mountain streams,
Where the hillside violet gleams.
There the clouds float mirrored by;
Here my heart must live and die,
 For in these depths 'tis you I see,
 You, my love,
 Eoënie.
 H. P. T., '17.

Evening

Crimson lights are slowly fadin'
And the stars come one by one,
While the crickets drone so peaceful
'Cause another day is done.
And the boys are all a-settin'
And a-talking over things,
How the neighbors' crops are coming
As the days fly by on wings,
And all the time the meadow breeze
Is sending odors of the hay,
And the cotton-woods are laughin'
'Cause the leaves are all at play.
Oh, how happy to be livin'
When the days are such as these,
For your heart sings with the crickets
And a-dances with the leaves.

History of Scarlet Letter

THE SCARLET LETTER was originally published annually by the fraternities. The first number was issued in 1871 by editors chosen from the Senior undergraduates of the respective societies. It consisted mainly of a catalogue of the members of the fraternities, undergraduates and honor men. There were no illustrations unless the cuts representing the different fraternity pins could be called such.

In 1872 several comic cuts were presented for the first time and up to 1876 the literary department consisted of but one editorial, the result of the labor of the senior editor. From 1876 to 1878, besides the editorial, there were written two histories by historians chosen from the classical and scientific sections of the Senior class.

In 1878 the book was very much improved by the addition of a history of each class, and a large number of illustrations. It was not until 1885 that the preparation of the Scarlet Letter fell into the hands of the Junior class.

Program for 150th Anniversary Celebration, 1916

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 12:

- 2:00 P. M. Educational Conference in the Ballantine Gymnasium.
- 8:15 P. M. Concert.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13:

- 11:00 A. M. Commemoration Exercises in the First Reformed Church. Historical address by W. H. S. Demarest, D. D., LL. D., President of the College. Addresses by a representative of the Nation and a representative of the State. The procession will form at the Library promptly at 10:30 A. M. It is requested that academic costumes be worn.
- 1:00 P. M. Informal Luncheon for delegates and guests, in the Ballantine Gymnasium.
- 2:30 P. M. The Anniversary Pageant, at the College Farm. Scenes of note in the history of the college and the city, and symbolical representations of the various branches of learning will be presented by citizens, members of the faculty, graduates and undergraduates of the college.
- 4:30-6:00 P. M. Reception to delegates, guests and faculty at Woodlawn.
- 7:00 P. M. Delegates and guests assemble at the Library.
- 7:30 P. M. Anniversary Dinner to delegates and guests in the Ballantine Gymnasium.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14:

- 10:00 A. M. Reception of Delegates and Conferring of Degrees in the Kirkpatrick Chapel. Addresses on behalf of colleges, learned societies, etc. The procession will form at the Library at 9:30 A. M. It is requested that academic costume be worn.
- 1:00 P. M. Luncheon for delegates, guests and alumni in the Ballantine Gymnasium.
- 2:30 P. M. Alumni and Undergraduate Parade to Neilson Field.
- 3:00 P. M. Football, Rutgers versus Washington and Lee, at Neilson Field.
- 6:30 P. M. Alumni Dinner in the Ballantine Gymnasium.
- 9:00 P. M. Torchlight Parade in Costume by the Undergraduates.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 15:

- 11:00 A. M. The Anniversary Sermon in the Kirkpatrick Chapel. A service commemorating the connection between the college and the Reformed Church in America.
- 4:00 P. M. Vespers in the First Reformed Church. A service of praise and thanksgiving for the long and useful life of the college.

NOTE.—In case of rain on Friday, the Pageant will be held on Saturday at 2 P. M., preceding the game, which will be at 3:15. The luncheon will immediately follow the Reception of Delegates.

Dr. Julius Nelson

DR. JULIUS NELSON

Dr. Julius Nelson, since 1888 professor of biology and State Biologist, died of pneumonia on Tuesday, February 15, 1916, at 9:30 P. M., after an illness of but one week.

Julius Nelson was born at Copenhagen, Denmark, on March 6, 1858, and was the son of Christian and Julie Nelson. With his parents and one brother he came to Scandinavia. Wisconsin, in 1863, where everyone spoke and read Danish. He learned English on attending school. From early youth he showed an inquiring mind and devoted all his spare moments to nature study and reading. In high school he pursued natural science and was deeply interested in astronomy. He graduated in 1881 from the University of Wisconsin, receiving his M. S. degree in biology three years later. From 1886 to 1888 he was Fellow in Biology at Johns Hopkins University, receiving his Ph. D. in 1888.

Since 1888 Dr. Nelson has served as professor of biology in Rutgers College and biologist of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station. As a graduate student much of his time was devoted to a study of cytology and heredity.

His early years at the New Jersey Experiment Station were devoted to a catalogue of the vertebrates of New Jersey and the study of bovine tuberculosis and dairy bacteriology. For over twenty years he conducted an extensive study of the biology of the oyster. Recognized as one of the foremost authorities on oysters, Dr. Nelson lectured and conducted experiments for the Canadian government during portions of the summers of 1914 and 1915. He spent one summer at the Biological Laboratory of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences at Cold Spring Harbor, L. I.; one summer at the Beaufort Laboratory, Beaufort, N. C., and one summer at the Marine Laboratory of the Bahama Islands.

Dr. Nelson was broadly trained and preserved his interest in the whole field of biology. He was vice-president and advisor of the Lederle Laboratories, of New York City; a member of the National Association of Shell Fish Commissioners, the Nature Study Society, the State Science Teachers Association, the New Brunswick Scientific Society and the honorary fraternity of Phi Beta Kappa. As advisor on preparatory school biology, Dr. Nelson showed a remarkable grasp of the needs and future of biological science. He outlined and established a collegiate course in biology fitting men for medical school which is recognized as one of the best in the country. Just before his death he prepared an outline of a course in sanitary science which met with commendation from several experts.

Although a master of the Danish language and translator of a monograph written by his father, Dr. Nelson early showed remarkable skill in the use of the English language. He used the vocabulary and index method continually in his work and his lectures were marked by their clearness and accuracy. He contributed to Chandler's Encyclopedia, Bailey's Encyclopedia and similar works.

Dr. Nelson was an indefatigable worker, taking no vacations and working at the laboratory at all hours of the day and night. He prepared an outline for extension work in biology, and had almost completed the manuscript of a book on biology when it was destroyed by fire in New Jersey Hall in 1903. The shock and disappointment of this and other losses darkened a number of years, and it was only within recent years that his hopes were great enough to cause him to plan the preparation of a new book.

As a teacher and counselor of students Dr. Nelson was unusually gifted. He prepared many men for medical school, placing them in the best schools and being gratified to note that they almost invariably took high rank. No student ever came in contact with Dr. Nelson without being impressed by his kindness and interest in the welfare of all.

The members of the faculty who knew Dr. Nelson well knew that he was a profound philosopher, with marvelous ability in stating all sides of a question. The faculty members who knew him little recognized his interest in all science, his quickness to get the point of view of the other man, and his gentleness and courtesy. While his multiplicity of labors gave him little time for communion with fellow scientists, Dr. Nelson kept in close touch with the lines of progress in biological science.

A teacher and investigator might very well have refused to divide his energies and might have shunned community work. Dr. Nelson, however, served three terms as a member of the Highland Park Board of Education, and was keenly interested in the uplift of the whole community. He was an active worker in the Second Reformed Church, strongly supporting the Men's Bible Class, the Dutch Arms and the Sunday School.

Dr. Nelson was a striking example of the manner in which so many people born in another country become thoroughly American and give themselves to the upbuilding of their adopted land. He was kindly teacher and advisor to the students, able investigator to the State, active in church and community, and with the aid of his excellent wife reared six children of the highest type of moral and intellectual character.

NONSENIA

(Sentenced for life)

"Do you take this woman for your lawful wife?"
He—(rather faintly)
"yes."

The Classical

Hail to the brilliants of the class,
The only section that's sure to pass,
The honor men and the greasy grinds,
Real students here; no other kinds.

They grab off all the keys each year,
And the profs predict a great career;
And then—gee, but it's mighty queer,
The most of them starve on six hundred a year.

The Engineers

Hip! hip! all ready? then give three cheers
For that wonderful section, the Engineers.
They've got the log table stored in their head;
It takes all the room (at least so 'tis said).

They sit up till two each night to cram,
And their favorite sport is a re-exam;
So, hip! hip! all ready? then give three jeers
For the C. E.'s, the M. E.'s, and E. Engineers.

THE GENERAL SCIS

They don't know at all—but they're on their way
 And where they are going day after, today
 And F's, too, as the profs may please;
 Yes, they are the boys who take their E's,

At electing a course, those general Scis.
 They've proved they're the only clever guys
 Who never study unless they please;
 Here are the boys who take their ease,

General Scis

THE CHEMISTS

Filter, evaporate, concentrate, blast,

If there's ever a place they learn to swear,
 The Quantitate Lab, believe me, it's there.

They do such fine work in analysis
 That, though we don't call them all crooks,
 Most important of all their reagents
 Are their pencils and logarithm books.

THE BIOLOGS

The future physicians, who in physics got stuck,
 And whose favorite motto is, "We'll trust to luck."
 Dissectors, injectors, intestine inspectors,
 Of stiffs or of corpses they're all no respectors.

Those choppers and sloppers and odor concoctors,
 You bet that they're there, those incipient doctors.
 Some day they'll have patients, in droves, too, of course;
 Some folks may yet trust them to take care of a horse.

AGGIES

Oh, an Aggie's life is the life for mine,
 To feed the chickens and tend the swine,
 To drink in the sights and sounds and smells
 Of the fertile fields and the fertilized dells.

To clean up the fruit trees and clean out the stables,
 To grow lilies like onions and such vegetables,
 To study four years 'midst beauty and charm,
 And muddy your shoes walking out to the farm.

1. What book was used this term? Give color, number of pages and make of the ink.
2. Compare the text with notes given in class. No flattery will be accepted.
3. Whom do you consider a greater man, Daniel Boone or Marquis de Lafayette? Martha Washington or Geraldine Farrar?
4. What was the make of tobacco used in Penn's peace pipe? Is that why they call the State PA?
5. Give connection between Pillsbury and the Mayflower.
6. Give list of signers of Declaration of Independence. Why did they do it? How? Explain.
7. How far is it from Vicksburg to Chattanooga and who paid the fare at Harper's Ferry?
8. Describe the constitution. How does it resemble the map of Europe?
9. Where was Molly Pitcher's husband? Was he full at the time?
10. Criticise this examination.

Echoes from the "Junior"

"Isn't the gym just gorgeous?"

"I think the music is great."

"It's ten o'clock already."

"I'm glad that we didn't come late."

"Do you know Lizzie Nowcher?"

"Hasn't Os got some queen?"

"Will you look at the dress that girl's wearing?"

"I think I smell gasoline."

"Oh, that's all right, I assure you!

(Darn it! right on my sore toe!)"

"Is that Bob Nash, the athlete?"

Isn't he graceful, though?"

"I think I could one-step forever."

"I've mixed these orders somehow,

There's two names down for the next one,

It's too late to go find out now."

"For Pete's sake, Bill, have ya got a pin?"

My sock is coming down!"

"Oh, yes, I do like New Brunswick,

It's surely a great little town."

"Isn't the orchestra lovely?"

"Their name is McSwee, I think."

"Is this a waltz or a fox-trot?"

"I'm just dying for a drink."

"Have you seen Kenneth Rendall's girl?"

I can't find her anywheres!"

"She watched you dance the last one, Jake:"

"She's hiding in back of those chairs."

"Is that handsome fellow Mike Wittpenn?"

"Do you know, he thinks he can dance."

"Oh, what are shadow waltzes for?"

"it's taking too much of a chance."

"I'm crazy about old Bill Bailey."

"He certainly can sing a few."

"Isn't his voice just beautiful?"

"It's so full of spirit, too."

"I'll have a second plate, waiter;

No, I'm not bashful, not I;

(I won't eat for another week, anyhow;

Gee, the cost of lovin' is high)."

Oh, there's come a stir to Rutgers that there's never been before,
 For the papers have been saying, "We must be prepared for war!"
 We must have a mighty navy, and the army must be fine;
 The reserve must be perfection, and the militia, it must shine.
 The officers must be picked men—and so they pick out us
 To save our tottering nation if it gets into a muss;
 So you'd better black those old tan shoes, and mind what you're about,
 For the Lieut, he's going to get you

Now gone but not forgotten are those palmy days of yore
 When a sham fight in white trousers was the most we knew of war,
 When for everything that happened it was, "Blame it on the band."
 And we all got A's or B's in drill; gee, it was simply grand!
 But times have changed since "Follow me" was all the corporals knew,
 And the captains asked the sergeants, "What's the next thing that we do?"
 So you'd better buy that tic-tacs book, for there isn't any doubt
 That the Lieut, he's going to get you

If

You

CLASSICALS AT DRILL

The Mystic Messenger

Hushed are the scurrying throngs of men
 As the messenger slides through;
 They shudder and quail at his visage pale,
 And furtively whisper, "Who?"
 What looks of fright greet the envelope white
 That he hands to the trembling guy;
 "Oh, why should he thus pick on me?"
 And the angel will then reply:

"I am the sleuth, the sleuth, the sleuth:
 I hunt men without rest.
 I am sent from afar by the registrar:
 Flee, flee—for I quest, I quest."

"Oh, tremblingly count up your chapel cuts
 As I Mercury through the crowd;
 Let your looks be humble, or else you tumble:
 My look is the thundercloud.
 That promise to pay to the Y. M. C. A.
 That Targum bill that is due,
 You may dodge, you bet, but I'll get you yet,
 I or my motley crew."

"I am the sleuth, the sleuth, the sleuth:
 I hunt men without rest.
 I am sent from afar by the registrar:
 Flee, flee—for I quest, I quest."

A Little Story of Every Day Life

Conrad Shientius was seated in his study. For many hours there had he sat. For many more would he continue to sit. His essay was due, but not done. As night gathered he strove to gather his thoughts. He went to the window and looked out. The outlook was dark. Finally he staggered off to bed.

Next day he was trailed to earth by the registrar's minion and notified of his suspension. The strain was too great. His mind gave way. Sadly they carried him off to the nut hatch.

* * * * *

Lettit B. Hanged was seated in his study. He was essaying to write, but the ideas were scarcer than spectators at a gym meet. For five minutes he made shredded wheat of his pencil. Finally an idea came. Happily he went to bed.

Next day he stepped into the office and said, "Here is the string, but I lost the essay on the way over. May I have an extension of time?"

His request was granted. For an hour he wrote rapidly in the library. At last his essay was finished. One month later it was returned, marked "Original conception here—B."

MORAL.—Honesty don't get you nothing.

Leg Puller's Club

- Hipdislocator-in-Chief*.....F. C. JOHNSON
The bulldog type can never succeed,
It's the fellow with the bull;
For success it isn't push you need,
It's the fellow with the pull.
- Assistant Knee-wrencher*....."DEATHGRIP" GRAFF
What matters the envy of others
As long as the A's are there;
The means are justified by the ends
And that makes anything fair.
- High Supreme Ankle-yanker*....."SURE-PULL-IT" POST
"Of linked feetness long drawn out."

- Low-down Limb-lugger*.....HARRIS KILLE
"The tendon of H. Kille's."

Roll of Honor

- The heinous youth who asketh for next week's assignment—HARRY HOLCOMBE.
- The wretch who addresseth all ye professors, yea, verily, down to the last least lab-assistant, as "Doctor"—J. W. JOHNSON.
- The one who always studieth his lesson—JOE CHAMBERS.
- Them as marks papers for marks—JIMMIE SCARR, ANDY ROY.
- The ones with distinguished friends—FOSTER HERBEN, "Me and Edison."
- The fellows who look intelligent—WITTPENN and SEILER.
- *Blackballed from the club—SHIELD.

Twenty Years hence - The man who was "Stuck Out."

IT TAKES 400,000 CARS to carry American Fertilizers to our Farmers and Planters every season. Forty per cent. of this stuff is Filler, which requires 160,000 cars! Why not insist on having less filler and higher grade with active Nitrogen and help to save the freight bills of our Farmers and Planters.

NITRATE OF SODA

The productive capacity of high grade fertilizers without so much filler would mean a greater outbound tonnage for the railroad and greater purchasing power on the part of the farmers, so that railroads and everybody would be benefited.

Larger food crops will thus be produced, as well as all other crops, and increased prosperity will result all around.

The Rutgers Preparatory School
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

1916 151ST YEAR 1917

The school is under the management of Rutgers College—a guarantee of thorough college preparation.

It is the most moderate in its charges of all the high grade preparatory schools, because it can use much of the elegant equipment of Rutgers College without the cost of duplication.

Every boy receives personal individual attention.

The four dormitories are new, beautifully situated, safe from fire, and models of comfort.

The athletics are well managed and coached, so that the teams have been successful in hard schedules.

A separate school is maintained for younger boys.

WHAT WAS IT?

It was at a baseball game.
It was on a football being used in a very rough manner.
At all big tennis tournaments.
The golfers carried it.
It was even on men's suits, shoes and caps.
It was on a large number of books in the library.
It was found every time where play was being engaged in, so one could hardly get away from it.
You wonder what it was?
