EX LIBRIS

AS you read this book remember that those who advertise here have made it possible to produce the book. They have taken advertising space as a business proposition and it is the duty of Rutgers men to see that the investment is profitable to them.

You can trade as economically in New Brunswick as you can in New York and there are agents in town for all standard sporting goods. You pay exactly the same prices as those asked by the manufacturers and in many cases save shipping expenses.

Be fair, and help those who have helped you.

COURSES OF STUDY

THE College offers courses leading to the degrees of A. B., Litt. B. and B. Sc. Under the last are included a general science course, and technical science courses in Civil Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering, Chemistry, Ceramics, Agriculture, and Biology. The A. B., the Litt. B., and the general science courses permit large freedom in the choice of electives and provide liberal preparatory training for the professions of law, medicine, theology, teaching, and journalism. The technical science courses are designed to prepare for industrial positions of leadership, except the course in Biology, which aims to give a liberal training in the sciences, and is especially appropriate as a preliminary to the study of medicine. Short courses, not leading to a degree, are offered in Ceramics and in Agriculture

UNIVERSAL TREAD

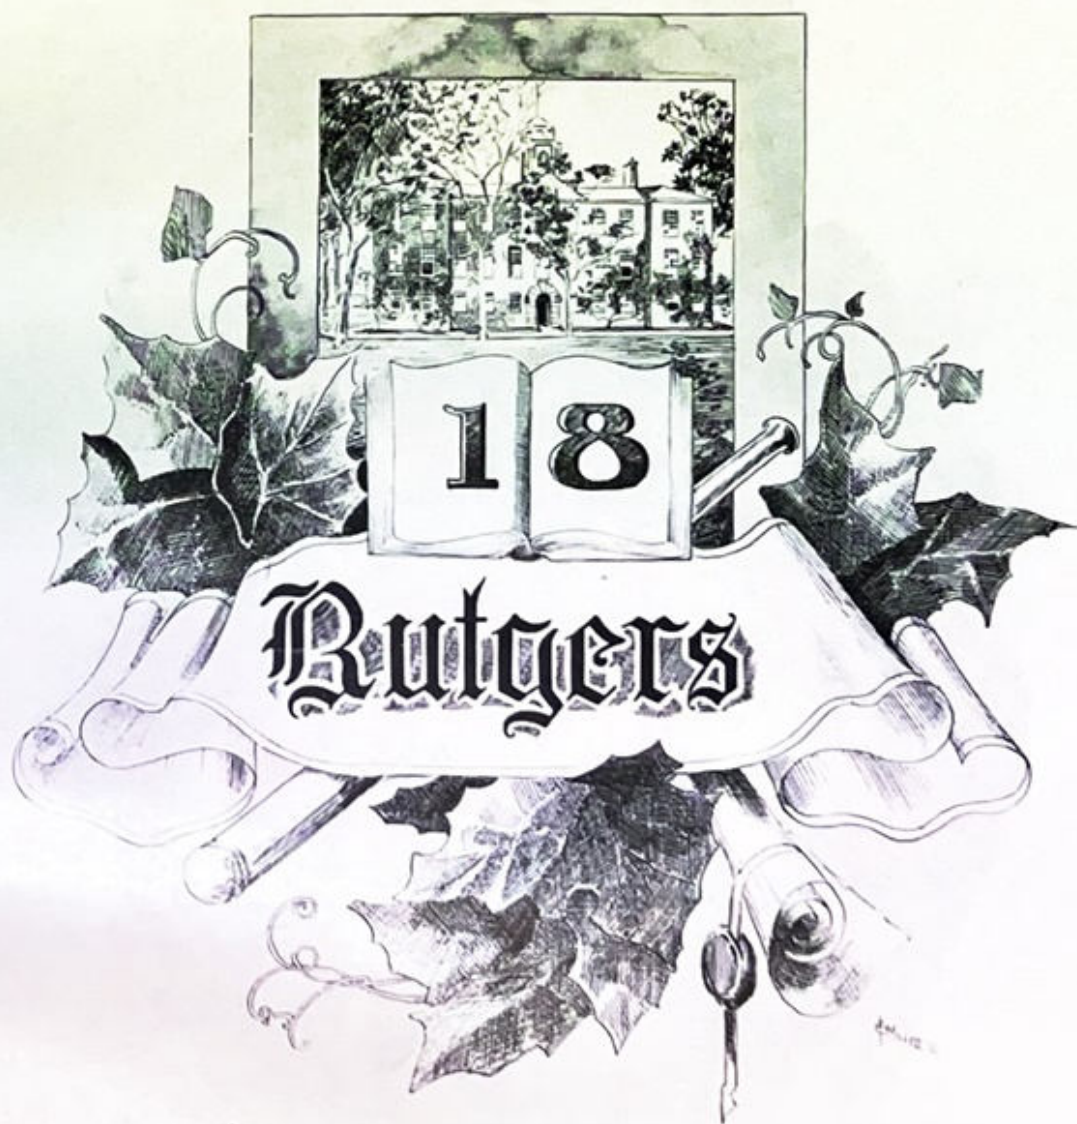

☛ The New Michelin Universal Tread has behind it Michelin's eighty-four years' experience in manufacturing rubber, and Michelin's twenty-one years' experience in making and selling pneumatic tires—both exclusive advantages that are at once the envy and the admiration of the tire world.

☛ The motorist who believes in using quality goods but who has never tried Michelin Tires is urgently requested to give this new tire a fair test on his car in competition with other makes. The company is willing to have all motorists decide their future tire equipment by the results of such tests.

NEILSON CAMPUS

F O R E W O R D

THE 1918 Scarlet Letter published following the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of the College would not be complete without some mention and review of the celebration in connection with that event. The primary purpose of this book is, however, to serve as a history; a story of the year 1916-1917, vital to each undergraduate as a reminder in later years, of true, lasting friendships formed, and various activities in which he participated while on the campus of old Rutgers.

We have striven to enliven our book with the Rutgers spirit of power, dignity, and truth; we trust that it successfully represents our earnest efforts.

Dr. Charles Edward Hart

Dr. Charles Edward Hart, Professor Emeritus of Ethics and Evidences of Christianity in Rutgers College, was born at Freehold, N. J., February 28, 1838. He graduated from Princeton University with the degree of A. B. in 1858. He then attended Princeton Theological Seminary, graduating in 1861, and subsequently becoming pastor of churches in New York City and Newark.

Dr. Hart came to Rutgers in 1880, becoming Professor of English Philosophy and Literature. From 1897-1906 he occupied the chair of Ethics and Evidences of Christianity, since which time he has been professor emeritus in the college. At the time of his death, December 15, 1916, he was second in order of seniority of the college faculty. By his death Rutgers College lost one of its truest friends, Dr. Hart having served thirty-six years on the faculty, winning the love and esteem of all who knew him.

History of the Class of 1917

THE end! This race, that through its course is run,
Has brought us where life's path is just begun;
Whose ways we'll tread as ne'er before we could,
Whose prizes otherwise could not be won.

So we look back upon the years just past,
And see how every day went by so fast,
And with it bore us on a little way
Toward the prize we are about to grasp.

When first we started here as freshmen green,
We did not view things in the light now seen;
And that development has now become
The history of nineteen seventeen.

The change thus stamped by time upon our mind,
Recorded in the life of each we find,
And that is what our history has been—
A heritage for us to leave behind.

We came just as a new era did start
For Rutgers, and we're proud of every part
We played in turning into service true
The love for Alma Mater in our heart.

Her fame has been distributed afar;
Her ideals have been set upon a star;
And though her name be changed to something else,
It will not any cherished thought mar.

From the first rush in freshman year we set
A standard which at all times we have kept;
And so lived up to it in after years,
That when we go we leave without the least regret.

We won most all the rushes that there were,
And then we needed nothing else to spur
Us on to fight for our dear Alma Mater
Upon the field and help bring fame to her.

In every sport men from our class took part,
And when they played they did it with a heart
Right in the work, that when the game was over
Full ready were they all again to start.

The dances that our class gave were the best
That were to be enjoyed by each fair guest;
The Hop, the Prom were unsurpassed in joy,
And may the Ball now prove to be the crest.

So as we watch the setting of the sun,
That ends the day when college life is done,
We see new hopes arise from out the mists,
And know that life in earnest is begun.

LHE three years that have passed since we entered Rutgers' ivy-covered halls, to prepare ourselves for life's battles, and to fit ourselves to be men, have passed more rapidly than we could have imagined that September evening in 1914, when first we were introduced to Rutgers, and Rutgers to us. Then, looking ahead, 1918 appeared ages away—now it is nearly at hand. Then the Juniors seemed so far above us, and so much more advanced that it was difficult to realize that some day we should be Juniors, too. Our development since then has been marvelous in its rapidity and scope. We entered Rutgers as boys; we shall leave, when the time comes, as men.

So many things have happened in the course of the three years, that it must suffice to enumerate but a few incidents bearing on the achievements and development of the Class of 1918, ever contributing to the glory and honor of Rutgers, its Alma Mater.

We came one hundred sixty-five strong, the largest class in the annals of the college. The Sophomores were ready to overwhelm us with their superior organization and team work. As they said, they were going to reverse the usual outcome of proc rushes, and beat us decisively; but their calculation was in error, for never were other Sophs so badly defeated by "a gang of Freshmen." Soon all enmity between the two classes was forgotten, and we labored with the guidance of the upper classmen to occupy successfully our place in Rutgers' history. Nineteen eighteen was represented on every team—football, baseball, basketball, and all the rest—from the very start; and the activities of the Athletic Association, Y. M. C. A., Targum, Philo, Queen's Players and Glee Club, our men supported with heart and soul.

When 1918 became the Sophomore Class it was decided that from the beginning we should gain the respect of the Freshmen, and teach them that we were their best friends. The spirit shown by 1918 in the rushes soon made manifest to them our determination and strength. Now we were guardians with a sacred trust. Throughout the Sophomore year 1918 maintained the high standard established while Freshmen in activities and athletics. The Sophomore Hop—a memorable affair—marked the debut of the Class into society. Our numbers on the teams increased, and we gained in knowledge, power, and friendship.

The year quickly passed. In September, 1916, a new dignity, a new spirit, told us that we were now upper classmen, Juniors, and had reached the point in our college career which in 1914 appeared so far ahead. Conscious of our duty to our Alma Mater, as never before, we resolved to make our third year, the one hundred fiftieth in the life of the college, one which should count; and on the opening day pledged ourselves anew to the service of Rutgers, with added fervor, with quickened spirit, and with a confidence that we were Juniors not alone in name, but in character and worthiness.

The close of our third year is near at hand. It has been a time of hard, strenuous study, and augmented diligence in the so-called outside interests of the athletic field, stage and platform. The ancient traditions handed down from class to class as a glorious heritage of the past have been zealously guarded, and carried out, although originality has been a marked characteristic of the deeds of '18.

A history would be incomplete without some mention of the Junior Promenade, which paled to insignificance all other proms before it. Who will ever forget the music, sweet and fantastic; the decorations, in colors so soft and radiant with joy; the girls, their beautiful gowns, and still more beautiful faces, all blending together in a heaven-like harmony, a veritable paradise descended to earth? It was over all too soon, but will ever linger in the memories of those present as the most successful, most pleasing of all college social functions.

But one short year remains between us and graduation. May the achievements already accomplished be forerunners to even greater things next year, and lives of usefulness in the world. May our slogan ever be: "For God, for Country, for Rutgers, and for 1918!"

HISTORIAN.

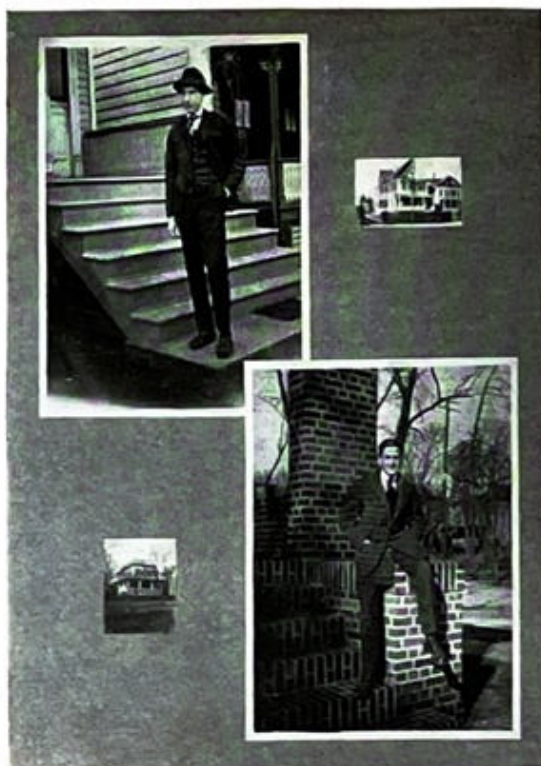

NEILSON CAMPUS

WILLIS WOLCOTT ANGUS

"Bill"

A tenacious fellow is Angus,
At gym he sticks as though viscous,
Around chemistry's shrine
May his knowledge entwine,
Though his progress is *tardigradous

*Means slow moving.

MELBOURNE SAWFORD
APPLEGATE

"Mel"

A hard little plugger is Apple,
A better fellow you can scarcely find;
He never studies in chapel,
For He's too good, in my mind.

FRANK SAMUEL BECKWITH

"Beck"

Beckwith has all kinds of luck
In just missing out getting stuck.
He's taking up Ag.
In drill he's a drag.
He is as good a lad as you'll buck.

WALTER HERMAN BEISLER

"Beis"

Old Beis has ambitious plans,
His stature is scarcely a man's,
With powders and pills
He cures other folk's ills;
He's a druggist at Monigans.

HENRY CASPER BERG

"Hank"

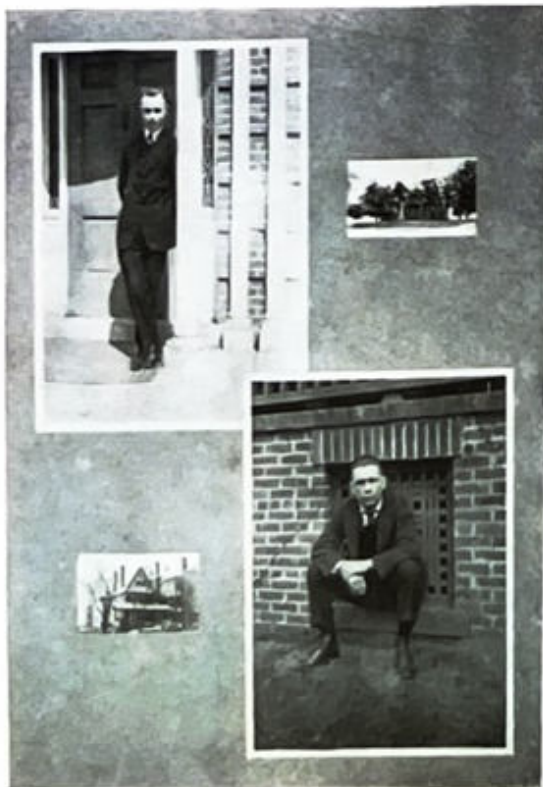

A crazy old bird is this Hank,
 Who plays ball with a whole lot of force;
 It's a shame to lose such a good fellow
 In that cute little classical course.

EUGENE EDWARD BEYER

"Utch"

Utch winnies just like a horse,
 He's struggling in the Ag. course;
 He is jolly and gay,
 And when you hear, "What do you say?"
 You know it is Utch, of course.

DANIEL HUDSON BOWMAN

"Huddy"

Here is our Editor-in-chief
 Who works so hard it's a pity,
 For in making this book
 All the hard work he took,
 And besides, he comes from Jersey City.

ELMER GLADSTONE
BRACHER*"Toady"*

They say that ivory are his bones,
 And that his head is, too;
 For study and football cause him falls,
 But it is study that makes him
 blue.

CHESTER EARL BREECE

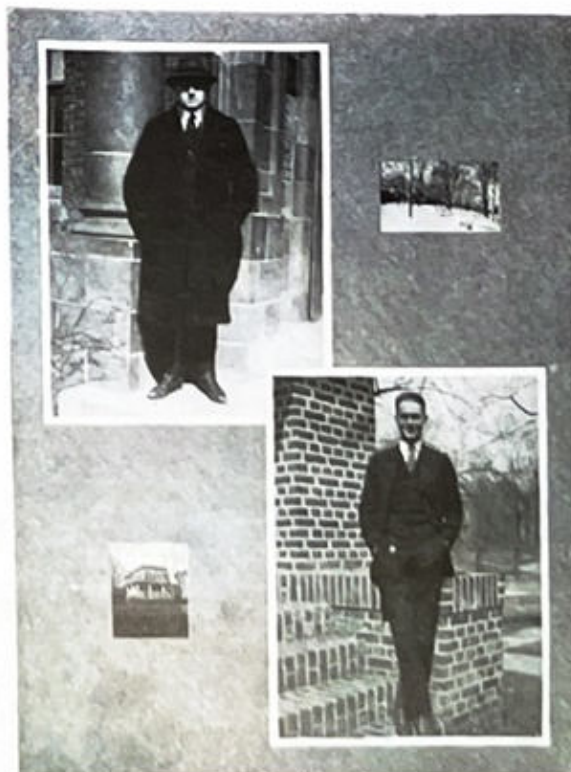

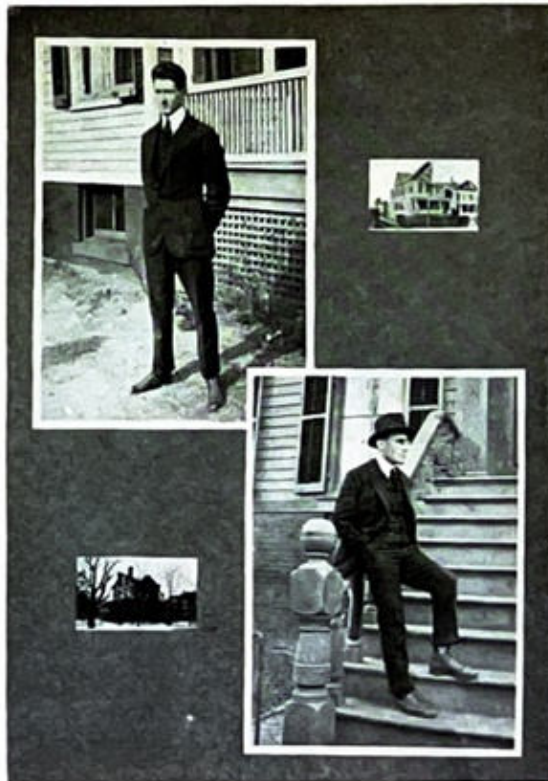

"Hap"

Now, here is Earl Breece, as sleek as grease,
Who's never known to growl,
But when he smiles
His witty wiles
Are enough to make you howl.

PHILLIP MARCUS BRENNER

"Phil"

Brenner has learned to commute,
For the 5.41 he does scoot;
He would catch the 5.01
Without having to run,
If he only was swifter of foot.

WILLIAM FRANKLIN
BUCHANAN*"Cupie"*

Here is a boy they call cupid,
From Amboy he's always commuted.
He weighs half a ton
He's a Mellen's Food son—
For his avoirdupois he's reputed.

IRVING DITMARS BUTTLER

"Dit"

Irv is an engineer mechanical,
Who ignores all things botanical,
But when he is out on the track
As a jumper he's a crack,
And he's there with the comebacks laconical.

MELVIN CAMPBELL

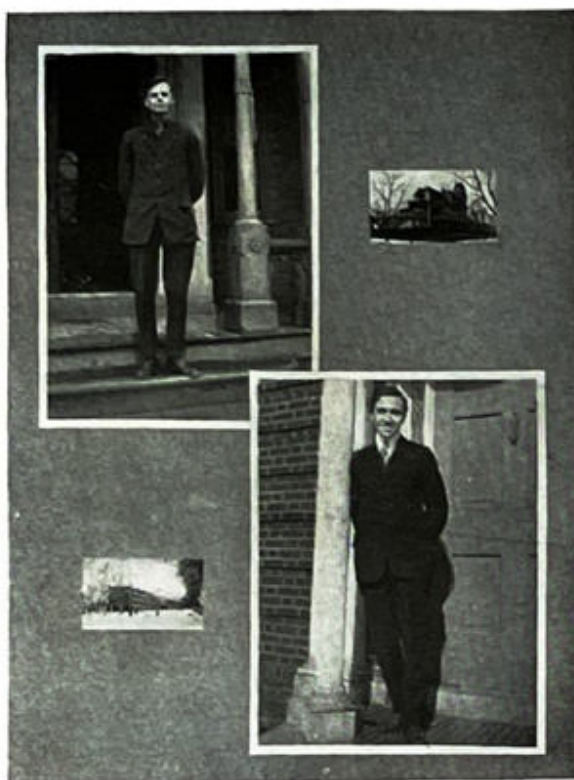

"Mel"

M. Campbell is taking up Ag.,
He's never been seen with a jag—
And though he don't talk
At hard work he don't balk;
He don't rush, but yet he don't lag.

MARCUS AURELIUS
CANFIELD

"Marc"

His name is Marcus Aurelius,
He works with a terrible rush.
He's out for the A's
For he thinks that it pays,
For a Phi Beta key brings the kush.

WALTER LELAND CHILDS

"Red"

Old Red is sure a good fellow,
With a heart as golden as his hair;
As Freshman president he was good,
And at tennis he's a bear.

ROBERT IRVING CLARK

"Bob"

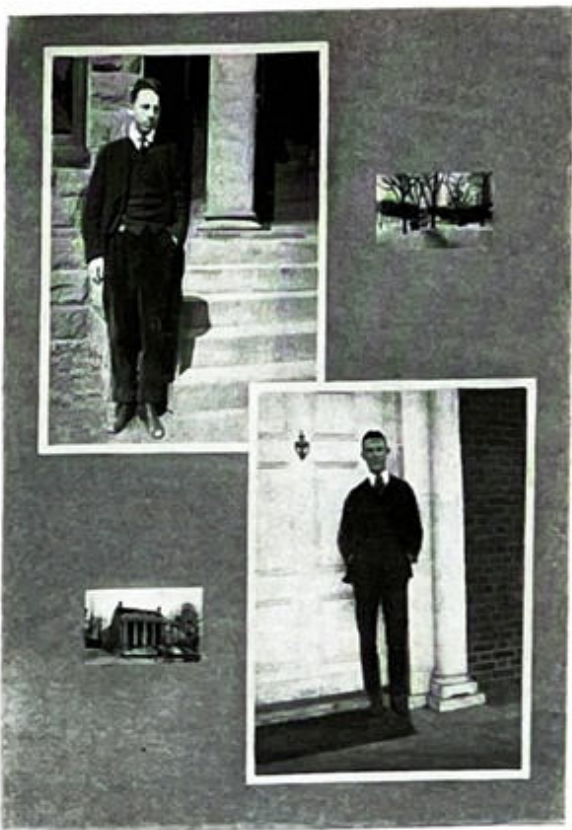

Old Bobby's got very flat feet,
He and the ground sure do meet;
For the laundry he goes
Getting soiled shirts and hose;
As good a guy as you'll meet.

FRANK LE FETRA CLAYTON
"Clayt"

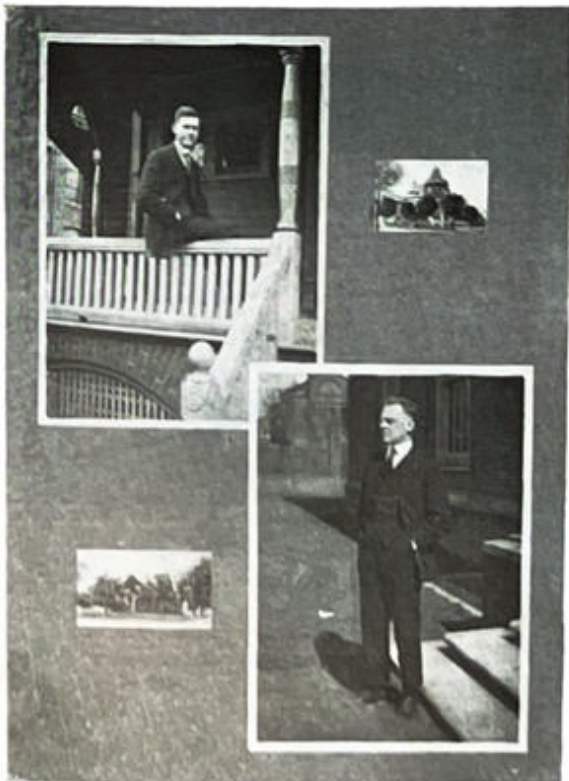

A pretty good scout is this Clayt,
He chose Thompson, F. S., for his mate.

When you see them rush
It's a town chippy they fuss.
Their success in the Fem. line is great.

ALLEN FORD CONGER
"Fordie"

I like my looks,
I like my books,
I like the ladies fair,
They like me, too?
I trust you do;
If you don't, why I don't care.

BYRON PENNINGTON
CROKER
"Frog"

When "Jerusalem Morning," Frog
sings,
The concert hall walls sure do ring.
On the Glee Club he's fun,
He's got them all on the run;
For a Croaker the boy sure can sing.

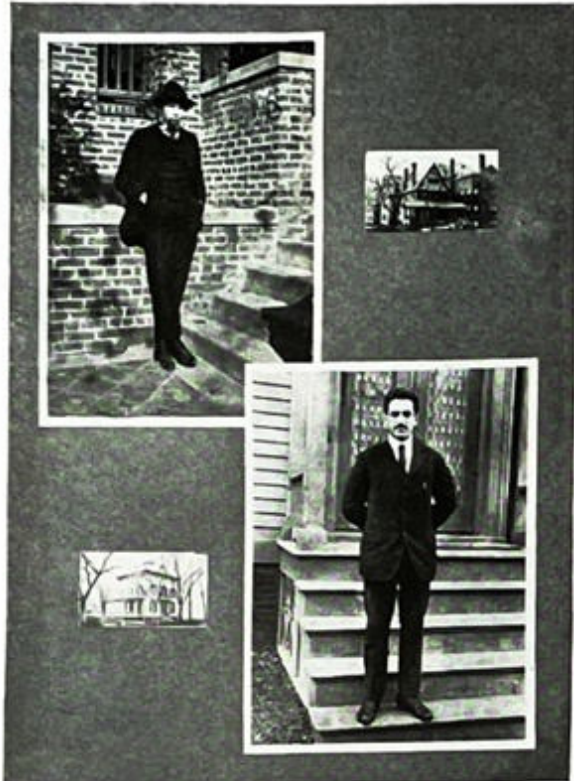

NORMAN FREDRIK DAHL,
"Norm"

A jolly old scout is Norm,
In class his fate's ne'er forlorn;
On the manager's staff
He's standing the gaff;
I'll stop and let him blow his own horn.

JOHN SHERMAN
DELAMATER

"Del"

Old Del is our newspaper phenom,
As a writer he's busy enough;
He writes for the Targum, Home
News and what not,
He's great on that Horace Greeley stuff.

DOMENIC VINCENT ANDREW
DELLA VOLPE

"Del"

And now we come to Del,
In the band he sure is a bear;
And in the rushes the Seniors tell
How their shirts and coats he did tear.

SEARLE BENWELL
DOUGHERTY

"Doc"

Doc is a civil engineer—
He changed from general science,
And now that he's changed
We all think it strange
That on his brain he'd place such reliance.

ARTHUR DORWARD DRAKE

"Ducky"

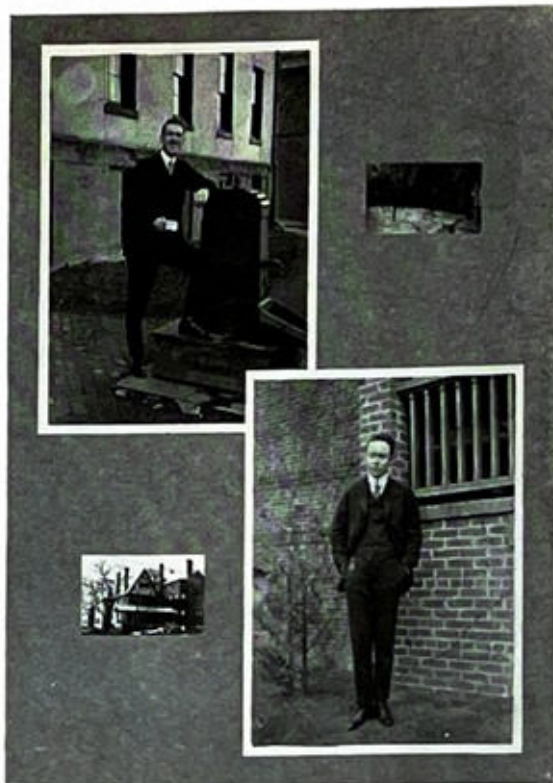

This is the boy they call Ducky,
In running for office he's plucky;
He's different from Bryan,
For, while he keeps tryin',
Bryan loses and Ducky is lucky.

ANSON MAPES DUBOIS
"Doobus"

Dubois is another scholar
 Who hails from Holy Hill.
 He's going to spend his life time
 Grinding truth in a religion mill.

JAMES BLANCHARD
 DURAND
"Bub"

This auburn-topped guy is called Dory,
 To tell all would be a long story;
 He guards the far corner
 Like the ancient Jack Horner;
 At baseball he's sure in his glory.

JOSEPH HOFFMAN EDGAR "Joe"

A bundle of pep is this Edgar,
 But so small that he gets lost in bed;
 He's got a big suit with the city,
 For building the street so close to his head.

IRVING BENJAMIN EMERY
"Em"

This fellow used to commute,
 For the 4.24 he would scoot;
 But he started to work,
 And the train he did shirk,
 And he finds living here ganz gut.

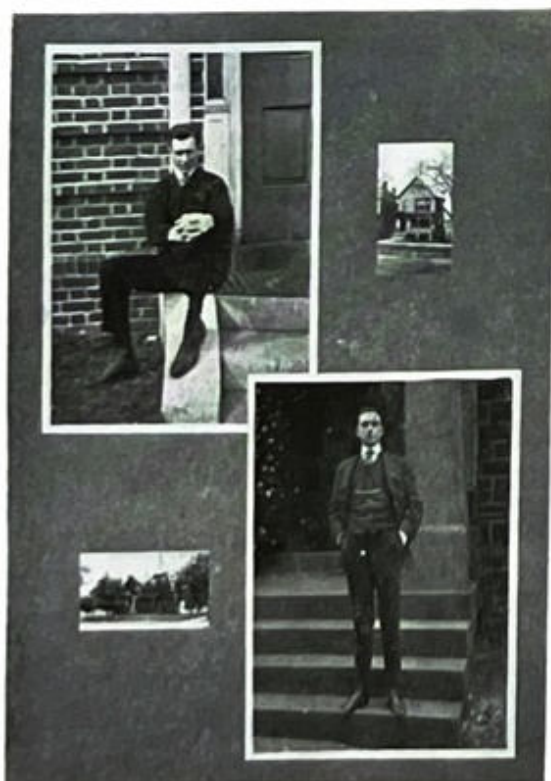

NORMAN KOHLER EYPER
"Norm"

This boy must have had a big scare,
 Or Prof. North's chemistry turned light his hair.
 He went out for football
 But he was too small;
 We give him credit—he's there.

ALEXANDER ERNEST
 FERGUSON
"Sandy"

Sandy's a jolly old Scot;
 It isn't his fault, he couldn't help that,
 But since he passes
 In all of his classes,
 His record will not be a blot.

ARTHUR LOUIS FINK
"Artie"

An innocent child is this Fink,
 His future's the stage, so I think—
 Booth, Irving and me,
 That talented three,
 Will put all the rest on the blink.

CHARLES GILDERSLEEVE
"Gildie"

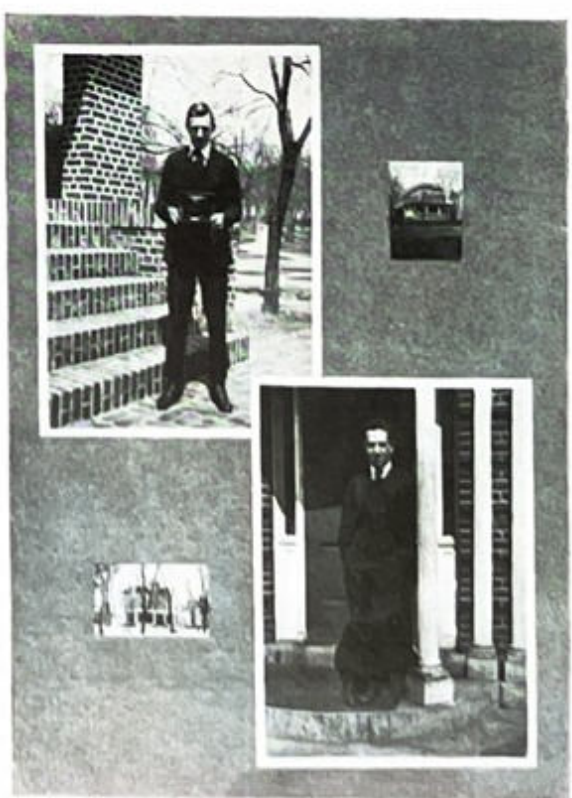

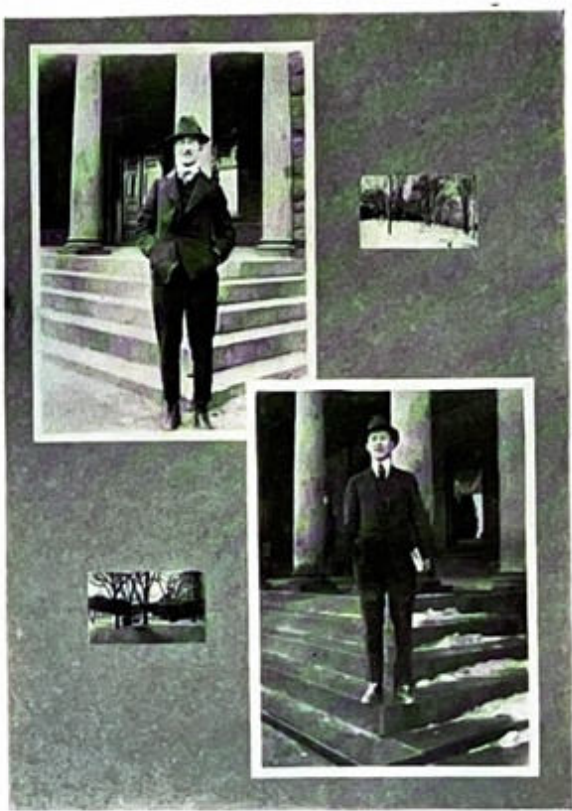

Gildie is a pretty boy,
 So lovely, such a dream,
 But when he sits down to the piano
 The music comes out in a stream.

LOUIS GINSBERG
"Louie"

Ginsberg, the hard-working bard,
 Sticking in his room like a cup in a saucer;
 As a poet, believe me, he's there;
 I think he's got it on Chaucer.

IRVING GOLODNER
"Glod"

Golodner works hard in the gym,
 That sort of work keeps him thin;
 He tries all the things,
 From handball to rings;
 He'd have Charlie Chap beat on a film.

AUGUST LOUIS GRIMME
"Gus"

Gustave is very Teutonic,
 His pro-German beliefs are quite chronic;
 When you mention the war,
 He gets very sore;
 We wish that he were more harmonic.

JOSEPH JACOB HAUPT, JR.
"Joe"

The handle to his monaker is Joe,
 He's regular, "let me tell you that,
 Bo;"
 He smokes an old pipe,
 Whose smell is quite ripe;
 As to his standing in class I don't know.

HAROLD JAMES HAWKINS
"Hal"

Hal is a quiet old scout,
 Of him I know little about,
 But they say that the owl
 Is a very wise fowl;
 He does well to keep silent and not spout.

STEPHEN JOSEPH
 HERBEN, JR.

"Joe"

Of humor his head is all full,
 In classes he shovels the "bull;"
 His monaker's Joe,
 Do the Profs. like him? No,
 For it's always their legs that he pulls.

WILLIAM SCUDDER HIGBIE
"Scud"

As a Freshman he commuted at will;
 Come to think of it he is commuting still;
 He is a very good mechanic,
 For his brain is titanic;
 As a student he sure fills the bill.

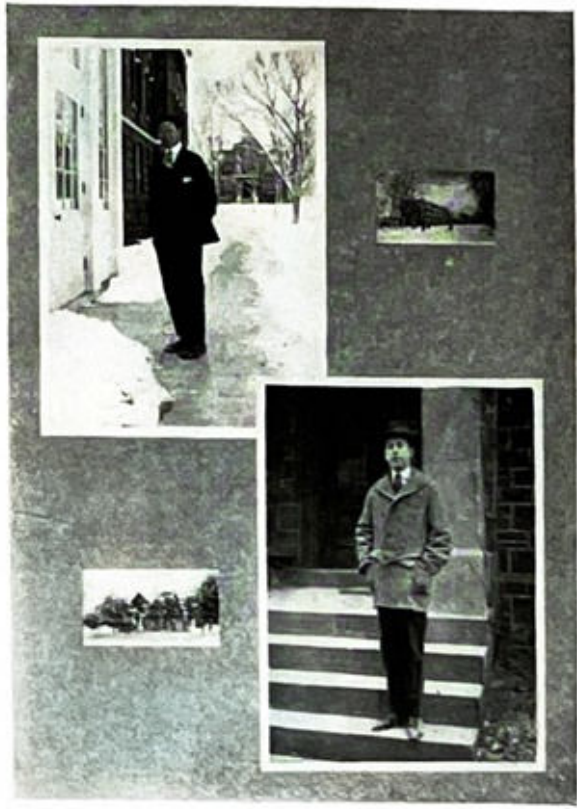

HAROLD BEN HILL,
"Hillie"

A typical parson is Hill,
 Who never has studied his fill;
 In this classical lore
 He grinds more and more,
 Just so he can get out of drill.

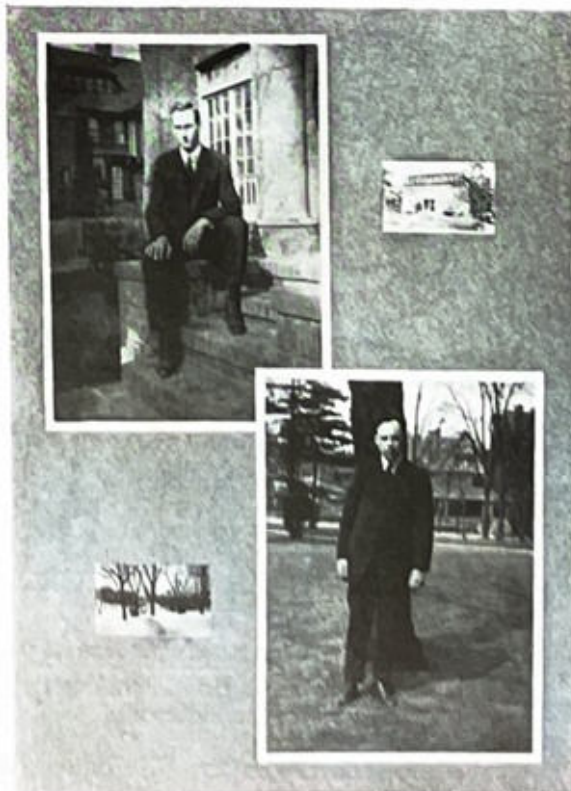

WILGUS ALEXANDER
HOLMAN
"Bill"

Red hair and goggles and a smile on his face,
Must cause the fair ladies our Wilgus to chase;
As an athlete he cherished desires for fame,
But in soccer his efforts are all made in vain.

FRED WALTER JACKSON
"Jack"

Here's a guy I don't know much about,
But I guess he's a pretty good scout;
In De Regt he got stuck,
But that's simply hard luck,
And he profited by the mistake, I've no doubt.

HARRY LOCKWOOD
JENNINGS
"Yank"

Here is a boy they call Harry;
We are glad he decided to tarry;
In Fame's he's a niche
For he surely can pitch;
As a regular guy we hand it to Harry.

JACOB JOFFE
"General"

An interesting character is Joffe,
Who thinks the world is too rough;
With anarchial views
He peruses the news,
And throws out one terrible bluff.

RALPH STUART JONES

"Pep"

This Jones is a quiet fellow,
Who sticks pretty close to his room;
He never is hurried,
But ever is buried
At home with his books, I presume.

NOEL DUNHAM LUDLOW

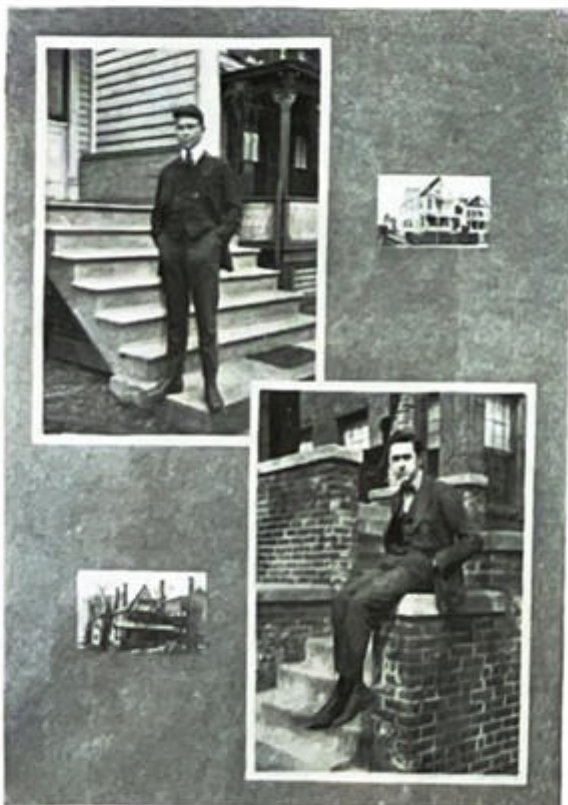

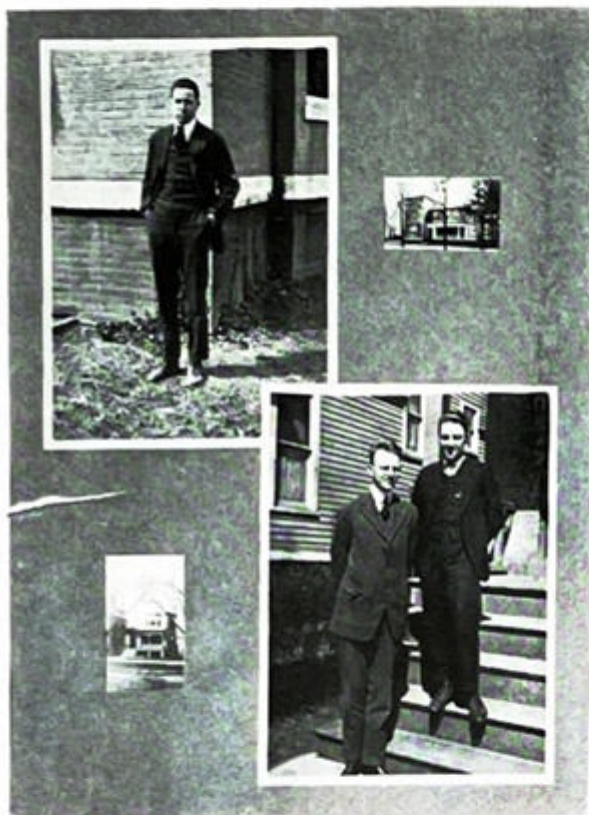

"Lud"

Ludlow is a student profound,
His knowledge in logic is sound;
Before each recitation
He makes a sensation,
When he pulls the Prof's leg to the ground.

JOHN DENNIS LYONS

"Johnny"

Johnny's a baseball player,
Who runs with his feet very flat;
He's a classical student, too,
But we'll forgive him for that.

GEORGE ALEXANDER
McDONALD

"Mac"

Now we come to the curly-topped
Mack,
When he runs he's in front of the pack;
When he gets in a meet
He's a hard man to beat;
He's a wizard in the sport they call track.

ROBERT ABBE McKENZIE
"Bob"

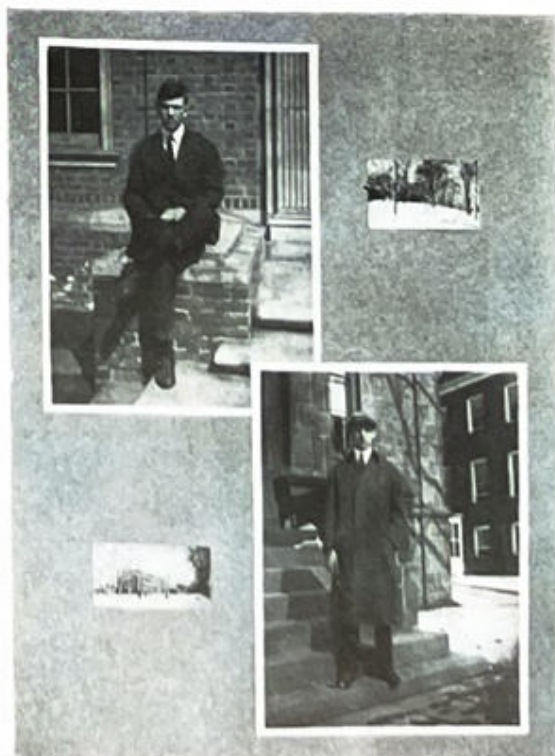

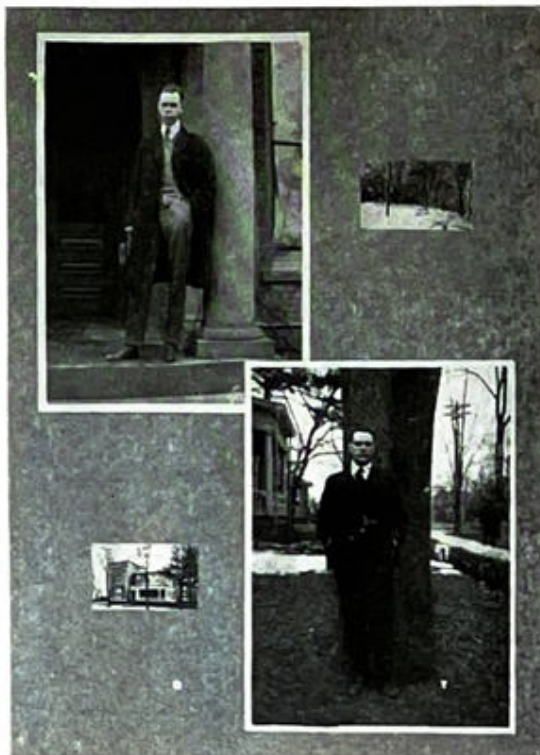

In work he approaches perfection,
An artist he is in dissection;
He knows physiology
And paleontology;
He's fourth in the Biolog section.

ALLISTER PALMER MacLEOD
"Mack"

MacLeod is a canny old Scot,
 Who never uses a trot.
 As long as he passes
 In all of his classes
 He really had much better not.

HOWARD FITZ RANDOLPH
 MASON
"Mase"

On a dance floor he's sure out of place,
 For he takes up too darn much space.
 As a center he's there,
 As a swimmer he's fair,
 Our own class president, Mase.

LUDWIG MEUSER
"Lud"

Meuser's a chemist Teutonic, Whose A's have become almost chronic.
 He gets by with R. O.,
 As I happen to know,
 Because of his answers laconic.

FRANK MANLEY MEYEREND
"Con"

He's a limerick all by himself.

HAROLD AUGUST MILLER
"Hal"

Hal is the art editor,
In spare time he makes drawings galore.
He plays basketball
In our Ballentine Hall.
Of men like him we wish there were more.

WALTER RICHARD NETZEL
"Nets"

Brave men stand back to let him pass,
Professors throw him out of class;
In vain his acts we try to quell,
He goes right out and raises cain,
He is the toughneck of the class.

ROYAL FRANKLIN NICHOLS
"Roy"

Here's Nichols, as wise as an owl.
As a student he's a hummer.
He knows so much of the classics
That I think he's related to Homer.

GEORGE BODO OTTO
George

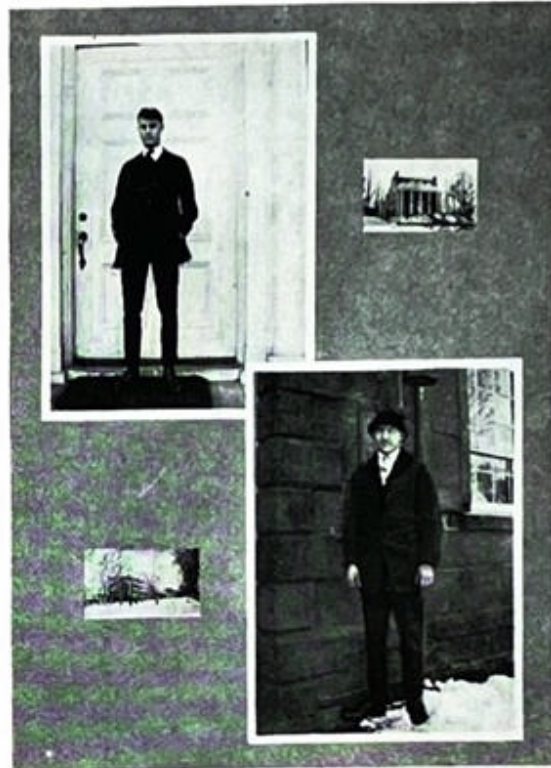

Otto got by with De Regt,
But still we are willing to bet
Before he gets thru
He'll have plenty to do
And R. O. may stick the guy yet.

WILLIAM NELSON PACKARD
"Bill"

In looks I know I'm a star,
My face is most handsome by far.
But I do not mind it,
For I am behind it.
It's the people in front that I jar.

WILLIAM PATZ
"Bill"

He makes Socrates shudder in his grave,
W. Patz, that learned man.
In daytime he recites in school,
And at night he's librarian.

GRAHAM PELTON
"Pelt"

A studious fellow is Pelt,
To whom the word "stuck" is ne'er felt.
We did not hear of him before,
But he should not be sore,
For Connecticut's Nicht auf der Welt.

GEORGE HERBERT PERRY
George

He's not studious, this fellow named
Perry.
To his lessons his mind is contrary.
Putting the ball in the basket
Is like putting stiffs in a casket
For an undertaker—the kid sure is clever.

CARL WILLIAM PFEIL
"Bill"

As a dancer Pfeil would be sweet,
 And get by with the ultra-elite.
 At the hack drivers' ball
 He'd outdance them all
 If it wasn't for two of his feet.

JAMES HALL PITMAN
"Jimmie"

They say that fat men are always jolly.
 Well, Pitman keeps up this tradition.
 With a smile on his face
 And his pretty, bright bean,
 He should edit a fat man's edition.

JOHN ROMINE RIKER, JR.
"Rike"

Riker's the "belle of the ball."
 It isn't his dancing that's all,
 It's because every day
 You hear some flapper say,
 "Mr. Riker's so handsome and tall."

JOSEPH MIDDLETON
 ROBERTS, JR.
"Robbie"

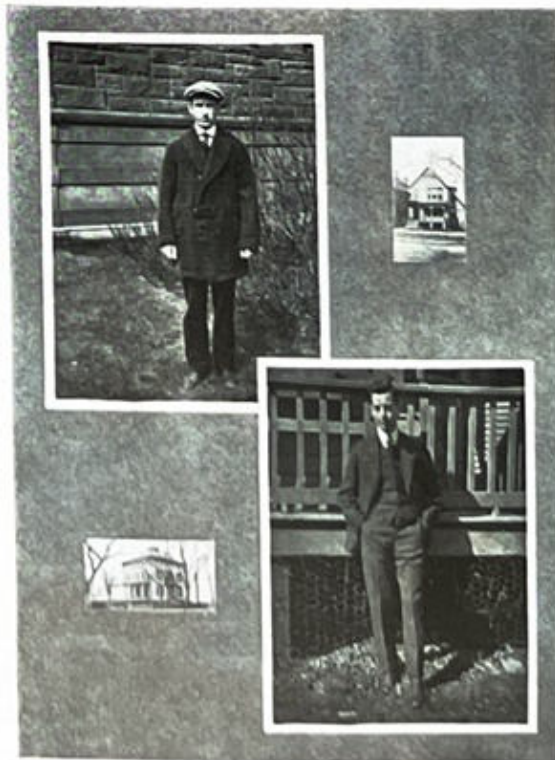

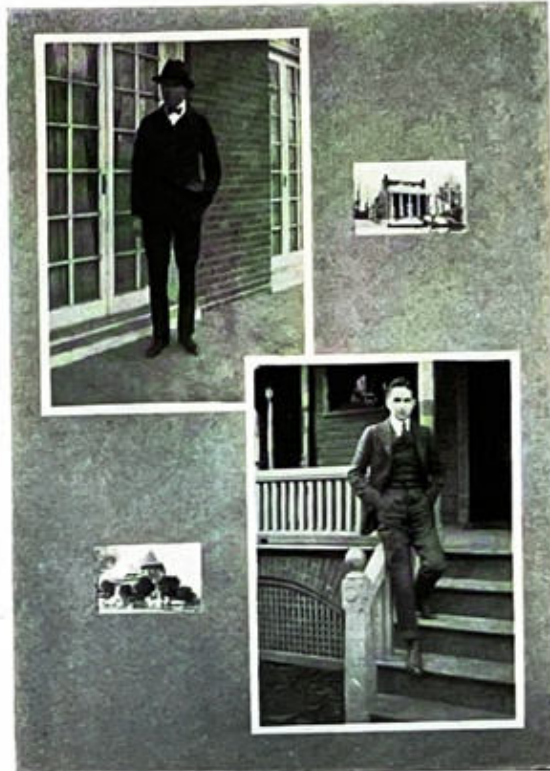

Roberts is taking up Ag.
 He can't tell a bull from a nag.
 He gets pork from cows
 And butter from sows.
 With the pros he must have some drag.

ANDREW WILLIAM ROY
"Andy"

His limerick may be found in last year's SCARLET LETTER.

MAKER
"Schoonie"

Schoonmaker came out for track.
He was off at the first pistol crack.
Running too long in one place
Made him lose the great race.
His speed is like the service at Mack's.

HOWARD MONROE SHEPPARD
"Shep"

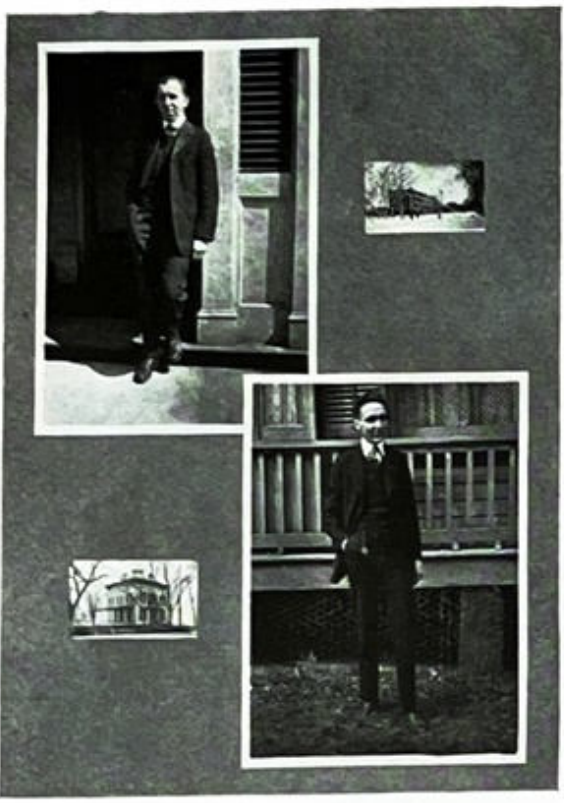

The next is a fellow called "Shep,"
Who never has shown us much pep.
His days spent in sleep,
His only attribute deep,
We wonder if he'll ever get hep.

ANSON FOWLER SHERMAN
"General"

Venus de Milo, John Thomas and I,
I don't know just which is the handsomest guy;
A good-mannered fellow, gentle but firm,
A pretty good guy is "General" Sherman.

HARRY CLARK SMALLEY
Harry

Smalley looks just like a grind.
He always has much on his mind.
In the office he's a fixture;
He's an interesting mixture.
As a teacher he'll sure be a find.

PRESTON ROBERT SMITH
"P. R."

This boy is known as P. R.,
As a student he sure is a star;
He dabbles in precipitation,
With fusion and filtration,
He can make dyes from old clothes and tar.

GARNETT SUMMERILL
"Spreck"

Spreck is a Biolog, too.
His outlook on life is quite blue.
Between Moore and R. O.
And what he doesn't know,
It's luck if he ever gets thru.

FRANKLIN SLATER
THOMPSON
"Tommie"

Tommie has one big ambition,
To work at his own sweet volition.
China painting's his course,
So he's freed from remorse,
For he can't have a single condition.

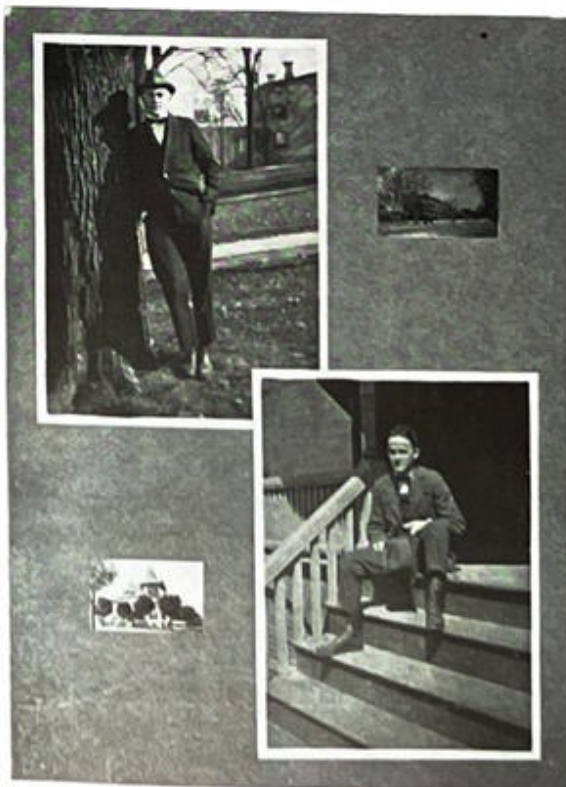

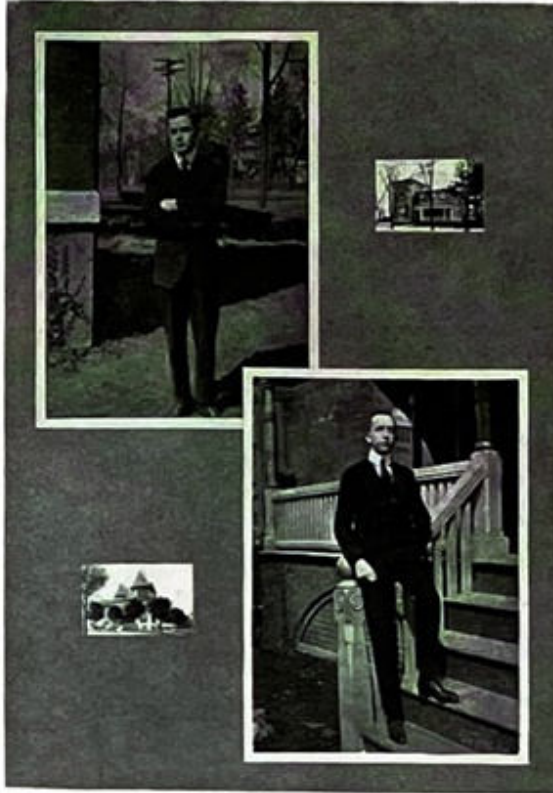

JOHN HAROLD THOMPSON
"Tommie"

Tommy says less than the Sphinx,
And that's being some silent, methinks.

But I think that his chatter
Would make quite a clatter,
If he'd only say something, by Jinks!

MILLWOOD JOSEPH
TRUSCOTT
"Joe"

Truscott is some engineer.
He really gets by, so I hear.
But with Lendall and Johnny,
And Stevie and Tommie,
How he does it is certainly queer.

RELLER DAVIS VAN
WAGENEN
"Van"

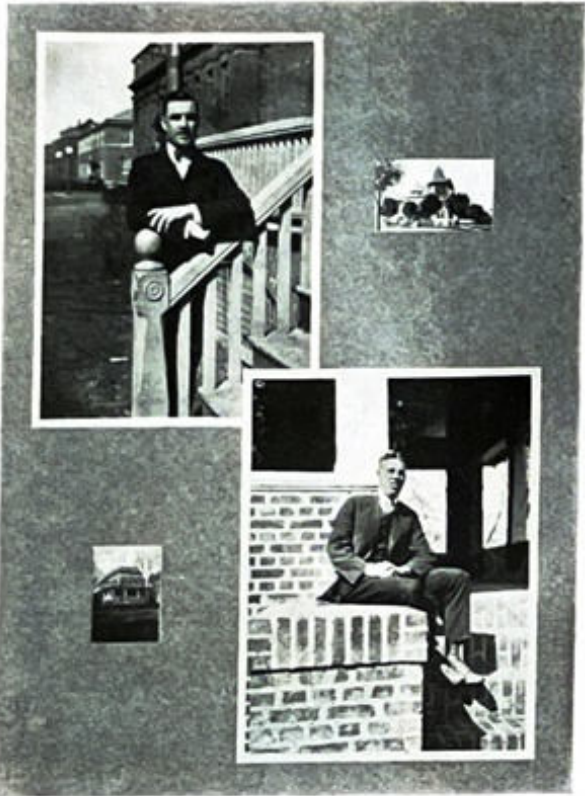

Van is a pretty good skate,
Who lives up on the Hill.
He came down to college
And here chose his fate,
Lest at home the soil he should till.

ROBERT LELAND VOORHEES
"Bob"

Bob is an earnest worker,
Who has held a job at each dance,
So that when the work falters
We give Bob the halter,
And the work just comes out of the trance.

CHARLES LIEBERMANN
WALKER
"Mate"

A wonderful fusser is Mate.
Every evening he gets him a date
And shovels the bull
Till the place is all full.
He's on the job always at eight.

JOHN ROLAND WATERFIELD
"Luke"

We all once believed in the rumor
That Luke was possessed of some humor,
But just take a look
At the stuff in this book.
And you'll see that we all picked a bloomer.

GEORGE DE PUYSTER
WILKIN
"Fat"

Like the Vikings of old
Is this Wilkin bold.
When out in the field he stands Waiting for flies or grounders or drives
On which to lay his hands.

CLARENCE WINCHELL
"Winch"

Winchell's a Biolog bold,
Who cuts up dead cats, we're told.
When he tries vivisection
And internal inspection
It's a sight that you ought to behold.

ARTHUR JACOB WIRTH

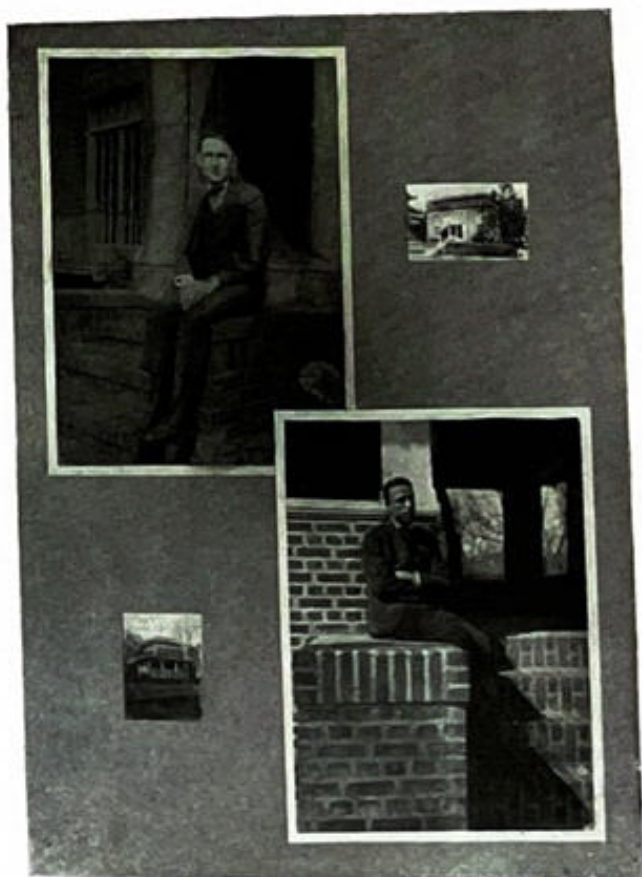

"Squirt"

Squirt Wirth is our business manager,
Small and trim and sleek,
But he can see an ad. a mile
With those Phi Beta specks on his beak.

JOHN NICHOLAS WITTPENN, JR.

"Mike"

Versatile varsity Mike,
Who sure is a crazy old Ike,
With no thought in his head
Save for dinner and bed.
He's a fellow whom you will all like.

History of the Class of 1919

TO recount the history of a class like that of 1919—if there be another such—and to do justice to it would require the combined powers of no mere historian. Hence, in the brief space which has been allotted for this account of the ideals, the works and the doings of such an illustrious class, it is within our power only to set forth the briefest of outlines. The little everyday occurrences, the commoner victories and triumphs of the class must, of necessity, be omitted. It remains merely to chronicle the more imposing events of the 1919-ers, whose motto is: Country, College, Class!

We are, indeed, a band of warriors; never were there braver, truer, more loyal hearts than those that beat in the breasts of every son of the Scarlet who proudly count themselves in the ranks of '19. We would rather fight than eat, there is not a streak of yellow in the entire class and, whenever there is a just goal in the distance the ready hand of '19 is always ready to fight for it. From the very first appearance of the class as a unit, now almost a year and a half ago, down to the present day, that fighting has never waned one jot, and in the same spirit that we brought the Sophomores to our feet in that first night's Proc Rush last year, we subdued the Freshman Class in the Proc Rush this year. From time immemorial it has been the custom of the Freshmen to overpower the outnumbered Sophomores in the Proc Rush. Last fall we shattered that ancient custom and under the wise leadership of our president a band, outnumbered two to one by the Freshman horde, posted the Procs and routed the underclassmen. In an attempt to try some of our own medicine on us, immediately prior to the Christmas vacation, the Freshmen failed utterly. We are forced to admit in all due modesty that our Procs were glorious mementos to the intellect of an unconquerable class, but we were somewhat astonished that the weaklings of 1920 should admit it also. They did, however, for they, too, were apparently so delighted with them that many weeks after the posting they were still very much in evidence about the campus.

We shall never forget that first chapel rush. How the class turned out to a single man, only to find the Freshmen scattered and wild with inconceivable temerity, absolutely unable even to give a yell—conquered! After several more unsuccessful attempts the Freshmen managed to devise a scheme for the chapel rushes—and a cowardly scheme it was, for, afraid to come out in the open and fight like men of blood, they cringed back against the wall of the chapel, like a flock of panic-stricken sheep crouched together for protection from the onslaught of the hungry wolves.

The Hop this year stands as another monumental token of Sophomore conception. Ever will it remain a bright spot in the memories of those lucky mortals who, on that glorious evening of December the eighth, swayed over the floor of the old Gym, happy under the charm of bewitching music! Never has it been surpassed in either management or conception! This, we were about to comment, was the crowning success of a long line of remarkable achievements and we doubt not that it will be a lasting landmark in the social history of old Rutgers.

On the fifth day of February the class assembled en masse at the Hotel Navarre in New York City, where the annual banquet was held. That was a festive evening. Not a single Freshman attempted to impose upon that august assemblage. We do not wonder—we only grieve, for we went with a great hope in our hearts that there would be some sort of an encounter to sharpen our appetites for the feast which we knew would be ours even should the Freshmen turn out in full numbers for the prevention thereof.

Just a word about athletics, a phase of college life of which we are justly fond. Last fall the 'varsity football squad was strengthened by no less than ten of our classmates and the mainstays of the scrubs were men of '19. Then, again, our own class eleven was of no inconsiderable merit and even though the final score was against us, 6 to 0, that game with the Freshmen was one of the best interclass matches that has been fought on a Rutgers field, and—we died fighting.

In the Fall Track Meet we were unable to carry off the most cherished laurels but, nevertheless, we did ourselves proudly. Several of our men are 'varsity track men and hold places in the front rank of this line of athletics. On the basketball squad we are again ably represented and our men are also on the swimming, water polo and gym teams. Even the Glee and Mandolin clubs and college dramatics could scarcely get along without us. Along intellectual lines we also excel and a peep into a Philo meeting would reveal numbers of our classmates, and the Freshman debating team proved an easy victim to the wily tongues of our team.

No attempt will be made to detail the scholastic triumphs of 1919. The general high scholarship of the class is a matter of common knowledge. Suffice it to say that already we have taken "prizes not a few."

In this manner we might continue indefinitely, had we but the time and the space. We shall, however, cease here and conclude our unworthy record of a class which stands for high ideals and a fighting Rutgers' spirit. The nation, Rutgers, and 1919! May the old Scarlet be second to none save the nation in the honor and adoration of this our class, and may its strength and prestige ever be consecrated to the upbuilding of the Alma Mater, whose children we are. Here's to THE CLASS.

History of the Class of 1920

THE evening of October 2, 1916, ushered in a most important epoch in the history of Rutgers College. It was then that the largest class which has ever entered Rutgers assembled in front of "Old Queens" to join in the inspiring singing of "On the Banks." It was then that two hundred and five men caught for the first time the true spirit of our beloved college—a spirit which they shall undoubtedly carry with them throughout their lives.

Although but a few months have passed since the entrance of this celebrated class, the class of 1920 has already become an important factor in the life and activities of Rutgers, and has, at the same time, established a remarkable history. The might of the class was first evidenced in the Proc rushes. Later in the successive chapel rushes, the Freshman war cry always resounded clear above the din of battle, with the result that the lamentably weak band of Sophomores was again completely overwhelmed. In the inter-class contests the Freshmen again proved their worth, being victors in football, baseball, basketball and track. Even more important, the Class of 1920 has been largely represented in the varsity athletic teams of football, baseball, track, basketball and swimming. Nor have the Freshmen been lax in other activities, taking an active part in the Glee and Mandolin Clubs, on the varsity debating teams, and in the many other features of our college life. Our class banquet, held the Monday evening following mid-years in Newark, was a tremendous success. Never before had such class spirit been manifested on such an occasion, and the entire affair was graced by the presence of our worthy president, although repeated attempts had been made by the Sophomores to deprive us of this feature.

Thus has the Class of 1920 begun its momentous career on the banks of the old Raritan. It has set up a brilliant example for all future Freshman classes. We of 1920 are proud to constitute the largest class which has entered Rutgers College. We are likewise proud of our record as a class. However, we are even more pleased to have done something toward bringing glory and honor to our alma mater.

Football Season of 1916

HE football season of 1916, while not as successful as we all wished, was nevertheless one in which the team showed itself to be possessed of the old "Rutgers Spirit," which has been so apparent in all our teams. The same hard and earnest co-operation by all, with the advantage of another year's experience, resulted in many great improvements, although the team lost six men by graduation and their places were taken up mostly by Freshmen. The year was also very important in that the "multiple kick" was developed; a kick that is looked upon to revolutionize the kicking game in a few years.

The call for candidates was sent out and all reported on September 5th. About forty Freshmen were ready for work, besides the veterans. These youngsters were taken in hand by Coach George Foster Sanford himself, and soon became acquainted with his methods. Since Neilson Field was being fixed over, the squad practiced upon a field loaned to the college by Dr. Mettler, situated on the other side of the river. Here the team worked until after the Washington and Lee game. All during this period "Sandy" was assisted by Coaches Gargan, Nash, Seiler and Hazel.

Because of the epidemic of infantile paralysis the opening of college was postponed until October 3rd, and therefore our first game with Albright was canceled, but during this time the team was rapidly rounding into mid-season form.

On the 30th of September the opening contest was played with Villanova at Neilson Field. The game, although hotly contested, clearly showed the superiority of the Scarlet. The game was won by straight football to the tune of 33-0.

Two weeks later, October 14th, the Washington-Lee team appeared as the opponents. It was the 150th anniversary of the founding of the college, and in all about ten thousand people were present. The team had been badly weakened a few days before by injuries to some of the best men, but in spite of this handicap Rutgers put up a fine, scrappy game, and after an exhibition of steady pounding the score stood 13-13 in one of the most interesting contests seen on Neilson Field in years.

Our next encounter was with Brown at Providence and was one of the hardest fought games ever witnessed at Brown. For three quarters we led by a score of 3-0, and clearly outplayed our opponents in every department of the game. In the fourth quarter Brown broke away for a few long runs and the final score stood 21-3 in their favor. It was a wonderful game, but the hardest of the hard to lose.

With the team in only fair shape after the Brown game, the Scarlet journeyed to Newark and battled with Holy Cross. The contest was played at Wiedenmayer's Park and was a disappointment to a large crowd. The team seemed overtrained, but fought with all the characteristics of a Rutgers team and came out a victor by the score of 14-7.

November 11th found West Virginia in New Brunswick under the leadership of Rodgers, of All-American fame. This game was a very hard one from beginning to end, the final score being 0-0, with the ball in the middle of the field.

A rest was given the Scarlet on November 18th, and a week later Dickinson was played at New Brunswick. The Scarlet showed up in fine form and the game was won, 34-0, after a very interesting exhibition of one-sided football.

On Thanksgiving Day Washington-Jefferson was played at the Polo Grounds. In one of the best games ever seen in New York the Scarlet lost, but only after a hard and bitter fight, and when the final whistle blew Washington-Jefferson was the victor by a score of 12-9. It was a game full of thrills; a contest which stands out in football as being one of the finest of the year.

It is difficult to say to whom the praise for our season is due, for it has been the unceasing co-operation of the alumni that has made the season possible. Coach Sanford certainly deserves our heartiest thanks for his sacrifices for the college, and we greatly appreciate all he has done for us. The work of the other coaches, who gave their time and energies to the team, certainly is to be commended. The "Scrubs," those who have worked the whole season and those who have done the most in getting the team into condition, deserve great credit. So we may say that we owe our fine team to the hearty support of alumni, coaches, scrubs and student body.

The outlook for next year is especially bright, and under the leadership of Captain-elect Rendall, whose playing is always of the highest order, we may confidently expect the most successful season in our whole history.

Next year's schedule shows many changes in our opponents. Games with Trinity, Syracuse, Penn State and Lafayette have been arranged.

REPRESENTED by two strong teams last season, Rutgers was able to maintain her supremacy at our national game. The Varsity developed slowly into an excellent team. Although a little weak in hitting, its fielding was of the highest order all through the year. Under the leadership of Captain Browning the team finished the season in a blaze of glory.

In spite of a poor start, the team soon struck its stride and played in fine form. Victories over N. Y. U., Stevens and Delaware, with many exciting games with other teams, followed in close succession.

The final game was played with Stevens at New Brunswick on June 12th. This contest was one of the best seen here in a number of years, and was not won until after eleven innings of the best baseball either team had put up during this season was fought through. The final score of 4-3 in our favor ended the season.

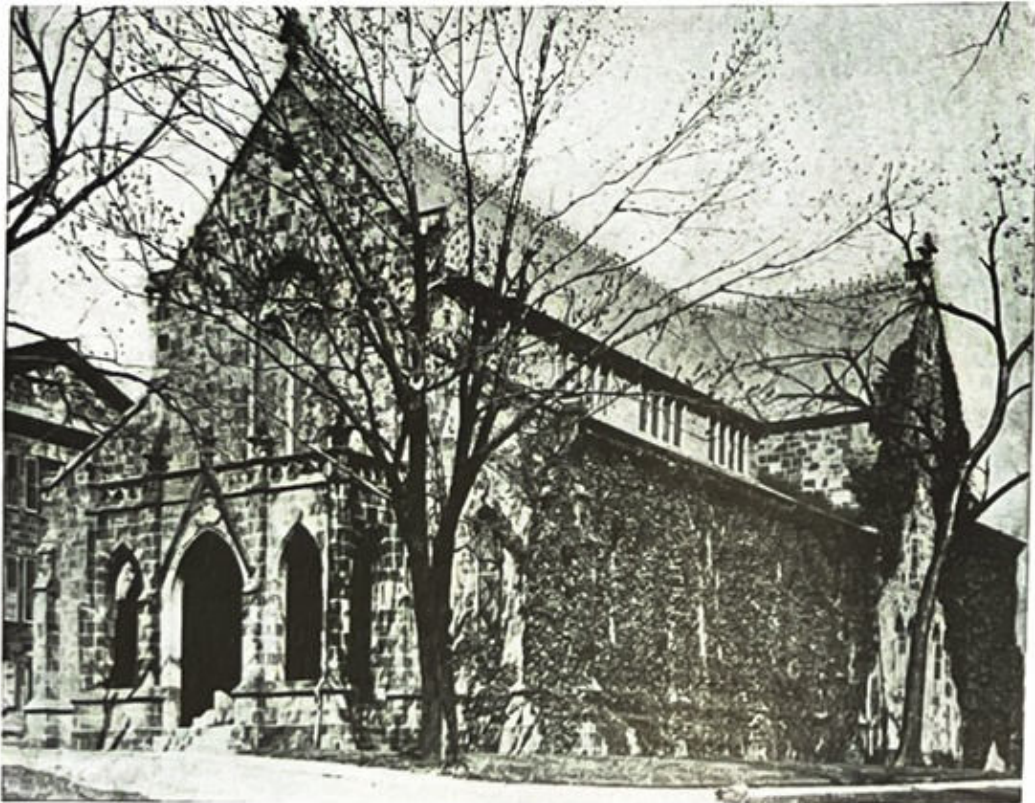

This year, with the loss of only two men and under the leadership of Captain Waterfield, should be one of the most successful years in the history of baseball at Rutgers.

Through the efforts of Mr. L. F. Loree, the Scarlet was represented for another year by a second team, called the "Reserves." The "Reserves" won all their games and deserve a great deal of credit for their successful season. This team accomplished in a great measure its purpose; that of bringing the college into closer touch with the different high and preparatory schools of this and other states.

Track Season of 1916

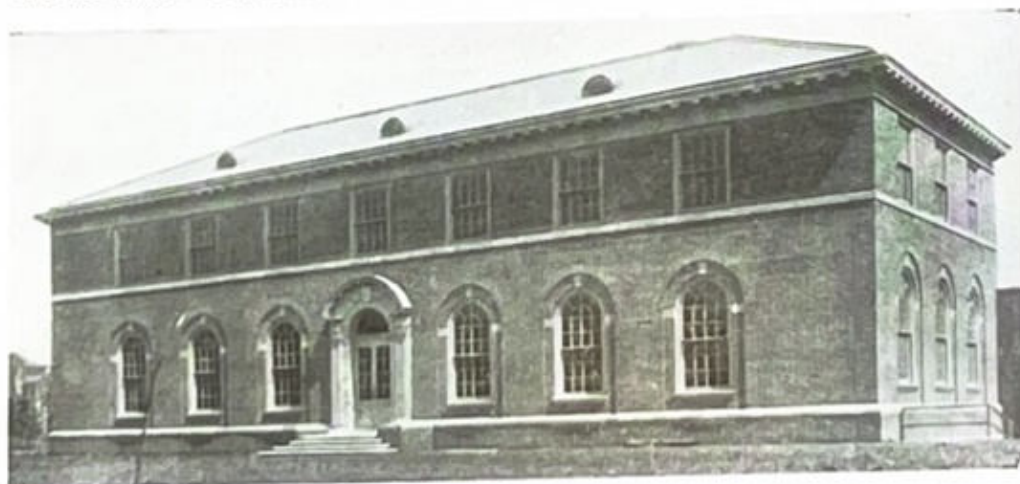

LAST season registered another successful track season to the long list of Scarlet victories. The team is credited with two victories and but one defeat, while the relay team not only won first place at the Penn Relays but succeeded in breaking the record for their class. In the Middle States Conference, Rutgers captured third place. Nash did credit to the team by winning second place in the Intercollegiate Pentathlon. During the season college records in four events were broken and one equaled. Captain Segur broke his own record in the 120-yard hurdles by one-fifth of a second; the quarter-mile record was broken by one and four-fifths seconds by Coleman, '16; Wettyen, '17, broke the 880-yard run by two seconds; Breckley, '19, broke the pole vault record by eight and three-quarters inches; Coleman, '16, tied the 100-yard dash record of ten seconds.

The first dual meet with Swarthmore was won only after a hard-fought contest. Lafayette proved to be too strong for the Scarlet, the final score being 62-50 in their favor. The last meet, which was held with Stevens, was won with little difficulty.

The team will greatly feel the loss of Segur, Coleman, Nash, Bowles, Reed and Folensbee, but the fall Inter-Class Meet and the Cross Country Run have brought out some very good new material, especially in the Freshman Class. This year the college looks for a very successful track team under the able leadership of Captain Wettyen.

THE VARSITY this year started under a great handicap, having only two men left from last year's team, but through the untiring efforts of Coach Frank Hill a well balanced organization resulted. Although only four of the nine games played were won, the team made a very creditable showing, considering the lack of veteran material.

The season started with Albright and the team showed up very well, winning by a score of 39-33. The next week Rutgers traveled to New York and played C. C. N. Y., one of the fastest teams in intercollegiate circles. Rutgers was defeated, but the game showed that Rutgers had the material for a winning team. The Muhlenberg game followed, and the team came back in great shape, winning easily in a well-played contest.

The next game was with the University of Pittsburgh, and in a lightning fast game Rutgers lost by one point, 22-21. At no time were the teams separated by more than two or three points; it was one of the most exciting games seen here in years. The University of Pennsylvania game was lost in a poorly played contest. Manhattan was beaten after a hard fought game, but Princeton defeated Rutgers after a hard fight.

Junior Week was ended by a game with Lafayette, and after a bitter struggle Rutgers again suffered defeat. Our men had trouble in finding the basket, although the score was very close until the last five minutes, when our opponents made ten points and won by the score of 31-19.

In the final game of the season with the University of Rochester, Rutgers won one of the greatest games ever seen on the home court. At half time Rochester led by nine points, but in the second half Rutgers scored thirteen field goals and won by a score of 35-29.

The team does not lose a single man this year, and with all the new material coming in it looks like a banner year for Rutgers in basketball. With the old team as a nucleus, Captain Wittpenn expects to turn out the greatest team in the history of the college.

The past tennis season has been one of great progress in the history of the sport at Rutgers. The schedule proved to be a most interesting one, the team having arranged to meet Princeton, Georgetown and the Navy. The contest with Princeton, however, scheduled to be held in the early spring, had to be canceled because of wet grounds. The trip to Georgetown and Annapolis was thoroughly enjoyed by the members of the team, although Rutgers did not come home with the "bacon." The matches held with the Navy were the closest of the season. Later in the spring the team traveled to Union for the annual contest with that college and returned home victorious by a score of 4-2. Rutgers defeated Stevens again this year in a finely contested series of matches.

Gym Season of 1917

THE gym season just past was far from being a success, for Rutgers did not win any of the three dual meets. The reason seems to lie in the fact that there were not enough good second men who could score second and third places and so turn the score a few points when the meet was close. The heaviest blow suffered by the team was the loss of the star flying ring performer on account of mid-year exams, which happen about the time of year so that the greatest disadvantage is sustained by the gym team. Then, too, former Captain Chambers was kept out of the first two meets on account of a sprained ankle. However, in spite of it all, a closely contested meet was held with Haverford, which ended with a score of 30 to 24, and another with N. Y. U., with a score of 36 to 18. An exhibition meet was held with Princeton and then the last meet was lost to Yale by the score of 34 to 20.

The one bright spot of the season's work was the winning of the Intercollegiate Club Swinging Championship by Captain Summerill and thus returning to Rutgers the title for the eighth time in the nineteen years of intercollegiate competition. This honor was held by Rutgers for five consecutive years, the last of which was won in 1914 by W. W. Summerill, '14, a brother to the present champion.

The graduation of five men from the team this year will leave vacancies that will be hard to fill. Yet with a nucleus of six experienced men to build upon it is hoped that with efficient direction towards making a perfectly balanced team a most successful season will be had next year.

Swimming Team, 1916-17

Captain.....VINCENT J. GALLAGHER, JR.
Manager.....MICHAEL H. HIGGINS
Coach.....JAMES H. REILLY

THIS season's success—yes, we shall say success—is based not on winning scores, but upon perseverance. Neither was luck against us, only in one instance, when we lost our best man, Lukens. The secret is that we were not out this year to win, but to develop the team to a higher degree of ability. We did this in two ways, first by meeting opponents of higher standard in the aquatic world, and secondly by becoming an associate member of the Intercollegiate Swimming Association. This entitles us to send men to compete for the individual championships of that league.

Mr. James H. Reilly, our coach, is credited with these wise actions, as well as his great efforts to develop the team. This season the team has suffered little change from that of last year; it has lost only one man by graduation and has received in addition one man, Brown, from the Freshman Class, who is of promising talent.

The meet with Columbia was the first of the season and was lost by the score of 43-10. Improving steadily, the team next met Swarthmore, who won the meet, 32-27. The teams of Princeton, Syracuse and Williams were met and fortune still favored our adversaries. Two meets are still to be held, in which the team is confident of victory, being in its best condition.

REPORT ON THE

Like last year, the sport was carried on independently of the Athletic Association, being maintained by the receipts from the meets.

The second season ends with perhaps not a brilliant career for the year itself, but an advancement toward making for the future of swimming at Rutgers an equality with its other sports, and an equality in the sport in any college.

The Junior Prom given by the Class of 1918 was one of the prettiest affairs ever held in the Ballantine Gymnasium. The color scheme of lavender, white and gold was distinctively pleasing. The starry white and lavender streamers hung from the rafters; the center piece and hanging baskets of smilax, the artistically draped wall coverings of white and gold, and the columns decorated with smilax changed the hall into a magnificent veranda. What could have been more beautiful than to see the fair dancers, in gowns harmonious and mellow in color, swaying to and fro in the light of the moon hung in a corner of the hall?

The music by Markels and the supper by Bruns were the best ever in the opinion of everyone. The entire evening was one of extreme gratification to the committee in charge, who labored for the Prom's success.

The Senior Council has come to be a very important organization in the undergraduate life of the college. In all matters concerning the general welfare, internal complications, relations with the faculty and issues that arise in regard to the actions of individuals or groups of individuals, the council serves as a means of settlement and advice. Its decisions, while nominally recommendations, have the strength of actual and positive decrees and have come to be recognized as such by the student body.

The past year has seen a very successful number of sessions and has shown the council to be an indispensable part of the college administration.

TARGUM CABINET

The Targum 1916-17

THE TARGUM has aimed to chronicle college activities in a manner interesting to everyone and to voice student opinion on all matters relating to college and student welfare. The editors have especially encouraged the use of The Targum as a means of constructive criticism.

The year 1916-17 marks the fiftieth anniversary of The Targum. It first appeared in 1867 as an annual. However, we date the founding of the paper as 1869, when its monthly publication commenced. Literature and religion were given considerable space during the first decade. Of course, student activities constituted an interesting feature. The year 1880 marks the change from a monthly to a tri-weekly publication. Eight years later the interest shown in The Targum warranted a semi-monthly and in 1891 the first weekly issue appeared.

In outlining the history of The Targum it is interesting to note how the name "Targum" came to be applied to our college paper. During the year 1867 the Junior and Senior classes in Hebrew were studying under Dr. Campbell. In his lectures upon Hebrew literature he very frequently referred to the "Targum" of Oukelos and the "Targum" of Jonathan Ben Uzziel. They were translations or paraphrases of portions of the Old Testament in the Aramaic of Judaea. "Targum" means "interpretation." The word seemed to remain fixed in the minds of the students of Hebrew. Just before the first publication of the college paper as an annual in February, 1867, a number of undergraduates who were gathered together in a room in Hertzog Hall hit upon "The Targum" as being a very appropriate name.

It is hoped that as the college continues to grow in the future "The Targum" may never fail to "interpret" all that the men of Rutgers feel and do.

During the past few years the Y. M. C. A. has grown, as have all other student activities at Rutgers. The men who have been identified with its work have been true leaders and with their worthy cause have led more men into its paths than at any previous time. In fact, the Y. M. C. A. of to-day is almost too large for its quarters.

This growth is due in a large part to the conscientious work of our new Secretary. We are especially fortunate in having so fine a Secretary to succeed Mr. Phillips. Mr. Smart has been exceedingly busy making himself known to the student body so that he can do better work with them.

The different departments are doing especially good work. The Bible Study classes are being carried on in all the Fraternity Houses and in both the Dormitories under the college and seminary professors.

The Hand Book, edited by D. M. Abt and R. O. Bowlby, is a most valuable and well edited little book. It contains a vast store of information which is of vital importance to the Freshmen. It has been a great help in instructing them in the ways of Rutgers College and in instilling the Rutgers spirit in them.

Louis A. Cooley has done excellent social service work, having started a number of classes for the teaching of English to foreigners. He has also carried on quite extensive work in co-operation with the Troop Avenue Mission.

The Employment Committee up to date has placed about two hundred and fifty men in remunerative positions. This work deserves recognition, as it is becoming one of the most important branches of Y. M. C. A. work.

Deputations have been sent to Elizabeth, Newark, Madison, Trenton and Dumont, and have done remarkably good work for Rutgers and for the Y. M. C. A.

Eaglesmere is always the final point to which the year's work is directed. It is there that the men receive first-hand information and added incentive from the leading religious thinkers of the day. Last summer Rutgers sent a small but hard-working delegation, who have shown the fruits of their attendance at Eaglesmere by their excellent work, which has been both vigorous and efficient.

Perhaps the greatest work of the past year has been the raising of money for war relief work in prison camps abroad. This worthy cause, due to the generosity of the students, was well supported and resulted in the raising of $1,008. This was raised by popular subscription among the students. Rutgers is proud of her work in this field.

The reception given to the Freshmen in the Gymnasium was successful in its object—to acquaint the men with one another and to welcome them to Rutgers.

The Y. M. C. A. has adopted the five following objects and each new member is asked to acknowledge them. They are: 1. To lead students to faith in God through Jesus Christ as their divine Lord and Savior, according to the Holy Scriptures. 2. To lead students into membership and service of the Christian Church. 3. To promote their growth in Christian faith and character, especially through the study of the Scriptures. 4. To train them for work and leadership in applying the principles of Christ to the problems of human society. 5. To win their life devotion to the purpose of Christ for the evangelization of the world. This Association, with the above objects, hopes to fill the place in a man's religious life from the time he leaves home until he graduates from college.

HILOCLEAN is one of the most important organizations in Rutgers College. Although increasing emphasis is of late being laid upon scientific clubs, this society endeavors to promote literary interest and activity. The past year has been one of unusual success. The regular meetings have been instructive as well as entertaining and have lived up to the high standard of former years. Several lectures have been given upon various subjects of note and much spirited parliamentary practice has been held.

Interscholastic debating, carried on under the auspices of Philoclean, has shown great improvement in every particular. In the Sophomore-Freshman debate the society originated a movement which promises to bring about intense rivalry of a literary nature between the two lower classes. It is planned to make this inter-class contest an annual event.

The society invites all students who are interested in literary endeavor of any kind whatsoever to attend its meetings.

Though of only three years standing, the Interscholastic Debating Committee of the Philoclean Literary Society has accomplished a momentous work in the life of Rutgers College. The object of the committee is to promote debating among the high schools of New Jersey, and in this work the committee has been uniformly successful. This year there were more than sixty preparatory schools interested, and all the prominent educators of the state were watching the movement closely. The committee has been the means of bringing more and better men to Rutgers, and is looking forward to a still greater field of usefulness in the immediate future.

The object of the committee has been four-fold:

- (1) To encourage the art of debating as a school activity.
- (2) To develop in our secondary schools an active competition along literary lines.
- (3) To cement more closely the bonds of union between the secondary schools of New Jersey and Rutgers College.
- (4) To promote among the secondary schools an intelligent and vital interest in questions of a civic nature.

MILITARY training was first established in 1866, simultaneously with the State College and Scientific School, organized under the act of July 2, 1862, which provides federal financial support for state colleges which comply with its requirements. The Military Department has been reorganized during the past year to comply with the provisions of the National Defense Act of June 3, 1916, providing for units of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at colleges and universities.

The principal purpose of this Reserve Officers' Training Corps is to train young men of college standard so that they will be fitted to act as commissioned officers of the great citizen army, upon which the United States must depend in any national emergency requiring a resort to arms.

Instead of being required throughout the entire four years, military training is now required only in the Freshman and Sophomore years, and is a regular three-hour elective in the Junior and Senior years.

Under the present scheme there are five successive steps in the military training of college students, all being entirely voluntary, to-wit:

1. Required for two years.
2. Elective in third and fourth years.
3. Those completing the four years' course are eligible for appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps.
4. Those appointed to the Officers' Reserve Corps are eligible for appointment as temporary second lieutenants in the regular army for six months' training, with pay at the rate of $100 per month and allowances.
5. Those who take this six months' training are eligible for permanent appointment as second lieutenants in the regular army, with pay and allowance of about $175 per month.

Military scholarships are offered by the United States to those who have finished two years of the course, the only obligations being to continue the course through college and to attend two summer training camps of four weeks each.

These summer training camps are open to students of all classes, and the United States agrees to pay all necessary expenses of transportation, uniforms and subsistence for those who will attend.

Students taking the military course do not thereby increase in any way their obligations as citizens to render service to the state in case of necessity, but they are equipped to render such service more intelligently and efficiently if they should ever be called upon, and to serve as commissioned officers instead of in the ranks.

Beginning in September, 1917, service uniforms are to be furnished to students, without charge, for use in military training, and also the latest model in rifles.

Three non-commissioned officers from the regular army are now furnished as assistants to the commandant, they being:

- First Sergeant W. P. White, Infantry, retired.
- Sergeant C. F. Siebert, Infantry.
- Sergeant Algot Erlander, Infantry.

The Prohibition League has for its purpose the interesting of college men in a sane and careful study of one of the most vital questions facing the nation to-day. The issue has long since passed from the field of fanaticism and sentiment and is a practical problem which must be solved by this generation. The Intercollegiate Prohibition Association is now organized in nearly three hundred American colleges. The principal activities of the association are to promote study classes under competent leaders, to conduct a series of oratorical contests, to carry on deputation work in the immediate neighborhood of the institution, and in every way to prepare college men for leadership. It invites every man and woman in the colleges of to-day to study and to act on a great moral, social, economic and political issue.

Rutgers Glee and Mandolin Clubs

Season 1916—17

THE GLEE AND MANDOLIN CLUBS give promise of a very successful concert season this year. The Glee Club is being coached by Mr. Howard McKinney, '13, while Thorp, '17, is leader of the Mandolin Club. There has been a very gratifying response from the Freshman Class this year, and the result is that many of the club members are representatives of the class of '20. The initial concert of the season was held at South Bound Brook on November 24th, which proved to be a great success. Concerts have been booked for Elizabeth, Bloomfield, New York City, Dobbs Ferry, Tarrytown, Bridgeton, Roselle Park, Hackensack, with prospective concerts to be given on an Easter Vacation tour through southern Jersey. The home concert was given on February 23rd.

The Rutgers Glee and Mandolin Clubs were started in 1880, following a concert given in New Brunswick by the Princeton Glee Club. The organizers were J. R. Verbrycke, '81; A. F. Skinner, '83; J. W. Scudder, '83, and Loren Bragdon, '83. The first concert was given in Bound Brook on January 19th, 1881. Ever since their organization the Glee and Mandolin Clubs have been one of the most efficient mediums of advertisement to Rutgers. They have faithfully clung to their objectives—working for the college, promoting good fellowship, and developing musical ability among the students.

THE RUTGERS COLLEGE BAND is one of the latest additions to the list of student organizations. It was organized in February, 1916, under the Military Department with a membership of eighteen. Professor L. W. Kimball, who has had considerable experience as director of bands in other institutions, directed the efforts of the men, and out of a group of men of varying musical ability evolved the present band.

In the spring of 1916 the band furnished music for the military department during its out-of-door exercises. It also played at one baseball game. In the fall the men began rehearsing soon after college opened and were asked to lead the student parade to several football games. The band was taken to Newark to the Holy Cross game by the students. Thus through the parentage of the Military Department the band has found its place among undergraduate activities.

URING the year 1915-1916 Queens Players produced two successful plays. "The Fortune Hunter" was given during Junior Week in February. As a part of the Commencement Celebration in June the organization produced Beaumont and Fletcher's comedy, "The Knight of the Burning Pestle." This was the first attempt made by Queens Players to stage an old English play and it was pronounced a success by the large audience which attended the performance in the Gymnasium.

This year the production during the Junior Prom festivities was "The Importance of Being Earnest"—a comedy by Oscar Wilde. It was given in the auditorium of the New Brunswick High School and proved to be a very pleasing entertainment for the guests of the week-end.

The Queens Players in its short existence has come to fill a definite part in the life of Rutgers undergraduates—that of developing dramatic art. The success attained has been due largely to the untiring efforts and most creditable work of the coach, Miss Edna L. Barbour. The future of dramatics at Rutgers is very promising.

Deutsche Verein

Of extreme importance among collegiate organizations are the literary societies, and especially those which aim to study the language and literature of countries foreign to our own. Such societies not only offer men the opportunity to extend the scope of their class work in a modern language, but through an increased familiarity with that tongue, the student can so far as possible approach perfection in its use and thereby obtain the key to that country's thought and life—its literature.

This is the ideal to which the Deutscher Verein, organized under the officers: Albert W. Holzmann, President; Gustav Patz, Vice-President; John W. Armstrong, Secretary-Treasurer, is pledged—the study and promotion of an intelligent appreciation of German literature; in short, of all that is best among things German. And to that end the Verein has adopted a very progressive program—good speakers and adequate opportunity for discussion in German.

Among those who have addressed the Verein thus far are Dr. Newton, Dr. Payson, Dr. Hauch and Dr. Hock, of Newark. Faculty and student-body alike are cordially invited to attend the literary meetings of the Verein.

The Menorah Society of Rutgers College was organized in 1913. Its primary purpose is one of education; it aims to establish an understanding of Jewish culture and inheritance; it seeks to enrich the common treasury of American ideals and culture with the spiritual resources of the Hebrew people.

The society is all inclusive, non-partisan and non-sectarian. The membership consists of men of divers convictions; and private religious opinion is left wholly to the individual desire. It can readily be seen that the strength of the Menorah Society lies in the true catholicity of its spirit.

The Menorah Society, during the past year, arranged a series of lectures. Prominent men in the world of affairs appeared before the society and the members themselves prepared papers on pertinent subjects and led enthusiastic discussions. The work of the present year has shown much advance beyond that of the year before, and points to even better progress in the years to come.

JOSEPH M. ROBERTS, JR.....	Treasurer

The Rutgers College Agricultural Club was organized in October, 1908, for the purpose of promoting interest in agriculture among the college students, and for the purpose of creating a more friendly feeling between the professors and students of the agricultural course. All the college professors of agriculture are honorary members of the club and the membership is open to all undergraduates in the college who are pursuing the agricultural course or who expect to elect that course. The founders of the club realized the benefits to be derived from social contact with their professors and with each other. They also saw the necessity of a college man being able to stand on his feet in public and express himself intelligently. In pursuance of these ideas the early meetings were largely conducted by the students.

After the first year the plans for the meetings were changed and since then there have been very few occasions on which the students took an active part in the literary program. The meetings have usually been addressed either by an outside speaker or by a member of the faculty. The discussions are no longer restricted to agricultural topics. This year a series of joint meetings with the college Y. M. C. A. was arranged for the study of rural life problems, and one of these, which was addressed by Mr. Frederick Freeman, Eastern Field Secretary of County Y. M. C. A., proved one of the most interesting meetings of the year. During the years 1913, 1914 and 1915 a debate on some agricultural topic was held with the Short Course students. The Short Course men won the first year, but lost in each of the following years, and after the second successive defeat have failed to send us a challenge and the practice has had to be discontinued.

The Chemical Club was organized November 6th, 1908, and has met with success and prosperity since its creation. Its growing popularity is evident from the increase in membership, and the excellent audiences which attend the lectures throughout the year. All students taking the Chemistry course are eligible to membership. At the present time, the club consists of over fifty student members and the various professors and instructors connected with the Chemistry Department.

Much of the club's success is due to the exceedingly interesting and attractive manner in which our lecturers present their subjects. Dr. Wright gave a very interesting talk on the growth of the Monsanto Chemical plant at St. Louis. Dr. North delivered a lecture on the "Electric Furnace," which proved to be instructive as well as interesting. Prof. J. V. Lewis gave an illustrated lecture on the "Fundamental Chemistry of the Metal Mining District." Mr. Cowan, of the National Lead Company, of Brooklyn, is to be commended for his lecture on "Alloys of Lead and Tin."

The Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Club, which was founded at Rutgers in 1907, is the outgrowth of the Electrical Engineering Club. During the first two years, the club consisted only of students pursuing the course in electrical engineering. In 1909, the club was reorganized to include members of both the electrical and mechanical courses. From that time on the club has enjoyed great success in all its undertakings.

The club endeavors to bring before its members the more practical side of modern engineering, as well as to give its members practice and experience in reviewing and reporting on various articles from time to time.

Although membership in the Electrical and Mechanical Engineering Club includes only Seniors and Juniors, students from the lower classes are always welcome. The meetings are very interesting and instructive. The program consists of various papers, lectures and discussions on appropriate subjects delivered by the members and men prominent in engineering circles.

Civil Engineering Club

President	PAUL M. BOWEN
Vice-President	FRANCIS JOSEPH SCARR
Secretary and Treasurer	JOHN KINGSLEY POWELL
Historian	JOSEPH LESLIE CHAMBERS

The Civil Engineering Club was organized in 1908 as an organization of those students of the Junior and Senior years who were pursuing the course in civil engineering. A new virility was instilled into the club when, in 1915, sophomores in the course were made eligible for membership.

This last fact, coupled with the faithful and helpful co-operation of the faculty members of the club, has worked to a very successful and profitable year. The faculty members are Professors Titsworth, Morris, Lendall, Stevenson and Johnson.

Among the speakers of the season were Mr. A. B. Tremper, who gave an illustrated lecture on "The Manufacture and Use of Hollow Tile," and Mr. Thomas E. Crone, who spoke on "The Application of the Principle of the Vacuum to the Heating of Buildings." Interesting and instructive talks were also given by faculty members.

Vice-President	H. IRVING FAWCETT, '17
Secretary	CLIFFORD P. OSBORNE, '17
Treasurer	ROY F. LAYTON, '17

The value of the meetings of the Mathematics Club lies in the fact that an opportunity is given for the consideration and scientific study of those mathematical problems which can not be fully dealt with in the regular classroom work. At each meeting a paper is given by a member of the faculty or by an undergraduate member of the club. Discussions connected with the problem in question are always invited and in this way many of the finer points are brought out and emphasized.

This year interesting and instructive papers have been given in the following order: "The Cycloid," by Seidler, '17; "Newton's Analytical Triangle," by Mr. Rees; "A Locus Problem," by Prof. Morris.

Membership in this club is open to all those interested, and more especially to the students who are pursuing mathematics among their studies.

Biological Club

OFFICERS

President	LAWRENCE D. THOMPSON, '17
Vice-President	EDWIN A. SEIDMAN, '17
Secretary and Treasurer	GARNETT SUMMERILL, '18

The Biological Club meets semi-monthly to discuss subjects of interest to those pursuing the biology course. It is also intended that these meetings shall be of such a nature as to appeal to all students of the college.

During the past year the attendance has been very good and the enthusiasm shown by club members and supporters has been remarkable. The lectures pertaining to medical matters have been of great value to all, especially to those intending to study medicine in the future. The marked progress of the club during the past year may be credited directly to the loyal support given by the professors and members.

Some of the subjects discussed during the year have been: "Time Relation in Reference to Phototropism," by Dr. Moore, of the faculty; "The Regeneration of Tissue," by Dr. Loeb, of New York City; "Infantile Paralysis," by Dr. Anderson, of Squibs Laboratories, New Brunswick, N. J., and "Serums and Vaccines," by Dr. Alexander, also of Squibs Laboratories.

The Biology Club developed from the old Lab Club, which had its beginnings in September, 1895. The outgrowths from this club towards specialization were the Bacteriology and Agricultural Clubs, which were organized in 1908.

Opportunity

Ah! Yesterday! a day of no regrets,
 Which silently slid into the fretful present;
 No sooner born than like a flitting bird
 It drifts into the ever hopeful morrow.
 For by our good intentions do we build
 Mighty air-castles, which by a word, a look,
 A gesture, crumble down
 Into the ever hopeless past;
 That which we love we follow—
 E'en tho' it be through vales of tears;
 Or cleansing fires of sorrow;
 Yet through it all, there glides
 The ebb and flow of deep remorse
 For what we failed to do, when Chance
 Knocked—but finding entrance barred

The Cannon War

In the shadow of Queens College,
In the center of the grass plot,
Stands a cannon, grim and dingy
With the passing of the years;
With its muzzle buried earthward,
With its breach extended skyward,
With a hist'ry clothed about it
Which its form to us endears.

Years ago, on Princeton's campus,
In a vertical position,
Stood a cannon, large and heavy
(Half a ton, they say it weighed).
Princeton claimed she stole that cannon
From her rival, Rutgers College,
And each time a Rutgers student
O'er the tiger campus stray'd,
He was greeted by the taunting—
"Hey you, Rutgers, aren't you ever Going to come and get your gun?"

Once, nine sophomores from Old Rutgers,
Zealous of her far-famed glory,
Heard the jeer and they decided
That the joke was old enough.
They would show those Princeton fellows
That Old Queens was not a "has been,"
Not as lifeless and as dormant
As the tigers seemed to think!

All throughout the coming winter,
Plans and tactics were examined,
By the aid of which those sophomores,
Nine in number—were determined
To return to Rutgers campus,
To its rightful place, that cannon—
And thus ended jeering talk.

1916

Finally, with plans completed,
On an ev'ning late in April,
Loaded down with ropes and shovels,
Pick-axes, a trusty crowbar,
Hick'ry sticks and other sundries;
Those nine sophomores, grim, determined,
Left New Brunswick and to Milltown
On their secret errand bent,
Made their way, without announcing
What the goal or where they went.

Mister Vanderbilt (a farmer)
Hired to them his team and wagon;
Sent a man along to guide them
O'er the roads, now black and silent
Through the darkness, on they travelled Till, about an hour past midnight,
Loomed from out the inky blackness
Buildings of the rival college.

Stealthfully they crossed the campus.
O'er the grounds of a professor,
Through those silent hours of midnight,
Cautiously they made their progress.
Finally they reached the cannon—
Posted sentinels to guard them
Lest some tiger-man returning
From a frolic, there should find them.

Then an hour was spent in digging
Deep around the trophy's muzzle,
Buried far below the surface,
Hidden half beneath the campus.
When at last the dirt was loosened,
Round the gun strong ropes they twisted
And with crowbar and with hick'ry
Tugged away with all their vigor.

Two long hours it took to carry
Those one thousand pounds of metal
Stealthfully to where the wagon
And the horses waited for them.

Just as daylight reached the campus,
With one last stupendous effort,
Muscles s'training to the limit,
Lifted they into the wagon
That old cannon which for ages
Was the joy of Princeton men.

Dirty, tired, and with no breakfast,
Just in time for hist'ry classes,
Those nine sophomores reached Old Rutgers,
Laid their trophy on the campus—
Went at once to recitation.

1918

How the tale could be continued!
Like the brook—"go on forever,"
Telling how the warlike sophomores
When the students heard the story,
On the shoulders of their comrades
In victorious march were carried.
How the men from vanquished Princeton
Tried in vain to get the cannon
And, unable, stole the rifles
Of the valiant R. C. C.

How the faculties and townfolks
Of both places were excited
And the taunt from jeering students
Spread into collegiate warfare.
How at last, by arbitration
It was proved that Rutgers College
Had no right to keep the cannon
So victoriously won!

Finally, in grim procession,
With policemen sitting on it,
With their fingers on the triggers
Of the pistols in their hands;
With the townfolks and the students
Running after it and shouting
In their bitter disappointment,
That "the gun should not go back"—
Then it was the stolen trophy
Through the streets of old New Brunswick,
From the campus of Old Rutgers,
To its former place in Princeton—
At the stern decree of Justice—
On a truck, was taken back.

Thus was gained and lost by Rutgers
That old cannon of the "war."

But years later, on Queens campus,
Was another—less historic
Than the famous one of yore—
Placed in vertical position
Like the one down there at Princeton,
So that future generations
Of the sons of Rutgers men
Never should forget the story
Of those nine who won the glory
For Old Rutgers
In the famous "cannon war."

So our hearts cling "closer than the ivy"
To that cannon standing there
In front of Queens;
And as long as Rutgers College
Through the years dispenses knowledge,
Will we love that dear old cannon
Down at Queens.

The Commemoration Service

HE celebration commenced on Friday morning, October 13, with a commemoration service in the old First Reformed Church, at the corner of Neilson and Paterson Streets. Since many of the sturdy men who took a large part in the founding of the college, and in maintaining it through the struggle of its period of youth, were connected with this old church as pastors or members, that this part of the exercises should take place in the old edifice seemed appropriate.

In the procession, which formed on the campus and marched impressively through the center of the town, were fifteen hundred delegates, trustees, faculty, alumni, and undergraduates of the college. Hundreds of people watched the procession, George Street being thickly lined with spectators along the entire line of march. The variegated colors, the flowing robes and stiff mortarboards of the academic costume presented a unique and picturesque appearance.

Dr. W. H. S. Demarest, President of the College, and Hon. James F. Fielder, Governor of New Jersey, were at the head of the procession as it entered the church. But few visitors could obtain admittance, the procession almost entirely filling the pews. After the invocation by Rev. John W. Beardslee, '60, Governor Fielder presiding, the assemblage sang the hymn of the Reformation, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God." The strength and dignity of the hymn seemed to typify completely the spirit that has for one hundred and fifty years marked the life of the college "On the Banks of the Old Raritan."

Governor Fielder, speaking on behalf of the State of New Jersey, warmly congratulated the college on the record it had established. He spoke of the intimate relation existing since 1825 between the college and the state, pointing out the benefits which both have enjoyed from the relationship.

As Dr. Demarest rose to deliver his address, a remarkable tribute was paid to him by the congregation. Every person rose, and a burst of applause, which lasted several minutes, followed. The address delivered by Dr. Demarest was a most pleasing, concise and interesting history of the college. It included in detail the events connected with its founding, its fight for existence, its growth in latter times, and its many illustrious graduates.

After the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," Rev. Ame Vennema, President of Hope College, spoke in behalf of the Reformed Church in America. "The Reformed Church," he said, "established Rutgers, and cared for it in its time of trouble." He mentioned the similarity of Rutgers to Hope College, the two institutions being the chief sources of ministers for the Reformed Church.

Chevalier W. L. F. C. Van Rappard, Minister from the Netherlands, felicitated the college on behalf of his Queen. The United States, he remarked, would profit by a closer study of Dutch history and of Dutch ideals. Rutgers, because of her early closeness to the Dutch language and literature, should, he declared, take the lead in advancing such study.

The commemoration service was closed with the singing of the hymn "America," and the Benediction by Rev. Henry E. Cobb, '84.

The Anniversary Pageant

N the afternoon of Friday, October 13, amid a scene of natural beauty on the gently sloping shores of the pond at the College Farm, with the hills on the other side rising as a natural background, the Rutgers Anniversary Pageant was presented before an audience of alumni and visitors. The cloudy skies threatened the failure of the pageant, and when a few drops of rain fell shortly before the time set for commencing, it seemed certain that the pageant would have to be postponed. The audience was diminished greatly in numbers by the adverse weather. Despite the handicap, the pageant, written and produced by Professor Clarence Ward, who deserves most of the credit for the immense task, was a complete success.

The pageant was a portrayal of the history of the college, presenting in a wealth of beauty and suggestion, the various events that have occurred during the one hundred and fifty years of Rutgers life. It consisted of a prologue, six episodes, and an epilogue.

The prologue was a symbolical representation of the secular and theological learning of the Middle Ages. The Trivium and Quadrivium of learning were represented by symbolical characters, while the secular learning was represented by a band of knights and squires, and the theological learning by a company of monks chanting the "Dies Irae." From this life and thought of the Middle Ages sprang such universities as Oxford and Cambridge, Bologna and Padua, Prague and Heidelberg, Paris and Salamanca, Leyden and Utrecht, from which in turn our own colleges and universities have descended.

The six episodes were scenes of events of interest in the history of the college and of New Brunswick. The first episode portrayed a party of Dutch settlers being ferried across the Raritan to New Brunswick, which was chartered December 19, 1730, and settled long before then by John Inian and others. The earliest settlers of the town were English, but a moderate number of Dutch came from Albany in 1730, living along the street which they named Albany Street. It was these Dutch people who later felt the need for our college as a place of learning for men who were to be their ministers.

The second episode pictured the petitioners for a Royal Charter for the proposed college before William Franklin, Governor of the Province of New Jersey, and the granting of the petition, in the name of George III. The petitioners were all prominent men of the colony, some Dutch and some English. The name Queen's College was probably chosen by Franklin in honor of the consort of George III., Queen Charlotte.

The scene in the third episode was the reading of the Declaration of Independence in New Jersey by Col. John Neilson, of the Colonial Militia. The paper was brought to New Brunswick by a rider from Philadelphia. The reading of the Declaration was followed by great applause from the people, and the marching of the militia to the tune of Yankee Doodle.

The episodes represented the events in chronological order, the time of the fourth being 1809, the laying of the cornerstone of Queen's Building by Ira Condict, President of the infant college, in the presence of the trustees, faculty, students of the college, and the townspeople. This scene typified the early growth and expansion of Queen's.

The time of the fifth episode was 1840, presenting a ball at old Buccleuch Mansion, at that time, perhaps, the center of social life of New Brunswick. The sixth scene was the flag raising over Rutgers College in 1861, at which Hon. Theodore Frelinghuysen, President of the college, and the Hon. G. B. Adrain were the speakers. There was unbounded enthusiasm among the students, a number of whom had already enlisted in the army.

The epilogue contrasted the learning of our time with that represented in the prologue. Instead of the Trivium and Quadrivium were twenty characters symbolizing the important branches of modern learning. The banners of the ten colonial colleges, in the order of their founding, Rutgers being eighth, were carried on the stage. As each college banner appeared a chorus sang the college song of that institution. When the group was completed a color guard with the Stars and Stripes formed the center of the tableau, and with the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" the pageant ended.

On a typically clear blue October day, and before one of the greatest crowds that ever saw a football game on Neilson Field, the lithe, powerful eleven from Washington and Lee and our own great team fought up and down the field to a 13-13 tie. It was more than a football game for Rutgers, it was an occasion which will live in the heart of every undergraduate for years.

The stands held thousands of Rutgers men, gathered from far and near in honor of the One Hundred and Fiftieth Anniversary of the founding of the college. To describe the spirit which animated this mighty body of alumni would be to tell the story of Rutgers for generations.

Before the game, the entire alumni and undergraduate body marched through the town, passed the gymnasium, where each class cheered the team standing on the steps, and then marched on to the field. At the head of this column were ten white-haired men who formed part of the team representing Rutgers in the first intercollegiate football contest in 1869, when Princeton was defeated.

At three o'clock, before this great Rutgers crowd, with the cheers of the Rutgers-of-today ringing from one side of the field, and those of Rutgers-of-yesterday echoing from the other, Kelly received the Southerners' kick-off and the nerve-racking contest began. Urged on by the eager thousands in the stands and their own desire to make a great victory a fitting climax to a great celebration, the Scarlet commenced a sturdy attack, which resulted in a steady march toward the Washington and Lee goal. Inopportune penalties blasted all hopes of a score and the ball went to the enemy. Despondency and gloom settled over the Rutgers stands when the tall and rangy Captain Young led his fast team in a swift and sure attack, which netted the Southerners a touchdown. Before the quarter ended, Hazel kicked a field goal and when the whistle blew the score stood: Washington and Lee 6, Rutgers 3.

At the beginning of the second quarter, the Southern eleven were quick to follow up their advantage. Using the same swift slashing attack, under the leadership of the elusive Young, they crossed the Rutgers goal line for the second time, Sorrels carrying the ball and Young kicking the goal. Score at the end of first half: Washington and Lee 13, Rutgers 3.

With the clouds of defeat beginning to gather and the bitter conclusion being forced upon all, the undergraduates poured out of the stands and after a "pee-rade" formed their "R" in the center of the field. "On the Banks" was sung by all with great ardor and devotion.

There was not a heart that did not beat a bit faster with hope, which rapidly changed into a delirious joy when, after Washington and Lee had fumbled the kick-off at the beginning of the third quarter, Wittpenn threw a pass to Hazel, who carried the ball over for Rutgers' touchdown. Hazel kicked the goal and the third quarter closed with the score: Washington and Lee 13, Rutgers 10.

During the last quarter Washington and Lee fought with a dogged determination to stave off the Scarlet attack, but their offensive power was gone. The score was tied early in the last quarter when once again Hazel kicked a field goal. The stands hoped and prayed for time, but before Rutgers could cross the Washington and Lee goal line, or negotiate a field goal, the whistle blew and one of the finest of football contests had come to a close.

My love, and do you love me?
I asked for the hundredth time,
He smiled, and kissed me tenderly,
The joy of having him mine!

My love, and do you worship me?
I gaily questioned him.
Except my God, I adore but thee,
He softly answered then.

My love, and do you think of me?
I merrily sought his eyes;
From sun to sun, from dawn to eve,
Ever and only, of thee!

Spring

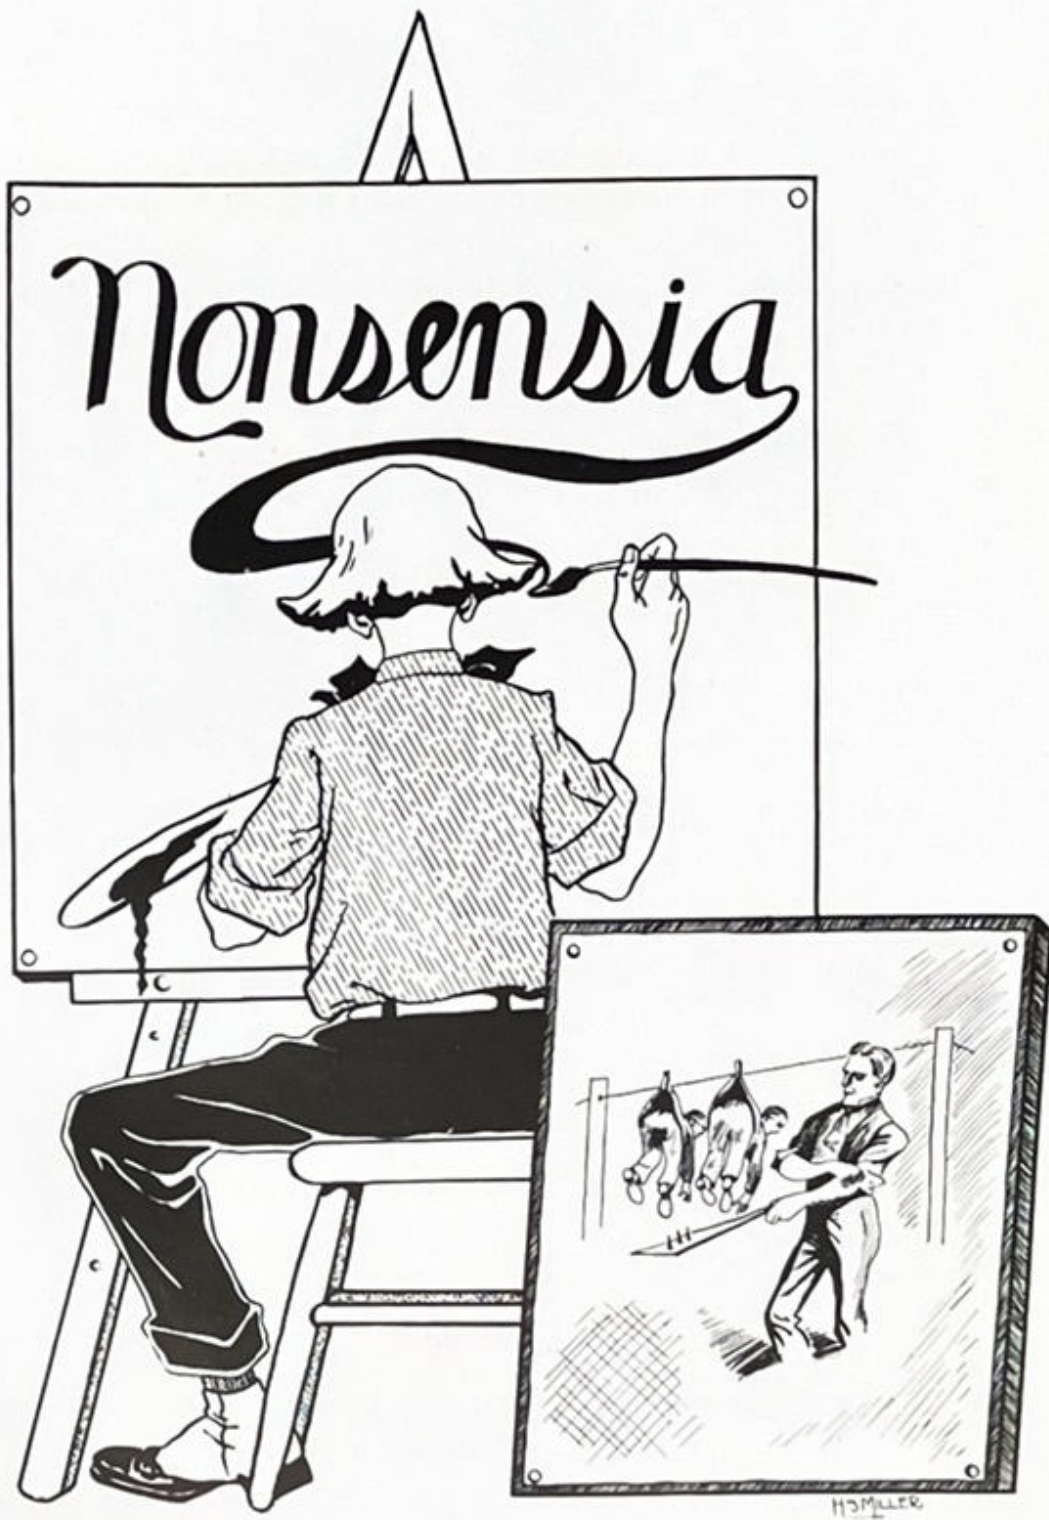

Oftentimes through the night I hear
The sweet, low whisper of the wind;
Telling the flowers spring has come
With its genial warmth, and kindly rain,
And the mating-robin, full-throated, sings
To his listening love in the apple grove,
Whence fragrant odors of blossoms creep,
Through the upshooting grass and softening earth.
And wee little buds, in shallow beds
Of loamy earth, just dare to peep
Up through the soil to greet the dawn.
And pay a bashful tribute to gentle Spring.
Oh! the feeling of Spring in the air.
The deepening blue, in the sky o'erhead;
The cottony heap of fleecy clouds
That wantonly play in the sky so clear.
All Nature rouses out of her sleep—
To greet the oncoming of Spring;
Even the dark, murky shadows grim—
Smile and laugh, when May dances in;
Laughs at her fancies, plays with her capers.
All the world is clothed in joy,
From the tiniest bud to the blood-hued rose;
Oh! we thank thee for this gift—
The Spring—thy favorite season of the year.

THE CLASSICALS

The men who grind
For A's to find,
Who think all else is naught,
But that they get
By work and sweat
Phi Jakie keys to flaunt.

'Twas all the rage
To be a sage,
A thousand years ago,
But the things that count
As the centuries mount,
Are the kopecks, cash and dough.

THE ENGINEERS

The engineers
Have many fears
As through their course they wander.
They have to cram
For each exam,
In study their time they squander.

But when at last
Their work they've passed,
And out in the world they go,
You can make a bet
That they will get
The kopecks, cash and dough.

Engineers

THE GENERAL SCI'S

Here are the boys
Whose lives are joys,
In work they never tarry.
Their only dreams,
Their only themes,
Are the girls they're going to marry.

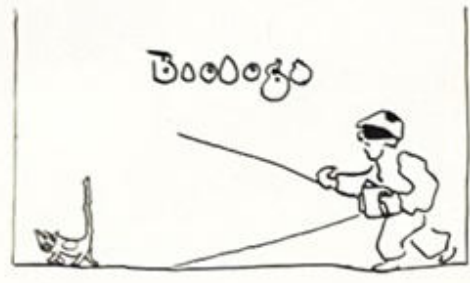

In bed they sleep,
Late hours they keep,
By going to the show.
Their marks are bad,
They go to dad
For the kopecks, cash and dough.

THE CHEMISTS

The chemists are a fearful crew,
Who high explosives make,
And often flunk before they're through
And re-exams they take.

They seem to shoot an awful line,
Yet all of us well know
That chemists always seem to find
The kopecks, cash and dough.

THE BIOLOGS

Rare plants they pluck,
 Dead cats they cut,
 Their long suit's vivisection.
 They never go
 Down to the show,
 With joy they've no connection.

They work 'mid smells,
 And moans and yells,
 Cat's insides they must know,
 And this their end—
 To have to spend
 The kopecks, cash and dough.

THE AGGS

The whiskered farmers go to work
 At four o'clock each morn,
 And if the hired help don't shirk,
 They hoe a hill of corn.

We give the hicks a merry raz
 As on their way they go
 And try to raise a bumper crop
 Of kopecks, cash and dough.

Visits to the Haunts of the Great

No. 1. A Literary Seance

SCENE—A disorderly class-room, whose walls are adorned with brightly colored maps of irrelevant places, together with portraits of unintelligent-appearing authors and their humble birthplaces. At a desk presiding over the room sits the professor in a brown study, the index finger in the conventional position supposed to indicate thought points arbitrarily to the approximate position of the intellect. The bell has rung some ten minutes since. After sounds suggesting a cataclysm of nature, a body of students enter, singing, followed by a half dozen grinds, bearing texts.

Chant of the students (with deep feeling):

“Was this the face that launched a thousand ships
And burned the topless towers of Illium?”

Professor calls the roll several times with varying results.

Professor—Mr. Z., did you prepare the lesson to-day?

Mr. Z. (from his trance)—No, sir; I couldn't find the time.

Chorus of the students—Stick him!

Professor (to a grind)—And you, Mr. G.? I trust that you can enlighten us a little, as Spencer might have said, had he thought of it. (Aside.) A great man, gentlemen, and aias, one little read.

Mr. G. (the poet laureate)—The promulgation of the dactyloglyph according to Aristotle, in the Poetica, was the result of a lateral transfusion—

Chorus of insomnolent students—Hey, Eddie.

Professor—Excellent. (Holding up right hand and beaming benignly.) How many agree with me?

Loud yelps of assent, commingled with snores.

Professor—I now want to quote one of my favorite authors. Kindly give me your attention and note the poetic thought:

The wind was blowing through the trees;
How do the holes get in Swiss cheese?

Very original, is it not? Again, how many agree with me? (Further assent.) Now, Mr. B., explain the significance of the poem as a whole, and show how the quotation affected the development of the English drama.

Mr. B. (in despair)—I didn't get that far.

Professor—Not a valid excuse at all, Mr. B. (Smiles.) Is it?

Two men in the back row cease matching pennies as the stern professorial glance comes their way.

Professor—Mother Bombie was a fine play, gentlemen. We will study it to-morrow.

Gentleman in the back row now shuts his magazine and joins two others outward bound for Louie's.

Student—Who was the greatest exponent of the drama, Aristotle, Theda Bara or Jake Besas?

Professor (oblivious, but ecstatic)—Gentlemen, the muse is upon me; I must compose; the class is dismissed.

(Exeunt omnes.)

Haunt Two

(Our deepest apologies, Mr. Kipling.)

Grub of McCormack's, always cold,
Board that McCormack says is fine,
That daily ration to us doled
For real home cooking makes us pine;
Its flavor weird we can't forget;
We taste it yet, we taste it yet.

The hope for good grub quickly dies,
The appetites of all depart;
The ham and beans have met our eyes,
Seditious thoughts fill every heart.
Oh, strength of mind, be with us yet,
Till we have "et," till we have "et."

Though called, the waiters pass away,
And go to sit beside the fire;
In vain we struggle to be gay,
Our protests rouse McCormack's ire;
Down to the Jersey we must get,
It's one safe bet, it's one safe bet.

If full of wrath we seek to snoop
Or otherwise put on false airs,
We find a dark thumb in the soup,
And in the butter (?) several hairs.
Oh, Mac, the profits you must net!
Our goats you get, our goats you get.

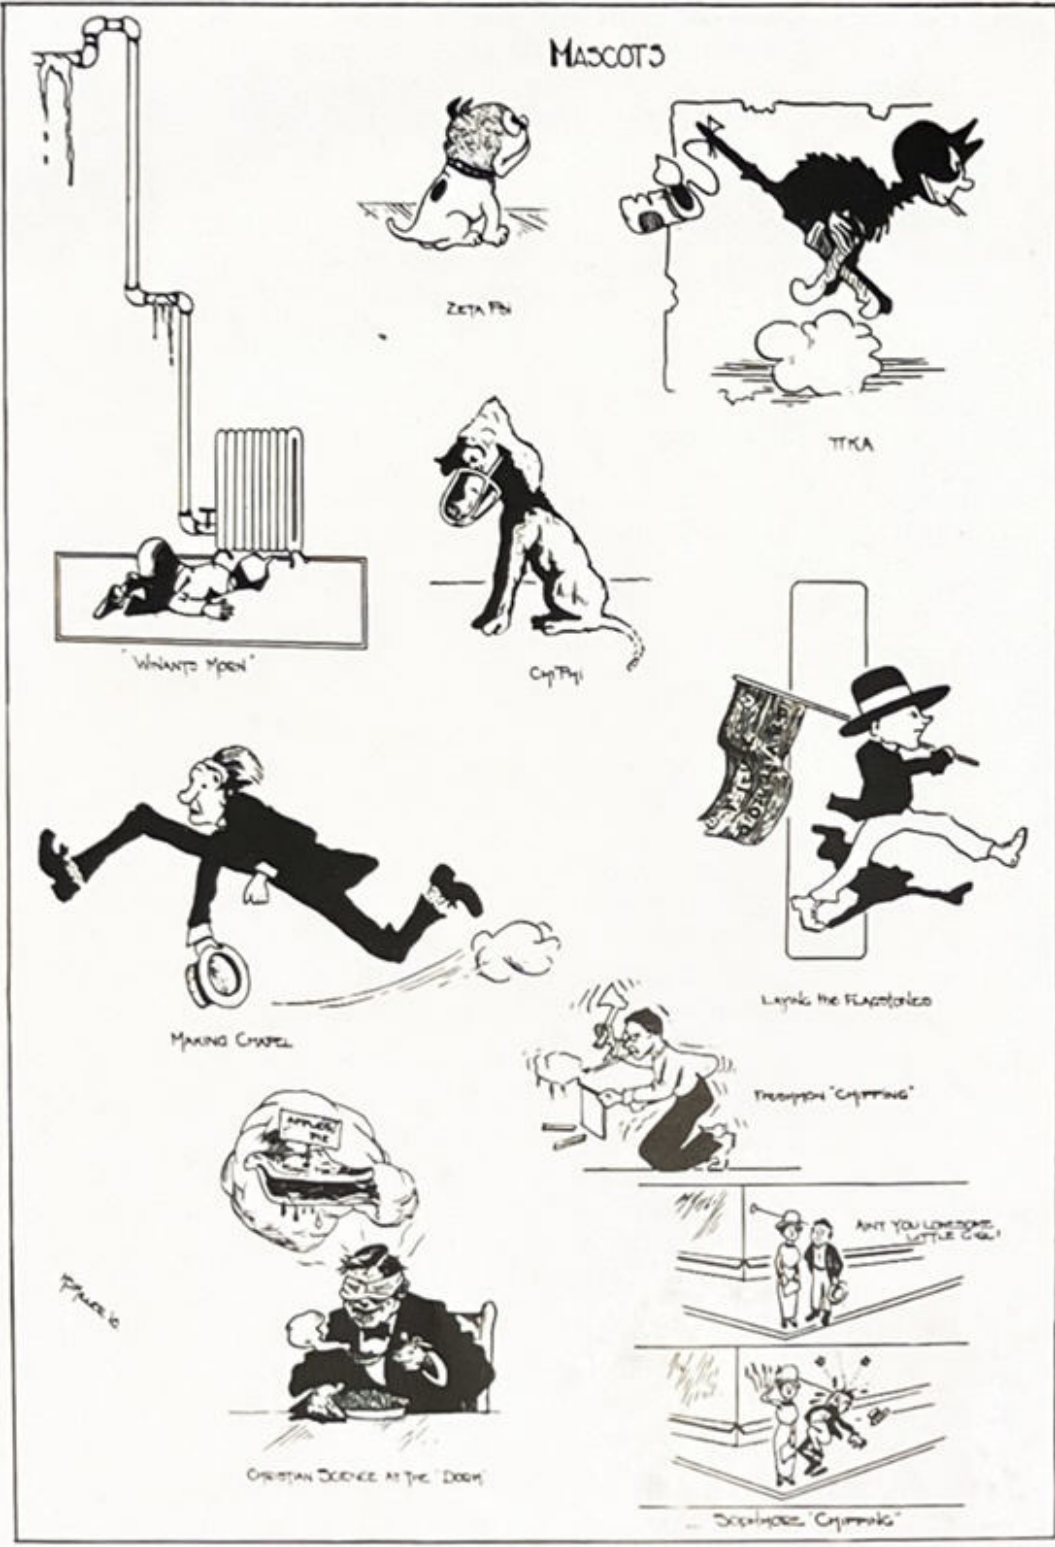

For innocence that puts its trust
In beef croquettes, creamed eggs or stew
And learns, as everybody must,
To shut one's eyes the whole meal through,
Were this the only place to board—
Thy mercy on us students, Lord.

The "Inner Workings" of the Faculty

Haunt Three

This is the class-room of Johnnie's,
The Sophomore and Junior electives,
Desiring to know the world's history,
Wend their ways hence o'er the campus.
Loud from the Queen's College belfry
The deep-voiced bell the hour ringeth,
Ringeth and giveth their freedom
Those of the class just preceding.
Out from the class-room they rush,
Excited and brain-fagged and weary,
Glad to get out in the clear open air,
Over they rush fast to Louie's
To drown all their troubles in milk-shakes.
The cave of the winds let us enter,
Investigate all of its mysteries,
Find out the why and the wherefore
Of all of this nervous prostration.
Here on the left as we enter
Is the throne of the worthy preceptor;
This is the fountain of knowledge,
From hence emanates all the wisdom.
Enters the worthy professor,
Efficiently runs o'er the roll-call,
Making facetious remarks
And kidding the aggs as he does so.
Then he begins on his lecture;
In vain does the class try to follow—
Notes they take in profusion.
Fruitless, indeed, is their effort.
Many discussions arise
Over Hapsburg and Tudor and Dewey.
Peruvian kings and the Underwood tariff,
All are hopelessly tangled,
And all that we gain from the lesson
Is that somebody must be a "jackass!"
This is the class-room of Johnnie's,
And loud rings the bell on Queen's College
Forth again out rush the students,
And thus it goes on here forever.

Student—Has a dog an accurate conception of the passage of time?

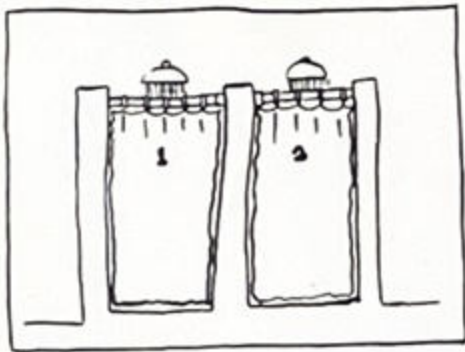

Professor—Of course not!

Student—How do you account for the dog-watch?

Two—What is a referee?

Bits—One who penalizes Rutgers fifteen yards for holding.

No. 1—Don't you like Blank's bowlegs?

No. 2—Yes; they give him an arch look.

Prof.—Can you give me an example of the pack instinct in man?

Thoughtless—Yes; poker.

Hey—What a queer rumbling inside me!

Eddie—Probably that truck you were eating at Louie's.

A Much-Needed Invention

The purpose of this invention is to insure prompt and unfailing attendance at chapel with the least possible sleep lost. The maker and the inventor guarantee that if the directions are strictly observed that there will be no more worry about chapel for anyone who uses this device.

To operate—The alarm clock (A) is set for the proper hour, about 8:05 A. M. Then let it alone; it works while you sleep. At the appointed hour the Big Ben goes off. This has, of course, no effect upon the sleeper, but serves to pull the string. This propels the roller-skate (B), bearing the candle, which passes under the cat's tail—the cat (D) is asleep upon the cat-shelf (E). The cat pulls the string, throwing the switch (F), and starting the electric fan (G). This causes the wind (H) to propel the yacht (I) and, by means of the punk (J), the cannon (K) is fired. This has been aimed in the proper manner since the night before and the projectile (L) completes the process.

Before and After The Morning Shave

BEFORE the razor touches your face, the beard must be prepared with the aid of a shaving soap. The ideal shaving soap should produce an abundant lather, slow to dry, non-irritating, hair-softening, skin-soothing, speedy in its action, antiseptic and absolutely pure and clean. Such a soap is

Johnson's Shaving Cream Soap

AFTER the shave sprinkle some of JOHNSON'S BABY AND TOILET POWDER on the hand or a soft cloth and rub on the face.

The delightful after-feel of the skin will be a revelation—no smarting, no roughness, no chafing—just the cool, refreshing, soothing comfort of a perfect shave.

IT TAKES 400,000 CARS to carry American Fertilizers to our Farmers and Planters every season. Forty per cent. of this stuff is useless Filler which requires 160,000 cars! Why not insist on having less filler and higher grades with the active Nitrogen as and save on your freight bills?

NITRATE OF SODA

The crop producing capacity of high grade fertilizers with less filler would mean a much greater outbound tonnage for railroads and greater purchasing power for farmers, so that railroads and everybody would be benefited by less useless filler.

Larger food crops will also thus be grown and increased prosperity will result all around.

The school is under the management of Rutgers College—a guarantee of thorough college preparation.

It is the most moderate in its charges of all the high grade preparatory schools, because it can use much of the elegant equipment of Rutgers College without the cost of duplication.

Every boy receives personal individual attention.

The four dormitories are new, beautifully situated, safe from fire, and models of comfort.

The athletics are well-managed and coached, so that the teams have been successful in hard schedules.
