History of the Class of 1937

THE four years of residence here "on the Banks" that faced our class when it entered stretched out then to an almost infinite length. Today, as we were about to be graduated, they telescope miraculously into a few highlighted hours. So it is fitting that we try to single out some of the incidents of these four years and fix them herein so that in future years, when the pressure of added time will have compressed our college years almost out of existence, we may refresh our minds and live again some of our brighter moments here.

Strangely enough it is not the lessons of the class or the field, nor even the disillusionment common to all that we remember best. Rather it is apt to be some evening with the gang down at the C. T., Norm's, O'Rourke's, or some of the other places where even as a freshman we congregated to learn some of the things that college does not teach, yet included among the experiences of every man who has ever really gone to college. For the most part these incidents, light, serio-comic, amorous, some with their tragic side, must remain off the record, to be produced for reiteration and embellishment only at those future reunions of the "old gang" toward which every senior looks forward the moment he ceases to be a senior.

Yet as a class we have some traditions of which we were the last exponents. Who will ever forget the frosh pee-rade, when 400 doughty freshmen straightened their backs, defied their tormenters, and marched into town despite the frenzied appeals of cheerleaders and Scarlet Key? Who will forget the traffic tie-up, the scared policemen, the barred windows, the ceremony at the cannon upon the return to the campus? And wasn't it the same year when a goodly number of us accompanied the team to Lafayette and brought most of their field back with us in pieces of varying size. And who will forget the chapel address, supposedly of rebuke, which ended up with the remark that if help would have been needed, it might have been volunteered.

That glorious revolution had its boomerang effect, though, the following year, when another unsubdued class turned on the twenty or so sophomores who came out for the pee-rade and asserted their rights in no uncertain terms—to such good effect that “Rags” Coan, if you will remember, begged off on the grounds of being a football player! But alas for their originality, no triumphal march into town marked their accession to power. So we still have something on them.

As juniors we grew more sedate, but it was justly fitting that our class should mark the return of big name bands to the campus at large by bringing Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra here for our class dance and Hal Kemp for the Military.

And now as Seniors we are still busily engaged in adding to that store of tradition to which we have contributed so generously. Senior Week, under the direction of burly, good-natured Mike Bullard, promises to become something of a classic for get-togethers, with plans for a class golf tournament, a field day, and wonder of wonders, a whole day at the shore at some private club, with the Senior Ball taking place on our return that night.

Before we close, there are names we should remember. Our athletes, Jefferds, Pringle, Klinsman, Tentschert, Allen, Phe Smith, who closed a four year campaign by winning an IC₄A championship for Rutgers in the indoor two-mile, Bender, Faulkner, and that group of marvelous basketball players who again made history with their lone defeat by a one point margin: Lepine, Lins, Jerabeck, Pennington—all merit our applause.

Among the twenty-four men elected to Phi Beta Kappa we find three Upson scholars and four who have combined scholarship with athletic achievements, Klinsman, Gaskill, Kammerman, and Pucciani comprising the unusually versatile quartet.

Moe Cornin putting out a liberally illustrated Targum, Atsie Kammerman maintaining a highly interesting publication, and Jack Williamson incorporating into his book improvements all who read herein may note, all made literary contributions of note. And even the Freshman Handbook gives promise of becoming more than the trite repetition of previous generations, with a new constitution being set up by the Council of three undergraduate editors and three members of the administration.

No class history would be complete without a reference to the help the Bureau of Personnel and Placement has offered the members of our class. Mr. Heyd's department has done much to make the terrors of graduation less for many of us, and we were indeed fortunate in our opportunities.

And now, all too soon, our reminiscences must end. Much has been omitted, much cannot be told, but each in the secret repository of his mind will carry away with him precious memories of his four years here, memories which we cannot augment, memories with which you must fill in the outline offered here.

Liberal Arts

Barnegat, N. J.

Presenting Ad, a member of that rare and envied clan which successfully merges a program of social accomplishments with an ability to crack the books wide open, and pulls a completely satisfying college career out of the hat as a result. All he has to do now is to keep the pace he has set.

ARTHUR LAWRENCE ABRAMS

Liberal Arts

204 South Fourth Avenue, Highland Park, N. J.

Why "Larry" came to the Banks we don't know, but he seems to have garnered all that is worth while. He leaves us a gay philosopher with a keen zest for life. His enthusiasm and willingness to help have gathered him a host of friends who heartily wish him the success they know is a foregone conclusion.

SAMUEL ALEXIONOK

Liberal Arts

60 Augusta Street, South River, N. J.

Here is one of the busiest of Rutgers' men. Besides holding a job with Dupont and keeping up to date in political activity, Sam managed to come to classes often enough to graduate. His cheerful disposition has made him many friends on the campus. His only regret is that he failed to convince Prof. George to join the true party.

Junior-Varsity Football (2); Spanish Club (1, 2).

WILLARD GOODWIN ALLEN

Delta Upsilon Liberal Arts
2121 Westbury Court, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Small in stature but large in accomplishment, accurately describes the man who has enamored himself to the campus and who has perpetuated his name in the track annals of Rutgers. An ebullient enthusiasm insured his success, whether it was managing the cross-country team, running for Mr. Wefers, or running across town.

SAMUEL GEORGE ANDERSON

Liberal Arts
Pine Bush, N. Y.

A collegiate failure! No varsity letter, no fraternity affiliation, no social distinction! But much too interesting a student to disregard. A man who delights in Bach, Beethoven, drama, symphony concerts, Ray Bolger, the Russian Ballet, and Cab Calloway's Hide Ho. A surprising combination for a ministerial student! A collegiate failure—perhaps, but who could have more extensive avocations combined with such an intensive vocation.

RICHARD MATHEW ANDRESEN

Liberal Arts
77 Park Avenue, Maplewood, N. J.

The complexities of life presented no problems to our "problem child." His nature was a happy mixture; phlegmatic, fantastic, lackadaisical. When his "Bohemian" vagaries led to their inevitable conclusions we could only marvel at his stoical resignation. Intellectual capacity can overcome the exigencies of the moment; therefore, with no apprehension we watch our Phis venture forth—to stoop and conquer.

Amusing Freshman belligerence was later harnessed into admirable determination in the case of "The Chief." His life here at Rutgers was not marked by an obsession for pure scholastic honor so much as it was by a determination to achieve a well-balanced existence. That he attained his ideal is evidenced by his abundance of close friends and scholastic success.

Baseball Manager (1, 2); Honor School (1); Liberal Club (3, 4).

EDWARD JOSEPH BANAS

Scarlet Barb

Liberal Arts

115 Locust Avenue, Wallington, N. J.

"Time marches on." In the words of our song, Ed, the verdant Freshman, the gay Sophomore, the happy Junior, and the blase Senior, typifies the well-rounded Rutgers man. A good scholar and a congenial companion, he won the respect of his classmates. After his four successful years on the "Banks" we say with all sincerity, "Well done, Ed."

MAX BARD

116 North Main Street, Hightstown, N. J.

Lawyer, politician, and teacher of history—Max Bard, the most argumentative fellow to come to Rutgers in many a day. Max's ironical humor, fireside philosophies, and love of office brought him to the fore each year. During his stay on "the Banks," Max made a place for himself that will not be filled for many a day.

GEORGE HAROLD BARNSTORF

Ivy Lodge

Engineering

145 Thirty-third Street, Union City, N. J.

Four years ago "Barney" decided to become an engineer or bust. He didn't bust. "Barney" came down as just another meek Freshman, but he soon found that walking is good exercise and that the atmosphere was more (?) conducive to study at the "Coop." He is supposed to reside at Ivy Lodge, but even the postman believes he lives across town.

R. F. D. No. 5, Middlebush, N. J.

"P. W." or "Basc" came to Rutgers with a definite desire to get an education and not to yield to the fairer sex. Aided by sundry activities which took up most of his spare time, "P. W." seemed destined to succeed in his design for living. As master of the Fijis, his field began to broaden to the "Coop," wherein resides his guiding star if he can choose from many.

COURTENAY MALCOLM BATCHELOR

Liberal Arts

26 South Fifth Street, Harrison, N. J.

Mal's chief interest during his four years at Rutgers has been French, yet a natural ability in the field of languages has won him quite a reputation as a linguist. Quiet, frank, and sincere, he deserves the admiration and respect his friends show him. Whatever he may do will be done well and with eclat.

SCARLET LETTER

BENJAMIN BECKER

Chemistry

79 Washington Street, South River, N. J.

Although "Beck's" first and greatest love is Chemistry, he is always at home at the red-hot political bull sessions held in the library and the cafeteria. Commuting for four years, "Beck" has been forced to limit his extra-curricular activities. However, he did find time to serve as playing-manager for his team in the intramural basketball games.

Phi Lambda Upsilon (5, 4); Commuters' Club (2).

JOHN ARTHUR BECKER

Pi Kappa Alpha

Liberal Arts

Newark, N. J.

John is an analyst of the first order. We will always remember his "What was wrong with ---?" or "Why did ---?" Perhaps his continual search for solutions to problems will hold him in good stead when he delves into future lines of endeavor. Whatever those lines of endeavor may be, we wish him luck as he makes good in life as he did in college.

Lacrosse (1).

JAMES DOUGLASS BECKWITH

Theta Chi

Liberal Arts

Lackawanna Avenue, West Paterson, N. J.

Good fellowship and cheerfulness are "Beck's" long suits, as his popularity on the campus and among his fraternity brothers attests. His has been a happy sojourn "On the Banks," enriching himself with knowledge, and enriching his many friends with his infectious light-heartedness. Such a combination of charm and wit deserves a place in the sun, so good luck, "Becky."

Wrestling Manager (1, 2, 5, 4); Targum (1, 5); Varsity Club (5, 4); Glee Club (4).

STEVEN I. BEDNARZ

Biology

60 Park Row, Wallington, N. J.

Formaldehyde, ether, and chloroform odors did not deter "Doc" Bednarz from studies and experiments in the Biology Building. Work—work—work. Worked at home, worked his way through college, worked in many outside activities, notably the Glee Club. Work did not make "Doc" a dull boy—N. J. C. played its part to make life "sweet" for him.

LAWRENCE STEVENS BEEKMAN, JR.

Liberal Arts

700 Coleman Place, Westfield, N. J.

"Larry" is a firm believer in the old adage, "Burning the midnight oil." Concentration on only one of his courses each year has aided the Public Service in meeting its dividends. But for all of his use of the artificial light, he has come through with flying colors and rosy cheeks. Such a happy outlook on life should win for him a high place in any field.

CUNO BENDER

Kappa Sigma

Physical Education

Woodbridge, N. J.

Cuno is a regular all-around good fellow. With his genial personality it isn't hard to become one of his many admirers. Many of the undergraduates have seen him taking the pig-skin around end for at least a few yards in the football games of his last three years. If he plays the game of life as he played football, he is sure to make many scores.

"Local boy makes good," that's just what Eddie's home town folks are saying. "Moon's" rapid progress on the 150-pound football team has shown us his natural ability and his stick-to-it-iveness. Success in later life is assured him by his level-headedness and winning ways. His happy smile is valued greatly by all who know him.

Despite John's being a commuter, and thereby having had two strikes on him, he has made himself outstanding among the engineers through his ability to make honor grades, witty remarks, and to wear a coat, vest, and tie consistently throughout his four years here. If John doesn't succeed, it will only be because he had to catch a train at the crucial moment.

RAYMOND J. BINKOWSKI
Chemistry

51 Charles Street, South River, N. J.

Every morning Ray can be seen coming to school bright and early from the wilds of South River. It is undoubtedly the odors and love of mixing chemicals over in the lab that draws this student to the Banks every day. The long hours in the labs pass much easier when Ray shows up, as his balance of play and work is such as to keep all in a pleasant mood.

ARTHUR CRAWFORD BOBB

Agriculture

512 Georgetown Road, Glassboro, N. J.

Who is this guy Bobb—from South Jersey and proud of it—just another farmer who got into pomology—a likeable lad with a great big smile—took his work with a stubborn and unbreakable will—Chevrolets—girls—lightweight football tackle—spare time, studies, work—some day will make two apples grow where one grew before?

The 1937

GEORGE EDWARD RANDALL
Kappa Sigma Biology
Bellair Avenue, Fair Lawn, N. J.

Four years have come and passed,
And George has his diploma.
He is a B.S., it says,
And that is no bologna.
Four long years of med school lie ahead,
Fraught with "ologies" and such;
And we do hope that four years hence
He doth his M.D. clutch.
Good luck! Godspeed! Rutgers son!
Maintain your winning touch!

Men of Stan's class will always associate with his name the fact that he has a distinguished appearance on the campus. Something on the line of a born military man. But, alas, that is not the case. Stan's pre-medical course, unfortunately, kept him from adding to his appearance by donning the captain's uniform.

Al started out as one of those supermen who would rather inhale the deadly fumes of the chem lab than the perfume of a fair damsel. But alas, in his Senior year this formerly industrious lad was more frequently seen on the N. J. C. campus than in the vicinity of Neilson Campus.

"Howie" came to the Banks in 1933 with the blase attitude only cultivated by most Rutgers men when they become college Seniors. With this definite advantage in his favor, "Snapper" has gone through the School of Chemistry with flying colors and has made his new acquaintances lasting friends by his warm personality.

There is nothing superficial about Jack in his make-up. He elected to do things. He made honorary societies and gathered a host of friends with his exuberant personality. Enough of the aesthete to enjoy the cultural side, enough of the athlete to stroke the varsity crew, he personifies the collegiate paragon.

Combining a desire for knowledge with a desire for the social pleasures Rutgers has to offer, "Bud" came across the Raritan to take his place among the hard-working pre-meds. Johnny concentrated his efforts on his studies and his fraternity, and hence does not call for the general recognition on the campus he deserves. He's likeable, conscientious, and clear-thinking. A leader in any group. Though hardly a woman-hater, his fraternity brothers sometimes provided too much competition. We are sure he's destined to go far.

When Wood came to Rutgers, Columbia lost and Rutgers gained a student of great merit. Of greater significance in his transfer to us was the acquisition of a worthwhile friend and inspiring contemporary. Wood's ready wit, rare experience, and good fellowship have especially endeared him to that fortunate inner circle of his friends. We wish him luck.

History of the Class of 1938

(A. PETER HAIRE, Historian)

AS THE CLASS OF 1938 approaches the completion of its junior year, it is fitting that we look back over the past year and inscribe those events that will ever characterize our class.

When we returned to school last September, we found many former members of the class conspicuous by their absence, but with the realization that such misfortunes will ever cut down the rolls of any class, we go ahead.

Taking up three phases of college life part by part—scholarship, extra-curricular activities, and social life—we see that in each the Junior Class is taking an active participation. As this history is being written, Phi Beta Kappa has tapped four juniors: Al Brown, Leonard Krieger, Harold Meyerson, and Arthur Ruby.

In discussing athletics, one must always start with football. On the varsity eleven the Junior Class was well represented. One of the junior players was outstanding in the courage he displayed on the field—none of us will ever forget the brilliant performance of Steve Stanowicz at Princeton. We remember that after one play Steve did not get up, for he had a broken leg that put him in the infirmary for the remainder of the season.

In Carl Miller and Joe Barile, the Class is represented on another great Hill machine. Although not regulars, they did add the spark that was needed when they were put in the game. The backbone of the swimming squad is made up of juniors, among whom are Jimmy Reilly, Ken MacWhinney, Ralph Faulkingham, and Ken Deith. Likewise on the water polo, boxing, cross-country, and wrestling teams there is a liberal sprinkling of juniors.

Spring sports have just gotten under way, and we find that lacrosse, baseball, and track include many members of this Class, chief among whom is George Hallock, who last year was the choice for All-American lacrosse goalie.

As the inter-class regatta is the only contest of its kind held in the Fall, it should not be overlooked in this history. Last November the junior shell defeated the freshman eight in the final race to win the regatta for the third consecutive year. When the SCARLET LETTER comes off the press, Rutgers will have completed its first major rowing schedule, and with Tony Savarese coxing the shell, the Junior Class is well represented.

Leaving athletics and swinging over to the major non-athletic activities on the campus, we find that Bob Kull and Don Saxton have been elected editor and business manager of The Targum, and that Jack Lawley and Ed Schneider are junior editors of this yearbook. Al Raffensperger is junior manager of the Glee Club, while he and Brad Brown are junior song leaders. Space does not permit us to list all those juniors participating in the debate program, but a few of the more prominent ones are Dick McCormick, Bob Rovner, Sam Schurr, and Art Silverman, with Jack Anderson and Al Espenship as junior managers.

The Scarlet Key Society continued the work of its predecessors in acting as the hosts of the University, and it tapped worthy members of the class of '39 to carry on where it had left off.

Tom MacMeekin and his committee gave to Rutgers in the Junior Prom the outstanding social event of the year. With "Music in the Morgan Manner" and an excellently decorated gym, there was nothing wanting in making this the most colorful affair of the year.

Continuing a precedent started by the Junior Class of last year, our class held a junior-faculty smoker at the Woodrow Wilson Hotel.

As we come to the end of our Junior Year we realize that there is only one more year to accomplish those things which we set out to do, one more year until we too have received our degrees and enter the ranks of Rutgers Alumni.

History of the Class of 1939

(RUSSELL B. FRIZZELL, Historian)

ALMOST TWO YEARS AGO the present sophomore class entered Rutgers, just as verdant as average freshmen. We then had high hopes which we proceeded to transform into realities by maintaining a scholastic average somewhat above that of the other classes directly preceding us. We returned to the campus last September with our fatality rate due to exams and other causes as low as possible, ready for another year "On the Banks." And now, as we approach the half way mark, we may well inspect our record and prepare ourselves to better it in the future.

Campus activities found willing volunteers in the class of '39. Both sport and non-athletic organizations found on their rolls a full quota of sophomores who were ready to serve. On the gridiron we were represented by Walt Bruyere, Ben Herr and Jack Casey along with several other sophomores all of whom expect to see much more action in their coming years in this activity. Rutgers' great basketball team of the past season had on the squad list Ernie Patten and George Buttle from the class of '39.

Swimming again proved itself the most reliable of sports on the Rutgers campus by beating all of its opponents except Yale. George Mosely, Bill Lakamp and John Winter, all of '39, contributed their talents to this successful campaign. Spring sports such as lacrosse, track, crew, baseball, tennis, and minor sports all counted as members of their squads many sophomores.

The other fields of activity, Targum, Glee Club, Debating, and Anthologist, were each supported by many individual participants from our ranks. They rank as equally important with athletic positions as their supporters enhance the reputation of '59 on the campus.

Late in the Spring of our freshman year we elected class officers. Randall Dodge was elected president while Walt Bruyere was chosen vice-president. These men immediately began to function in their offices and as a result the Sophomore Hop was outstanding among the social events of the year. Two orchestras were secured to play for the dance, Charlie Barnett and George Hall with the ever popular Dolly Dawn. Approximately six hundred couples attended the Hop, and the affair cleared the greatest profit of any dance in recent years.

Class spirit is one of the attributes of which the sophomores can be most proud. Wherever one looks on the campus he sees a white class hat being worn by a classmate. And not only that, but we have cooperated with each other for the best interests of the university.

And now we are in the middle of our college careers. Two years have passed; two years are ahead. We have thus far maintained an enviable reputation but there is still possibility for improvement. During our freshman year we distinguished ourselves; further on in the maturing process, in our sophomore year we maintained and even enhanced our standards. In the next two years we may either drop them or raise them still higher to establish new goals on the Rutgers campus. The decision and the responsibility rest with each member of the Class of 1959.

Freshman Class History

(WILLIAM J. SCHOOLEY, Historian)

THE CLASS of 1940 arrived "On the Banks" in September to start the first year of a four year stay that will become, for most of us, the most pleasant and profitable period in our life. Fresh from preparatory and high schools, our first days were spent in complete bewilderment, for as yet we had not oriented ourselves to college life.

Upon the return of the sophomores, we lowly freshmen were made aware of their presence when we were commanded to wear the traditional green tie and dink. Rivalry between the freshman and sophomore classes was slight as evidenced by the absence of the traditional Freshman Parade in which the sophomores are supposed to hold the upper hand.

During our first week we were fortunate to receive a series of orientation lectures given by the Psychology Department teaching us efficient methods of study in order that the mortality rate at mid-years for our class might be reduced.

By the first football game we had mastered the Rutgers songs and cheers and on that eventful day we joined the throng journeying to Nielson Field to watch the Scarlet open its gridiron campaign with a victory. The fact that the rest of the season was not as successful did not matter, for we knew that win or lose our boys were carrying on the true Rutgers spirit. We came to the realization that victory was not the only goal to strive for, and in spite of defeat we felt secure in the knowledge that every man was doing his best.

The class of 1940 showed its initiative and spirit by turning out in large numbers for all campus activities, and we are proud to acknowledge those men who received their numerals and also those who did not, but who nevertheless had a bolstering effect on their team-mates.

This year we were fortunate in having one of the finest freshman football teams ever to represent Rutgers. Having been led by such men as Lou Otterbien, Bill Tranavitch, Captain Doug Hodgkiss and many others, we may look forward to a sharp upward turn in Scarlet football fortunes. Similarly witnessed by the class of 1940 and the rest of the student body was probably the finest basketball team that Frank Hill has turned out in his many years of coaching "On the Banks." In the traditional inter-class regatta the freshmen defeated their closest rivals, the sophomores, in the first race, but later lost to the Juniors.

We did not confine our efforts wholly to athletic endeavor, however, as we obtained positions on the Targum, in the Glee Club, and in the Scarlet Rifles.

Just as we were accustoming ourselves to routine college life we were surprised at the interest shown in us by many upperclassmen who entertained us in their respective fraternity houses. After two weeks of such entertainment some of us found ourselves with bids which resulted in our spending the Thanksgiving vacation trying to decide whether to go to one house or another, realizing that our decision might effect our whole college life.

The only social event in which the class as a whole participated was the reception and dance that President and Mrs. Clothier gave to the Freshman Class of Rutgers and New Jersey College for Women. This event proved to be an outstanding success and was instrumental in bringing the two colleges closer together as evidenced by the frequent use of the "little red handbook" for telephone numbers.

The advent of mid-years together with its worry and woe was soon upon us; however, the class of 1940 weathered the storm very successfully, and the majority of us returned for the second semester. We feel certain that the members of various athletic teams, class officers, and all members of other extra-curricular activities will return next year to continue the brilliant record they have thus far initiated.

In closing, it can be said that the class of 1940 has successfully started on its journey through Rutgers, and it has started to build an enviable record of which we may well be proud. The future is before us, beckoning on to better and more prosperous years of college life, let us then look to it secure with the knowledge that we have laid the foundation of self-assuredness that we hope will carry us through not only our remaining years of college life, but also in our graduate years away from "the Banks."

"THEY put out everything they had, they went down to defeat, and then they came up with their chins out and a smile on their faces."

In those words Head Coach J. Wilder Tasker summarized the 1936 varsity football campaign which saw the Scarlet win one game, tie one, and lose six for the most disappointing season in ten years. It was by far the poorest record turned in by a Scarlet-clad team since Tasker came to the Banks six years ago.

But behind the poor record lies a long, disheartening story of defeated hopes and upset plans. Lack of manpower, injuries and a heartbreaking schedule all combined to knock the Scarlet on its back and then kick them when they were down.

Rutgers wasn't well fortified with first class gridders at the outset but what few they did have were either driven to the sidelines by injuries or were so weakened by being forced to play 60 minutes a game through a gruelling schedule that the team never really got started. In addition several promising sophomore performers who were being counted upon fell out of the good graces of the faculty and were never available.

The only bright spot in an otherwise dark season was the defensive strength and fighting spirit shown by the team against the worst kind of odds. Yale and Princeton, two of the best teams in the East, couldn't score touchdowns on the ground against the Scarlet and had to resort to passes and field goals to defeat the Taskermen.

Offensively was where the Scarlet was weakest, scoring only three touchdowns all season. A new system, designed to take advantage of the strengths while minimizing the weaknesses of a tiny squad, was destined for severe criticism when injuries to Bob Metzler, Steve Stanowicz and Jerry Jefferds took three of the key men in the offensive plans.

RUTGERS 15, MARIETTA 0

Quick to capitalize on the breaks of the game, Rutgers scored once in the second and fourth quarters to open its 1936 season with a 15 to 0 win over Marietta—the only victory it was to score all season.

A blocked kick and an intercepted pass provided the Scarlet with both its scoring opportunities. The distinction of scoring the first and one of three touchdowns of the year fell to Al Lundwall, blonde senior center, who collaborated with George Van Der Noot in blocking a Marietta punt and then falling on the loose ball in the end zone to send Rutgers off to a 6 to 0 lead. That was all the scoring for the remainder of the first half, and as the game went into its late stages the lone touchdown appeared to be the only score of the day.

Midway in the final period, however, the Marietta eleven, anxious to even the count, began to throw passes all over Neilson Field. One of these heaves, a long pass thrown from deep in the visitors' own territory, was gathered in by Cuno Bender, Rutgers halfback, on the Scarlet's 45-yard line. With the aid of excellent blocking by Paul Harvey, playing his first varsity game, the speedy Bender raced 55 yards down the sidelines to score. Art Perry's place-kick which split the uprights square on his try for the extra point ended the scoring for the day.

Aside from the two scoring opportunities offered, the Scarlet eleven was unable to show any consistent offensive strength against the Pioneers. Just when the team would begin to click, one of the numerous penalties dealt out to the Taskermen would check their advance. Only on one other occasion was the Scarlet able to carry the ball inside the opponents' 20-yard line and then a fumble stopped the advance 12 yards from the goal.

RUTGERS 0, PRINCETON 20

The annual Princeton game, played at Tiger-town, proved disastrous to the Scarlet in more ways than one. Not only did Rutgers receive its annual trouncing at the hands of the Orange and Black—this time to the tune of 20 to 0—but the team also lost the services of the only two fullbacks on the squad, the 220-pound Steve Stanowicz and the veteran Jerry Jefferds. The former was carried from the field midway in the first period with a broken leg and the latter came out of the game with a broken finger which kept him out of uniform until the last game of the season.

It was the fighting, stubborn defense of the Scarlet which stopped the vaunted Princeton attack from running up a bigger score. Against the powerful and much-heralded running attack of the Tigers, the forward wall of the Scarlet was particularly outstanding. Twice after they had worked the ball into scoring position, Princeton found the Rutgers line impregnable and was forced to fall back on field goals to score. Both of the field goals were scored from outside the 35-yard line and were the handiwork of Ken Sandbach and Tom Mountain. After the game, Fritz Crisler, Princeton coach, singled out Tony Ferrara and George Van Der Noot for special praise. The latter was later placed on Crisler's all-opponent eleven.

The two Princeton touchdowns came as a result of breaks of the game which the fighting spirit of Van Der Noot, Ferrara, "Rags" Coan, Walter Bruyere, and Hilly Simpkins, all of whom played the full 60 minutes, could not stop. The expected rout of the Rutgers forces failed to materialize but so did the Rutgers offense. The Scarlet lost nine more yards during the game than they gained.

RUTGERS 0, SPRINGFIELD 6

Nearly 500 homecoming alumni watched the Scarlet absorb its second defeat of the season the following Saturday, this time at the hands of Springfield and by a 6 to 0 count. It was the first victory ever scored by the Maroon and White over Rutgers, but it was well-earned.

Playing on a field that was a virtual sea of mud, the White Indians crossed the goal line midway in the second period when Captain Huston of the invaders shook himself loose, took a short pass from Ralph Plumb and raced 10 yards to cross the final white stripe without a hand being laid upon him. Previous to the touchdown play, the visitors came into possession of the ball on the 26-yard line as the result of a Scarlet fumble. Two short thrusts at the line failed to produce a gain before the scoring pass clicked on third down.

At no other time throughout the course of the game was Springfield able to penetrate beyond the 50-yard line of the Taskermen. Most of the time they were playing strictly a defensive game and keeping the Scarlet back on its heels with Huston's long, low punts.

The failure of the Rutgers attack to gain any ground when once within scoring range cost the Scarlet the game, as the home team piled up 14 first downs to 2 for the invaders and outrushed them from scrimmage by a wide margin. Poor blocking by the ends and backs was the chief cause of the attack bogging down.

The one bright spot in the afternoon's proceedings was the form displayed by Al Lundwall, ace pivot man who was converted into a fullback to plug the gap left vacant after the Princeton contest. Al lacked experience as a ball carrier but he performed creditably.

RUTGERS 0, YALE 28

The hard luck jinx that seemed to hound the fullback position on the Rutgers team last fall caught up with the Scarlet squad again when the Taskermen travelled to New Haven to renew gridiron relations with Yale after a lapse of 47 years. Rutgers had never beaten a Yale eleven and this year proved no exception for the Light Blue tossed passes all over the place to submerge the visitors 28 to 0. A double blow was dealt the team when Art Perry received a concussion of the brain when he was knocked out in the first quarter as he was performing in the line-bucking role.

The game turned out to be a one-man show with Laughing Larry Kelley providing the fireworks. Four times before Kelley entered the game, Rutgers had stopped the Yale running attack cold inside the 20-yard line, but once the irrepressible All-American end was inserted the Eli started to go places. On the first play Kelley outraced the Rutgers secondary to snare a pass and put the ball in scoring position. Then two plays later he stepped into the end part of the Scarlet's performance. Several times the Taskermen's forward wall broke through the Yale line to smother the ball carrier for huge losses. Ferrara, Van Der Noot, Harvey and Renshaw were particularly outstanding. The Scarlet showed little or nothing on the offense, however, and never threatened the Yale goal.

RUTGERS 0, LEHIGH 19

The next week Rutgers travelled to Bethlehem and were shorn of their Middle Three title by a strong and resourceful Lehigh eleven which staged a display of power in the last two quarters to overwhelm the Scarlet 19 to 0. It was the first win for the Engineers over Rutgers in seven years.

A quartet of fine Lehigh backs, operating behind a hard bitten line, tore the Scarlet forward wall to shreds in the closing stages after being fought to a standstill in the first two quarters and thrilled a houseparty crowd of 6,000 with the resourceful play.

"Pile Driver" Lou Pennauchi, perhaps the outstanding back on the Brown and White squad, was the chief thorn in the side of the Scarlet all afternoon as he passed, blocked and ran his way to glory. He was hit hard all afternoon but was driving just as hard when he left the game as on the initial kickoff.

For Rutgers the play of the secondary was zone, pulled a pass out of thin air and put the Bulldogs out in front.

Kelley proved beyond all doubt that he is just as good an offensive end as he was cracked up to be. All through the game he was on the receiving end of passes and many of his catches were of the most sensational variety. On the defense, however, he either wasn't exerting himself or he was noticeably weak.

The Rutgers defense was again the standout best as the backfield made nearly all the tackles. Art Perry, Wally Pringle and Tony Naporano each played a full 60 minutes and were in the game figuratively as well as literally for every second. Tony Ferrara was again the outstanding linesman, playing a brilliant offensive game and leading the interference on most occasions.

Lack of consistency was the brief weakness of the offense. Plays which clicked one time flopped when used again. Pass defense was alternately brilliant and erratic. Line play was at times very strong and again weak, especially when the men up front failed to smear the men ahead of the ball carrier in order to give the backers up a shot at the runner.

RUTGERS 0, BOSTON UNIVERSITY 7

Rutgers' performance against Boston University when it returned to Neilson Field the next week was a marked improvement, but the Scarlet ran into a quirk in the rulebook and dropped its fifth straight decision, this time 6 to 0.

With the score tied at 0-0 in the final quarter, B. U. was hammering at the middle of the Rutgers line unmercifully. Over guard, inside tackle and through center, it seemed that nothing could stop the blue-shirted boys from Beantown. In truth, nothing could—nothing but a fresh center and guard to replace Dick Renshaw and Tony Ferrara who had been bearing the brunt of the crushing Boston drives.

On the sidelines were a fresh guard and center waiting for a time to be called so that they could go in. Rutgers couldn't call for time out because they had already exhausted their quota and another would have inflicted a five-yard penalty which at that point would have been fatal. The only thing to do was to wait for an incompleated pass, a Boston substitution, a referee's time out, anything to give the replacements a chance to go in as fresh replacements for the plucky linemen already out on their feet from continually smashing down the tides of interference protecting the hard-running, blue-clad backs.

Boston, just as cognizant of the situation as were the men on the Rutgers bench, ran off their plays rapidly, almost feverishly, in their race against time and substitution. So Renshaw and Ferrara were forced to fight their losing battle without replacement, and in a few plays Boston had scored the only touchdown of the afternoon.

RUTGERS 0, N. Y. U. 46

For the second straight year Rutgers trekked over to New York to meet their old nemesis, N. Y. U., on the gridiron, and for the second straight year the Violent Violets tossed passes far, wide and handsome, turned the game into a rout and sent the Taskemen scurrying back to New Brunswick with their tails between their legs. This year the score was 46 to 0, a slight improvement over last season's 48 to 0 margin.

The Polo Grounds fiasco had its bright side, however, in the offensive exhibition given by the Scarlet. Running and passing games both stood out as the best of the season but the pass defense was woefully lacking and the Violets were quick to sense it. Despite plenty of tough breaks, Rutgers kept N. Y. U. on its toes for the better part of three quarters.

The game opened with Al Lundwall's 20-yard dash through the Violet line and only alert work by the safety man prevented a touchdown. After that Rutgers threatened time and again, usually following brilliant work by Lundwall, but never could quite hit the jack pot. Three dropped touchdown passes added to the heartbreak, two of the tosses in particular being labelled as sure six pointers.

Rutgers gained more ground in this game than it had done previously all season and most of it was picked up by Lundwall who had a fine day. The blonde senior, filling the full-back post, gave a fine exhibition despite his greenness as a ball carrier and seemed unusually adept at picking out holes. A great deal of his fine showing, however, was due to offensive blocking, lacking up to this date, which suddenly blossomed out in full force.

Besides Lundwall, Naporano, Perry, Harvey, Pringle and Renshaw were the stars for Rutgers with Bernie Bloom and Ed Williams for N. Y. U.

RUTGERS 7, OHIO WESLEYAN 7

It wasn't until the last game of the season that Rutgers scored its third touchdown of the year and incidentally snapped its losing streak which by this time had reached six game proportions. It required another team from Ohio to give the Scarlet a chance to score again, the last touchdown manufacturing being done against Marietta in the season's opener.

After watching Rutgers defeat Marietta, tie Ohio Wesleyan and in between drop six straight contests to eastern teams one press box wit called upon to remark, "They ought to move Rutgers, bag and baggage, out to Ohio. Then they might be champs or something."

Aside from the obvious witticisms which the game provoked, it also produced some high calibre football. Rutgers played some of its best football of the season, both offensively and defensively, and as a result the game was an interesting one to watch.

The Battling Bishops from across the Alleghenies were first to score, and as they held the lead with the seconds ticking by, it appeared as if Rutgers was headed for another setback. But a couple of the Rutgers ball carriers—Art Perry and Freddy Manfredi in particular—had different ideas on that matter.

Starting at midfield the Scarlet, with Manfredi and Perry alternating carrying the ball, drove unmercifully to the 5-yard line where the attack stalled momentarily. After three futile thrusts at the line, however, Manfredi spun around end, eluded all outstretched arms, and scored standing up, and Vive Les Rutgers Sons was heard once more floating across the Raritan. Something rather rare last fall.

BY the margin of a single field goal, Rutgers' lightweight football heroes fell short of retaining their thrice-won Intercollegiate League championship in the course of the highly successful season of 1956. When Yale was able to outscore Harry J. Rockafeller's team, 5 to 0, on Armistice Day, the Blue registered the first defeat in history of a Rutgers 150-pound team and kept Rutgers from clinching the third and decisive leg of the George Foster Sanford Trophy.

"Rocky" had to start almost at scratch to build up his 1956 grid machine, for he had lost 13 of the 15 lettermen of the previous squad. Add to this the fact that every game on the schedule was played away from home, and the record of four wins in five starts will be seen as testimony of the accomplishment of a superhuman task by the veteran mentor.

Only Elmer Klinsman, clever quarterback, and "Jumping Joe" Barile, fleet halfback, were carried over from the 1955 team into Coach Rockafeller's new backfield. But soon little Al Fusco, who had starred at halfback two years previously, appeared on the scene to supply Rocky with another important cog in his secondary. Dick Chartrand and Dick Cole developed into able fullbacks, Leo Bernstein and Tom Finnie into halves; and before the season was well under way Sophomore Bud Shaw had proven himself a field general capable of replacing Klinsman.

The forward wall was Coach Rockafeller's chief worry as he lined his men up a month before the first game. Not a single letter winner was on hand, and none appeared until Ted Rastall, all-American center in 1954, returned late in the season.

The line that bore the brunt of the enemy attacks throughout the schedule consisted of Al Rubin and Bob Cook, ends; Art Bobb and Dick Steadman, tackles; Tom Reichelderfer and Fred Siscoe, guards, and Vaughn Cary, center. Dave Hamblin and Will Van Nostrand put in plenty of heavy work at guard, however, as Tom Doyle and George Hall at tackle.

Opening the season auspiciously, Rocky's Scarlet lightweights gave Villanova its annual licking, 35 to 6. Chartrand made the first score of the year late in the second period. The Rutgers machine hit its stride after the intermission, and Finnie and Fusco each scored twice.

Rocky's boys were all through making high scores after the first game, however, for real competition then came along, starting with Penn. The Quakers were outclassed, but the final score was only 15 to 6. Shaw won his first real fame as he recovered his own blocked kick in the second period and raced 20 yards through a bewildered Quaker secondary to a touchdown. Led by Fusco and Barile, the Scarlet steamrolled to the five-yard line later on and Finnie scored the other six-pointer.

Coach Rockafeller next took his charges to Lafayette, and they chalked up a 7 to 2 victory there. The game was "the hardest Rutgers had ever played," Rocky said afterwards. Barile was the hero of the day, for the speedy little halfback ran, dodged, and straight-armed 72 yards for the only touchdown. But Shaw judiciously gave the Marquis their score on the last play of the game when he touched the ball down in his own end zone for a safety.

That Yale game at Paterson was one never-to-be-forgotten. The Rutgers Club of Passaic sponsored the tilt and had 10,000 fans in Hinchliffe Stadium at game time. Rutgers had the better of the going throughout the first half, and Yale took the aggressive in the second half, but with three minutes to go the score was still 0-0. Three major penalties for holding had thwarted Rutgers' best scoring attempts.

At the three-minutes-to-go point, Yale had the ball on the Rutgers 9. A third-string sophomore named Dave Boies went into the Bulldog backfield on the fourth down and kicked the pigskin squarely between the uprights. Rutgers' 25-game winning streak was abruptly ended, Rutgers was deposed as league champions, and Rutgers would have to "wait till next year" to win permanent possession of the Sanford Trophy.

On Thanksgiving Day Rocky's lightweights, relieved of the tension of protecting a four-year undefeated record, closed the season by conquering Princeton, 7 to 2. Rubin recovered a blocked Rutgers punt in the end zone for a safety. Soon after, Klinsman gained 16 yards from midfield, Barile made 22 yards in three downs, and then Klinsman dashed 12 yards for the winning touchdown.

THE 1937 edition of Rutgers varsity basketball team definitely stamped itself as the greatest quintet ever to represent the Scarlet by riding roughshod through a 15-game schedule and leaving a string of six shattered records lying in its wake.

Only twice during the arduous campaign did the high-scoring Rutgers machine stall. Thirteen times the Scarlet walked off the floor with a victory tucked in its hip pocket, to give Frank Hill's charges a won and lost percentage of .867 for the season.

As if that was not enough, four regulars from the team and one substitute took advantage of rainy weather on the southern baseball trip to trim a clever little Lynchburg College team from the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, 41 to 35, in a tense extra period struggle.

The only defeats came at the hands of N. Y. U., long a Scarlet nemesis, by the slim margin of one point, and Temple. The Temple game was not originally included on the schedule but was arranged as a post-season battle for the benefit of crew. On the credit side of the ledger the Scarlet boasts of two wins over Princeton, Lafayette and Lehigh, single triumphs over strong Fordham and Springfield quintets, and one-sided victories over Montclair and Trenton Teachers, Williams, Tufts, and Delaware.

Coach Hill found he was blessed with lots of seasoned material when he came to build his 1937 quintet. There was a letter winner on hand for every position except center. Bus Lepine and Jack Jerabeck, the high scoring forwards, already had two years of varsity competition under their belts, as did Roy Lins, ever dependable guard. In addition, Hill had Frank "Beanie" Pennington and Carl "Ace" Miller on hand, both of whom had put a year of regular playing behind them. Center was obviously the only spot where there was any cause for worry and if they could scrape up a couple of top-flight reserves most experts believed the Scarlet was in for a banner year.

A tall, lanky sophomore, the 6-foot-6-inch George Buttle, quickly stepped in to fill the vacancy in the center circle. Not only did he plug the gap but he gave the best exhibition of center play that Scarlet fans have seen in many a year. Green and inexperienced at the beginning of the season, he developed with almost unbelievable strides during the season until he was one of the most vital cogs in the whole machine at the end of the campaign. He controlled the center tap in every game, scored his share of the points and played a bang up game underneath the basket in addition to being a bearcat on defense.

Although it appeared at the beginning of the season the team might be hampered by a lack of capable reserves, Hill unearthed a quartet of understudies for his regulars in the persons of Joe Barile, Walt Campbell, Morton Rochelle and Boris Schwartz, all of whom gained valuable experience by playing on the first jayvee basketball team in Rutgers history, which was organized this year with a schedule of its own.

With Buttle controlling the tap, Lepine and Jerabeck carrying the scoring burden on plays set up by Lins in the pivot circle, and Pennington and Miller doing yeoman work on defense, the Scarlet quintet embarked upon a campaign that left half a dozen records shattered by the wayside. Chief among the records was the won-and-lost percentage of .867. This was 54 percentage points better than the mark hung up by the 1935 five, the best previous mark.

Other records to fall included:

The team scoring mark of 686 points, also established in 1935. This year's quintet tallied 746 points.

The record of averaging 42.9 points per game, also set up in 1935. This year's aggregation averaged slightly better than 49.7 points per contest, the record for greatest number of points scored in one game. The old standard was established in 1935 when Rutgers ran wild to roll up 69 counters against Delaware. This year the Scarlet buried Trenton Teachers under a deluge of field goals and triumphed, 91 to 35.

It also marked the first time that a Rutgers quintet has won every game played away from home.

One individual mark went by the boards when Bus Lepine dropped in 82 field goals and 15 fouls for a grand total of 176 points. This erased his old mark, created in 1936 when he tallied 60 field goals and 24 fouls for 144 points.

Lepine's scoring efforts enabled him to pace his mates in this department of the game for the third straight season. Lins, for the second straight year, was second in individual scoring with 148 markers. Other scoring records include: Jerabeck 144, Buttle 112, Pennington 105, Miller 51 and Schwartz 11.

THE 1957 swimming season was one of the most successful in the twenty-two years of the water sport at Rutgers. It was not quite up to the mark of last season, for the Scarlet team lost its Eastern Collegiate Association championship, but Coach Jim Reilly's splashers came through with only one defeat—at the hands of Yale—for the second successive year.

The skillful mentor of the Rutgers swimmers, in his twenty-second year of coaching "On the Banks," saw the fondest dream of all coaches come true when he lined up his men at the beginning of the season. Every naiad who had won a letter on the powerful team of the previous season was on hand, and several promising sophomores were waiting for their first varsity assignments.

With prospects as bright as they could be, the Scarlet outfit swung into action. But at the very start it hit into unexpected trouble when Columbia put up such a tough battle that the outcome of the first meet depended upon the final relay.

Stan Rose started off the season in fine style with a double win—the only one he registered during the year—taking both sprints. Co-Captain Fritz Faulkner showed the rare diving form that was to carry him through the dual meet season undefeated, and Co-Captain Doane McCarthy won the 220. Ralph Faulkingham, Bill Lakamp, Ken MacWhinney, and Rose teamed up to take the relay that gave Rutgers the victory, and to start a relay-winning habit which was not broken all season.

That 400-yard free style relay team, changed in personnel from time to time so that eight men in all saw action on it, did not lose a single dual encounter, and it swept to first place in the E. C. S. A. meet.

Next Fordham came to the Rutgers pool prepared to take a licking, and the Rams were not disappointed. The Scarlet captured four first places, seven seconds, three thirds, and the relay to win by 52 to 19. Al Timko started a five-meet winning streak as he won the breaststroke number, and Sophomore Lakamp won his initial first place for Rutgers as he swam the 50-yard free style in 24.8.

Coach Reilly's mermen again failed to measure up to the tremendously powerful Yale team, and the Blue added the 157th victory to its long string by beating Rutgers, 45 to 52, at New Haven. Faulkner won a gratifying victory over Endweiss, Yale's champion, from the high board, and Timko took the only other Scarlet first place.

As if to compensate for the loss to Yale, the Rutgers swimmers sank the next three opponents in turn with ease. Within a period of seven days, they went to Philadelphia and swamped Penn., 49 to 26, then, back home, beat Lehigh by the season's highest score, 62 to 13, and submerged N. Y. U., 48 to 21.

In these three meets Rutgers won every relay—medley and free style—and in only three instances did Rutgers men fail to win points by placing first, second, or third in individual races. Coach Reilly's team was proving that it had a fine balance of power as well as a few exceptionally brilliant stars.

The Scarlet mermen next showed Old Nassau's strong swimmers that they could conquer them even in their own Brokaw Pool in Princeton. Rutgers trailed as the last event came up, but the dependable relay quartet of Leon Star, Lakamp, MacWhinney, and Reilly sped to victory over the Tigers and won the meet for Old Queen's, 38 to 37. Rose won the 50 and Faulkner upset champion Cranston in the dive for the only Rutgers first places, but Coach Reilly's men took a bunch of seconds and thirds to clinch the meet.

The final meet of the season, against Navy at Annapolis, turned out to be a walk-away for Rutgers, for even with Jimmy Reilly in the infirmary the Scarlet team swept seven of the nine events and won by 50 to 25.

In the E. C. S. A. championships at Lancaster, Pa., Franklin and Marshall pulled a surprise upset of the Rutgers titleholders, piling up two and one-half points more than Rutgers' total of 35. Al Timko retained his breaststroke title by lowering his own meet record for the 200-yard distance to 2:52. Faulkner was outpointed in the dive by McQuillan of Pitt, and Rutgers lost out in the sprints, but the relay quartet of Lakamp, Rose, MacWhinney, and Reilly captured first in the final event.

For the second successive season, big and burly Stan Rose was the most valuable swimmer to Rutgers as far as point-scoring was concerned. Close behind Rose, who earned a fraction less than 50 points in the eight dual meets, was McCarthy; then came Timko, Faulkner, Lakamp, MacWhinney, and Simpson, in order. The first four mermen mentioned accounted for 25 of the 51 first places won by the Scarlet throughout the season.

FROM the standpoint of a won and lost average Coach J. Wilder Tasker's 1956 baseball team turned in a fairly successful season and in doing so gave Scarlet diamond fans many last-minute thrills.

With victories over Montclair Teachers, Quantico Marines, Boston College, Hampden-Sydney, Maryland, and Dickinson as well as two cherished triumphs over Princeton, the Scarlet nine wound up its campaign with eight wins and as many losses, one game ending in a tie.

The spearhead of the Rutgers attack was Morris Grossman, one of the best shortstops Rutgers has ever produced. Grossman clouted the ball at a .569 clip for the season as well as leading the team in fielding with a mark of .944. On the basis of his play with the Scarlet nine, he was signed by Elmira in the New York-Pennsylvania League upon graduation and soon made good in a big way.

Only four members of the squad besides Grossman batted over the .500 mark and only two of them were regulars. Cuno Bender, left fielder, first baseman and chief relief pitcher, clouted the apple for a .357 average, followed by Tom Markantes with .322. Carl Miller, who only appeared in half the games in the pitching box and the outfield, registered a .375 average. Dick Steadman also finished in the charm circle in the same manner.

Most of the pitching was done by Miller and Roy Lins, although Steadman and Bus Lepine took occasional turns on the mound. Rolly Girard and Moose Laurans divided the first base duties, Wally Pringle guarded the keystone sack and Tom Rooney took care of third base. Grossman was a fixture at short.

In the outfield the Scarlet nine was never assured of the same starting trio for Miller and Lins divided their time between the garden and the pitcher's box. Lepine held down the left field berth, while Bender and Markantes alternated in right.

After a triumph over Montclair in the first game, Coach Tasker took his team south on the first southern invasion by a Scarlet nine in over a decade. Games with Maryland, Hampden-Sydney and William and Mary were rained out before Duke gave the Scarlet a 6 to 0 setback in a game which saw Tom Rooney collect the only hit of the afternoon for the Scarlet. North Carolina State handed the Taskermen their second defeat the next day, scoring 4 to 2, although they collected only four hits from the deliveries of Roy Lins. The only victory of the trip was hung up on the last day, the Scarlet toppling Quantico Marines, 5 to 1.

A week later the Scarlet returned to its home diamond to upset a strong Boston College nine, 10 to 2, and then dropped a 12 to 8 decision to N. Y. U. Fordham topped the Taskermen, 17 to 12, in a slugging bee before a ninth inning rally enabled the locals to post their fourth victory of the season in the Lehigh game. A tie with Lafayette followed.

After defeating Hampden-Sydney and bowing to Duke again, the Scarlet displayed its best form of the season in knocking off Princeton twice in one week. Then after dropping a return game with N. Y. U., Rutgers ran out its season in line form by outslugging Dickinson and Maryland. The Dickinson game was marked by Rutgers jumping on Pete Sivess, now with the Philadelphia team in the National League, for enough runs to win handily.

NEWLY acquired riches in the form of a glistening eight-oared shell and eight new rowing machines failed to bring much success to the Scarlet crew, for the oarsmen posted only one triumph in the face of two defeats.

Coach Ned Ten Eyck's oarsmen did attain some fruits of victory, however, when they defeated Manhattan, Marietta, and Pennsylvania's third varsity to retain the Harry "Dad" Vail Trophy won by Rutgers last year.

The initial test of the season matched the Queensmen with the Princeton third Varsity and despite a valiant homestretch drive by the Scarlet, victory went to the smooth-rowing Tigers. Two lengths separated the opposing eights at the finish line and the time caused Coach Ten Eyck to make a few changes in the starting line-up. Several replacements were made but speed was still lacking. The old boating roster was reinstated and the second race loomed on the horizon.

Yale's third and fourth varsities were host to the Scarlet on the wind-swept Housatonic, but they treated them ungraciously when they forced the Rutgers eight to cross the finish line in the backwash of the Bulldog third crew. With an eye to time, Rutgers was getting worse instead of better, but the smoother rowing and improved stroke of the Queensmen gave Coach Ten Eyck cause for enjoyment and hopes for success in the final test for the Vail Trophy. These hopes were well-founded, and the trophy rests in the Scarlet showcase for the second successive year.

The 1937 campaign will see the institution of a new regime when the reins of coaching will leave the capable guiding hands of Ten Eyck and be placed in the care of Charles P. Logg, former varsity and junior varsity mentor at Princeton and assistant coach at Washington.

Coach Logg will use the long stroke which has enjoyed such astounding success at Washington and other western schools. This innovation will require much diligent and painstaking work but once mastered, according to Logg, the results speak for themselves.

So, when fall rolls around, the new rowing machines will slide back and forth to the rhythm of a new stroke, the new shell will be manned by several new and willing men and the new coaching launch will make its way along the Raritan carrying a new coach. Perhaps all this is indicative of a new era at Rutgers in this comparatively new sport of five years' standing, a new attempt to regain the prestige of last year's undefeated record. Hope runs high in the hearts of Rutgers rooters for the success of the Scarlet sweepswingers.

THE 1956 edition which Coach Fred Fitch turned out on the Rutgers lacrosse field deserved a better won-and-lost record than the four victories, three losses, two ties which it chalked up. Its ten members came within two goals of upsetting the nation's strongest college team, Maryland, and tied and outplayed the All-American team which was made up of the cream of the country. Two of their number—Frank Palcanis and George Hallock—were named All-Americans, while one other—Captain Danny Van Mater—had earned that honor the year previous.

The Fitchmen started into their season like a house afire, ripping through the first three opponents with ease. An Alumni team, studded with six former All-Americans, was the first victim, bowing, 14 to 6. From the time Van Mater scored the first goal of the season until the final whistle the "old grads" were badly outclassed as Frank Palcanis and Dick Chartrand each pumped three goals into the nets.

Driving into their first intercollegiate game, the Scarlet ten submerged the C. C. N. Y. stickmen, 14 to 1, in the mud and water of Neilson Field. Eight men scored for Rutgers in the course of the route but the high point of the game was the brilliant play of Sophomore George Hallock, who came into the lime-light for the first time. From then until the close of the season Hallock stamped himself as the greatest goalie in Rutgers history.

The Stevens lacrosse outfit was not much more successful against Fitch's high-geared team. The visitors scored first but the threat turned out to be a flash in the pan, for Rutgers ran roughshod to a 15 to 5 triumph. Palcanis tallied five times, Duke Maddox three times and Chartrand and Bob Metzler each twice.

Army turned out to be the first team that was able to slow Rutgers up. Before 2,500 Prep School Week-end fans the two teams battled furiously to a 7 to 7 draw and, consequently, failed to settle the question of northern college lacrosse supremacy. In a ten-minute overtime period, Tommy Truxton of Army slipped a goal past Hallock, and Palcanis immediately retaliated by bouncing a long shot into the Soldiers' net with but three minutes to play. That ended the scoring, however, even though Elmer Klinsman and Art Perry of Rutgers each spent a minute in the penalty box before the thriller was ended. Hallock continued his superb play in this game with 25 clean saves in front of the nets.

Following the tie by Army Rutgers bogged down and its three defeats came in a row.

First, Johns Hopkins' great Blue Jay outfit staved off a Rutgers rally on their home field and won, 12 to 7. The great "Doc" Dukeheart was the main reason for the Scarlet defeat when he came out on top in a brilliant individual battle with Duke Maddox, outscoring the latter, six goals to three.

Then Princeton, host to the Fitchmen on Poe Field, won by 11 to 6. The traditional rivals fought on even terms until the final period when Princeton pushed ahead, 9 to 5. The Scarlet staged a spirited rally led by Ridge Moon, Maddox and Klinsman, but two goals in the last few seconds by Sandy Ormond, half-pint Tiger attack man, put the game on ice.

The one-point defeat suffered at the hands of Maryland's omnipotent stickwielders provided one of the most thrilling of the home contests. Breaking a halftime 5 to 5 deadlock, the Old Liners netted four tallies in the third period and Rutgers never quite caught up although they tried hard. Three Rutgers men stood head and shoulders above the rest in this fray. Knocked unconscious in the third frame, Palcanis returned in the fourth to stage a one-man scoring spree which netted two unassisted goals. Hallock turned in another sensational performance, making 27 saves in the Rutgers net while the Maryland man made but six. "Iron Mike" Bullard rose to his best game of the year on the defense.

ONE of the strongest and best-balanced squads to represent Rutgers on the track in recent years compiled an enviable record last season, as the Scarlet retained the Middle Atlantic States Collegiate A. A. Championship and the Middle Three title which it has held for the past four years. Only once was the Scarlet defeated in dual meet competition, losing to a powerful N. Y. U. team, while winning three dual meets.

Paced by Fritz Tentschert, stellar weight man, who was individual high scorer for the season with 38 points, and Danny and Phe Smith in the distance runs and Buddy Allen in the sprints, the Wefermen opened the cinderpath campaign and started a successful defense of their Middle Three title on April 18th by defeating a strong Lafayette aggregation, 64½ to 60½.

Buddy Allen continued where he had left off the season before in dominating the dash events by scoring a double for the Scarlet, winning the 100 and 220-yard dashes. Danny Smith, one of the best middle distance runners to race on the Banks in recent years, also romped home the victor in two events, winning the mile run and also the 880, in which he was the only Rutgers starter.

Phe Smith made it a clean sweep for the Wefermen in the distance runs by easily winning the two mile, while Ken Doty added five more points to the Scarlet score by winning the 120-yard high hurdles and Fritz Tentschert grabbed a first in the discus.

The Marquis of Lafayette were kept in the running all the way, largely through the individual brilliance of Alvin Bidwell, who scored two firsts and a second, winning the 220-yard low hurdles and the javelin and trailing Allen in the 100.

St. John's was the next victim of the strong Scarlet squad, losing to Rutgers in the first home meet of the year by a 91 1/5 to 55 2/5 score. Allen and Danny Smith again scored a double by winning the dashes and middle distances respectively. Phe Smith took the two mile run, Tentschert copped the discus and Ken Doty again came home first in the high hurdles.

On May 9th the Scarlet trackmen successfully completed the defense of their Middle Three crown when Lehigh was defeated, 85 to 41. The highlight of this meet was a new Rutgers record set by Phe Smith in the two mile run when the slim Scarlet speedster romped home an easy first in his specialty in the time of 9 minutes and 56 seconds. With any competition at all the youngest of the racing Smith brothers might easily have lowered this mark by ten seconds or more.

The only dual meet defeat suffered by the Wefermen came in the last scheduled meet of the season when a strong N. Y. U. squad won from the Scarlet by a 72 to 54 count. Buddy Allen, winning the short dash and placing second in the 220 and Phe and Danny Smith were the standouts for Rutgers in this meet.

In the Middle Atlantic States meet, in which the Scarlet retained the title for the fourth consecutive year, Phe Smith was beaten by an eyelash in the two mile by Frey of Franklin and Marshall, although individual championships were won by the freshman medley relay by virtue of a fine mile anchor leg by Sid Shapanka; Allen in the 100; Tentschert in the discus and another title was in Ken Doty's grasp when he tripped and fell on the last hurdle in the 120-yard high hurdles.

THE most disastrous season since the return of the sport to the athletic program was experienced by the Rutgers cross country team as the Scarlet harriers failed to win a single dual meet.

The one bright spot on the season's record was the individual performance of Phe Smith, who was undefeated in any of the meets throughout the campaign, leading all competitors across the finish line. In the I. C. 4-A Championships, the Scarlet captain finished a very creditable fourth among the best collegiate harriers of the country.

The hill-and-dalers opened their season on the 16th of October when they went down to Tigertown and were defeated by the Princeton team, 35 to 20. With the exception of Smith, the Scarlet harriers were far behind the Orange and Black representatives.

DESPITE a pair of setbacks which opened and closed the season, Rutgers water polo team managed to sandwich in a trio of victories, sufficient to tilt the scales in favor of the win column.

The Scarlet were not yet hitting on all cylinders as they took on their first opponent and this lack of coordination proved their downfall at the hands of the boys from the West Side YMCA. However, their second and remaining defeat came as a result of Navy's packing too much punch in their scoring combination and the Queensmen bowed again.

In the interim between these two defeats Rutgers perked up enough to deluge three other tank outfits by decisive counts. Led by Captain Perry Bascom and more than a little aided and abetted by the versatile Jimmy Reilly the 23rd Street YMCA was met and conquered along with Pennsylvania, which suffered a brace of reversals at the hands of the Scarlet water grapplers.

A HIGHLY successful season, if not from the standpoint of the record, from the viewpoint of the type of performance turned in by the ringmen was enjoyed by the Rutgers boxing team during the 1937 campaign. Three wins and two losses is the record that appears on the books but it does not do justice to the ringmen, for it does not tell of the fine battles waged by the Scarlet mittmen during the season.

In the first match of the year, the pupils of "Bud" Gorman laced the M. I. T. team by a 7 to 1 score, and this match was followed by a meet with the ringmen of the University of Maryland, long recognized as one of the outstanding boxing teams in the Southland. Although the Scarlet garnered only one decision and a draw, the battles put up by the Scarlet glove pushers was especially creditable. Every one of the bouts was close, so close that in many instances it was difficult to give the decision one way or the other.

In the third meet on the schedule the Rutgers squad took a close match from Springfield College, 4½ to 5½, although handicapped by the loss of Glenn Howatt, out of action because of a broken nose suffered in the Maryland tilt.

A heartbreaking 5 to 5 verdict was returned against the Scarlet in its match with the University of Pennsylvania, and in the final meet of the season Rutgers smashed out a 6½ to 1½ decision over Princeton to wind up a fine season.

The record is all the more remarkable when it is observed that Jess Elson and Jerry Jeffers, the outstanding boxers in college, were unable to perform this year, the former because of a broken wrist suffered in the Yale meet of a year previous did not heal properly and the latter because of a broken finger suffered during football. With every letterman returning next year the outlook for a successful season is very bright.

ONE of the most disastrous seasons since the sport was renewed at Rutgers a few years ago was experienced by the varsity wrestlers this past season when the Scarlet grapplers failed to win a single encounter, losing on five occasions.

Although the record for the 1937 season is dismal the wrestling situation is not entirely a dark one, for practically all the men who earned letters this past season will return next year. Exceptional promise was shown by two sophomore members of the squad, Captain Bob Steirli and Bob Syle. Steirli, who was the National Interscholastic 145-pound champion a few years ago and who wrestled this past season in the 155-pound class, shows signs of developing into one of the best grapplers ever to represent Rutgers. Syle, who this past campaign wrestled in the 165-pound class, also shows exceptional promise and it is expected that these two men will form a basis of a much stronger team next year.

AFTER dropping its first three matches of the season, a Rutgers net team that was composed of a few veterans and a number of first year men, hit its stride midway in the campaign and swept through the last five matches on the schedule to wind up the campaign with a record of five wins and three losses.

Led by Gil Smith and Joe Hauck in the singles, the Scarlet turned in its most notable performance in the last match of the year when a well-balanced Fordham outfit was defeated by a 5 to 4 count. Previous to this match, the Scarlet earned a split in the contests with the Middle Three opponents by decisively defeating Lafayette, 5 to 0, after dropping a 7 to 2 decision to a strong Lehigh team.

The highlight of the campaign was a trip to Schenectady where the Scarlet defeated Union, 7 to 2, and then stopped off on the return trip to take Stevens over by a like score.

BY defeating Drew 11½ to 5½ in the next to the last match of the year the Rutgers varsity fencing team snapped a two-year losing streak and definitely proved it was vastly superior to last year's squad of swordsmen.

Although the Scarlet's record of one victory and six defeats was not impressive, it appears in a better light when examined more closely. The competition the Scarlet was called upon to meet was all first class and four of the defeats were by two points or less. The Rutgers fencers looked especially strong in the matches with Penn and Brown and only once were they outclassed, that being against Princeton.

Aaron Goldman, Hal Elrick, and Charles Moog in the foils, George Kirsten and Akin Toffey in the epee and Al Goodman and Myles Geer in the sabre were the outstanding performers. A pair of excellent freshmen, namely, Ernie Baxter and Elmer Lerner, give much promise for next season.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

HARRY J. ROCKEFELLER
*Director of
Intramural Sports*

AFTER a four-year lapse Delta Kappa Epsilon climbed back atop the intramural athletic heap to gain possession of the Keller Point Trophy for 1935-1936 with a grand total of 58 points, a dozen and a half more than the second place Delta Phis.

But their reign is likely to be short lived, for halfway through the 1936-1937 campaign the Dekes were floundering badly in ninth place and trailing the leading Pi Kappa Alpha aggregation by 15 points.

In annexing their first leg of the Keller Trophy in May of 1936, the Dekes displayed well-rounded strength and scored in all of the six contested events. But first places in basketball and football and a second in swimming would have been enough to assure them the title. The nine points added for competing in cross country, track and softball were merely superfluous.

At the halfway mark of the 1935-1936 title race it was pretty evident the Dekes were bound to dethrone Delta Upsilon. At that time they were leading with 39 points, 20 more than the champions of the year before could muster. They didn't stop there, however, but kept on running up points in the final three events on the program while the D. U.'s faded badly and saw the Delts, Phi Gams, Theta Chis and Raritan Clubbers pass them in the stretch.

The ultimate champions definitely clinched the title during the swimming season by placing second to the Delta Phis. Winants Hall, the defending champions in this phase of intramural competition, and Theta Chi tied for third but only after a heated battle.

The individual swimming championships as usual produced some spirited competition. Ralph Faulkingham, representing Zeta Psi, and Bob McPherson, wearing the colors of Winants Hall, were the individual stars with two first places apiece. Faulkingham splashed his way through the water in 25.5 seconds to win the 50-yard freestyle title from Bob Thompson of Winants by five yards. The former chalked up his second win in the 50-yard backstroke event in 55 seconds flat. He failed in his attempt at a triple, however, for Thompson gained some measure of revenge, nipping him at the finish line of the 25-yard freestyle race.

McPherson turned in his best performance in the 50-yard breaststroke where he defeated Johnny Wyatt of the Zeta House in the smart time of 55.1 seconds. He also romped home first in the 75-yard individual medley race. Other individual winners were Tom Lees, Delta Kappa Epsilon, in the dive and the Deke relay team.

The soft ball title, premier event of the spring season, went for the second straight year to the Raritan Club nine which handed the second place Phi Epsilon Pi team a 9 to 2 pasting in the final, after both teams had captured their league titles. The Sams, the Betas, Kappa Sigs and Lambda Chis tied for third in soft ball by winning their leagues but failing to get anywhere in the play-offs.

The "black mark" on the intramural season was the annual track meet which ended in a disputed mixup which would have done the League of Nations credit to untangle. After the clouds had cleared away it was decided the Phi Gams had won the crown and the Alpha Kappa Pis had finished second with the Theta Chis third. The wrangle continued for nearly a week in the columns of The Targum but the decision stood. The outcome, however, was that new rules were drawn up to be followed in the future.

After the intramural campaign drew to a close, Bud Ross, the intramural manager, sat down and after a two-hour battle with copy pencils and reams of paper emerged with the following standing of the teams:

Delta Kappa Epsilon 58, Delta Phi 40,

Intramural Sports

Raritan Club 58, Phi Gamma Delta 55, Theta Chi 55, Delta Upsilon 28, Lambda Chi Alpha 28, Phi Epsilon Pi 28, Scarlet Aces 27, Kappa Sigma 25, Sigma Alpha Mu 25, Alpha Kappa Pi 21, Beta Theta Pi 20, Chi Phi 20, Winants Hall 20, Chi Psi 17, Alpha Sigma Rho 15, Pi Kappa Alpha 15, Ivy Lodge 15, Zeta Psi 15, Tau Kappa Epsilon 12, Hertzog Hall 9, Quad Club 6, Tau Delta Phi 6, Scarlet Scourges 5.

Probably the biggest upset of the 1956-1957 intramural season occurred in the opening event when the Hegeman Hall trio of cross country runners surprised everyone by romping home first, thus putting an end to years of domination of that event by the D. U. harriers. The Hegeman boys annexed the title by placing 8th, 13th and 18th for a low score of 15 points. Ollie Watson, sporting the colors of Hertzog Hall, crossed the finish line first, however, followed by Hartland Mershon, representing the Commuters' Club, Phillip Fellman of the Phi Eps, Mel Welitoff of Winants, and Johnny Cook of the Quad Club. The winning Hegeman combination included Grant Easton, Johnny Allen and Bob Grassmere.

Again in the intramural football playoffs the teams failed to run true to form with the result the dark horse Pi Kaps sneaked through to ring up its first championship in three years. Pre-season favorites, the D. U.'s and Theta Chis managed to win their league titles but found the going too tough in the playoffs.

Led by the freshman football flash, burly Bill Tranavitch, the Pi Kaps waded through a strenuous campaign in undefeated fashion to clearly earn the right to the crown. With the pass combination of Tranavitch and Bill Evans clicking nearly every time, and Tom Finnie and Dick Chartrand giving Tranavitch brilliant support in the backfield, the Pi Kaps eliminated the Chi Phis and the Phi Eps before knocking off the D. U.'s in the finals. The latter had previously topped the Theta Chis.

The final game was a thriller in any sense of the word. The D. U.'s scored first on a pass from Wally Pringle to Bob Gies, but the Pi Kaps came back to tie it up when Tranavitch tossed the pigskin to Finnie and the latter crossed the goal line unmolested. The D. U.'s again took the lead, however, when the pass combination of Pringle to Gies clicked once more. They held this lead until all but two minutes of the fourth quarter had ticked by.

Still fighting, the ultimate winners managed to shake Dick Chartrand loose long enough for Tranavitch to heave a 50-yard pass into his arms and he outraced Wally Pringle to the goal line, thus necessitating an extra period. In the overtime period both teams battled up and down the field until Evans intercepted a pass and ran it back 15 yards. That set the winners off. After Finnie had completed a short pass to Chartrand that was good for 10 yards, Finnie faded back on the last play of the game and heaved the pigskin into the waiting arms of Evans in the end zone and the Pi Kaps walked off the field with the championship in their hip pocket.

After the football season had drawn to a close, The Targum sports staff of Dave West, sports editor, and Jack Anderson and Johnny McDonald, his assistants, selected three all-intramural teams. The selections were as follows:

FIRST TEAM

Robert Gies, *Delta Upsilon*L. E.
 Tom Reichelderfer, *Alpha Kappa Pi*L. T.
 Willard Allen, *Delta Upsilon*C.
 Parker Worthington, *Delta Phi*R. T.

Bill Heim (Zeta Psi)	H. B.	Vince Shay (Kappa Sigma)
Stan Rose (Sigma Alpha Mu)	F. B.	Dick Chartrand (Pi Kappa Alpha)

The intramural season continued to run its unpredictable course as 27 teams battled it out for the basketball diadem. The underdogs, still in their heyday, upset the dope once more to culminate a topsy turvy campaign. A heavily favored Deke quintet, holding decisions over numerous high school teams in outside competition, waded through the early rounds in impressive fashion and few thought they could be stopped from walking off with the crown. This feeling grew when the Dekes thoroughly trounced a smooth passing Ford-Hertzog combine, 44 to 21, to enter the finals.

Further up College Avenue, however, a determined Kappa Sig five had ideas of its own on this question. Playing consistent but not flashy ball the Kappa Sigs marched into the finals by disposing of a fighting Theta Chi quintet, 27 to 21, after staving off a spirited last half rally which brought the Union Streeters from a deficit of 18 points to a point within striking distance just before the final whistle.

The final contest was a tooth-and-nail battle all the way with both teams taking turns at holding the lead. The Kappa Sigs were lucky enough to be in front when the final gun went off and consequently walked off the court with a surprise 25 to 16 triumph and the title.

The Kappa Sigs presented a defense which the high-scoring Dekes found difficulty in solving—the first they ran up against all season—and in addition had a pair of scoring aces who racked up 11 points between them. Arnie La Maestra swished the mesh three times to top the winners' scoring, with Al Erdman, lanky center and teammate, adding his bit of five counters. Don Corwin, flashy guard for the losers, eluded his man long enough to put seven points where they would do the most good.

The all-intramural basketball team, selected by The Targum at the close of the season, included:

Bill Reid (Delta Kappa Epsilon)	F.	Bob Simms (Theta Chi)	F.

EPSILON CHAPTER of Delta Phi was founded in the year 1845. A group of nineteen men organized the first fraternity at Rutgers under the leadership of William H. Ten Eyck, who had become acquainted with the ideals and purposes of Delta Phi from the mother chapter of the fraternity at Union College in Schenectady. The purposes of these men were to consolidate their interests and at the same time mutually benefit each other, to maintain high standards as students and as gentlemen, and to foster cordial and fraternal relations. Delegates from the already existent chapters at Union College, Brown University, New York University, and Columbia University initiated the Rutgers men into Delta Phi, after accepting their application.

During the first forty-two years of the fraternity's existence, the members held meetings in rooms secured here and there in the city. The first chapter house, located on Hamilton Street next to New Jersey Hall, was acquired in 1887. Until it was destroyed by fire in 1950, this became the living quarters and meeting place of the brothers. Several additions and alterations were made.

After the fire, a new and larger house was purchased instead of rebuilding on Hamilton Street. The new house was enlarged, made colonial in style, and adapted to the uses of a fraternity. It was the former residence of John T. Hill, President of the Ninth National Bank of New York, and later of James W. Johnson, President of the Johnson and Johnson Company.

The fraternity has always remained true to the principles set forth by its charter members. It has remained strictly a literary and social fraternity.

THE founding of the Delta Chapter of Zeta Psi forged the third link in the chain of the fraternity, coming a year and a half after the founding of the first chapter in 1846. At that time two literary societies controlled the campus and were in the midst of a life and death struggle with Delta Phi. As a result, the attitude toward Greek fraternities was not very enthusiastic and so Zeta Psi didn't blossom forth officially on the campus for another year.

Several Philocleans and Peithosophians were taken into the chapter at that time and by the fall of 1849 the chapter roll boasted about a dozen well-chosen men. In the next three years twenty-eight men were initiated.

The success of the Delta was so notable that it led to the setting up of six other chapters within the fraternity. Thus Delta's name "Mother of Chapters."

After surreptitious meetings in haylofts and back rooms, the chapter bought its first house, on the present site, in 1889, in order to "keep up with the Delts," who had preceded the Zetes in the matter of a house by two years. The present structure replaced it in 1925.

The period of the World War was a trying one for the Zetes. The following years were better and with the aid of illustrious alumni a large membership resulted. In 1950 the Delta supplied the ninth national president of the fraternity, and the members of the Delta note proudly that it possesses the longest unbroken history of any chapter in the fraternity.

THE Rutgers Chapter of Delta Upsilon was founded in 1858 as the first anti-secret society on the campus and received its charter in May of the following year. At the time of its union with the national group, there were only eight other colleges, all but one in New England, represented in the national fraternity. At the turn of the century, thirty-eight chapters in all parts of the country were on the national roll book, including McGill and Toronto Universities in Canada. At the present time, there are sixty-one chapters spread out over twenty-five states from coast to coast and in four Canadian provinces, thus giving the fraternity an international aspect.

The local society had no house on the campus for several years, as was the case with most of the Rutgers fraternities, but soon moved into the frame dwelling that stood between the library and the Engineering Building. In 1929, the new College Avenue home was finished, the members moved in, and the old house was torn down.

The Rutgers Chapter has contributed a number of famous men, among whom are: Harlan Besson '07, United States District Attorney; D. Frederick Burnett '01, State Commissioner of Alcoholic Beverages; Clarence E. Case '00, Justice of the Supreme Court of New Jersey; Valentine B. Havens '12, Rhodes Scholar and athlete, now a prominent lawyer; and F. Marmaduke Potter '09, Rhodes Scholar, now Treasurer and Assistant Secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Reformed Church of America.

IN 1844 an earnest group of young men at Yale gathered together in order to form a literary society. This society subsequently bore the name of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. After its inception at Yale the group thought that they would carry their good work to other colleges, and in 1861 founded a chapter at Rutgers.

The circumstances of the founding of the chapter do not differ materially from those of the founding of many other chapters of this fraternity. The Rutgers group met in a small room on Burnett Street. From there they moved to Hiram Street. Due to the increasing strength of the organization, they found quarters at 78 College Avenue, which provided ample room for their development. The present chapter house was erected in 1929, due to the work of the active chapter and the gracious gifts of the alumni.

The high ideals and traditions of the national organization have produced such outstanding citizens as President Theodore Roosevelt, Senator Albert J. Beveridge, Admiral Peary, Whitelaw Reid, Henry Cabot Lodge, and a host of others.

THE Delta Chapter of Chi Phi was granted a charter on the Rutgers campus on March 19, 1867, with seven undergraduates acting as the charter members of the newly established chapter.

For the past seventy years this chapter has maintained without abatement a healthy and prosperous existence. With 22 active brothers at the present time, the roll contains 487 members, of whom 9 are affiliates and 86 are deceased. While 77 saw service in the World War 12 had participated in military service previous to 1917; one lost his life in the last struggle.

"Pinehurst," the present chapter house of the Delta Chapter, was built in 1910 and has the distinction of being the first house on the Rutgers campus erected for the sole purpose of fraternity use. Rebuilt and modernized a few years ago, the ivy which remains on the walls was imported from the chapter at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, instigated by the brothers of the southern order of Chi Phi, who were then students at that institution.

Of the four original chapters in the Hobart Order of Chi Phi, the Delta Chapter is the only one which has survived. A banquet in celebration of the two thousandth meeting of this chapter was held in the spring of 1954.

Although this fraternity does not lean toward any particular type of student, the members are active in all campus activities.

BETA THETA PI is one of the oldest, largest most virile, and most highly esteemed of American college fraternities. It was the first national secret fraternity. The others, with the exception of a non-secret organization, were sectional in character. The fraternity is now represented by forty-two thousand members in all centers and corners of the United States and all parts of the world.

The present Beta Gamma chapter was originally the Alpha of Alpha Sigma Chi, an eastern fraternity of seven chapters. The chapter was formed secretly and slowly, the members being carefully questioned before actually invited to join. The meetings were first held in a room over a store downtown. In 1879 the midwestern Beta Theta Pi merged with Alpha Sigma Chi in what has since been known as the Alpha Sigma Chi Alliance.

Since 1879 the Beta Gamma of Beta Theta Pi has served a noble existence on the Rutgers Campus. The undergraduate members of the chapter have always been found in the athletics and other activities of the college. Much of Rutgers history relates their exploits. In alumni affairs the graduates continued to do their share and many also distinguished themselves in the state and the nation.

The chapter of the fraternity has always maintained the high principles of a united, mutual fellowship and a genuine application to scholarship.

ALPHA Rho of Chi Psi was founded in 1879. Its founders were men of high ideals, members of a local literary society called Alpha Theta, whose roster of fourteen men included eleven Phi Beta Kappas.

Chi Psi was the seventh fraternity to be founded at Rutgers, but it had the proud distinction of owning the first fraternity house in New Brunswick. The first lodge was located at the present headquarters and proved ideal for a fraternity house.

The war period was a time of despair for many of the brothers. Chi Psi suffered at this time but during the post-war period a definite effort was made to bring Alpha Rho up to its previous excellent state. Thanks to the brothers who were in college at that time and to the support given by the ever-zealous alumni, the lodge was put back on its feet.

In 1923 the "Rhoboat," the Alpha publication, first went to press, and from that time to the present has continued to be a marked success.

One year later ground was broken for a new lodge, and in the ensuing two years the work of collecting the funds and building the new home was consummated. In the spring of 1926 the actives moved into the present lodge.

The fiftieth anniversary of Alpha Rho of Chi Psi was marked by an inspiring reunion and banquet. Since that time eight more years have been added to the history of Alpha Rho; fifty-eight years of toil, sacrifice, ambitions, progress, and hopes for the future.

ON May 3, 1915, five men, Walter A. Couzzens, Frederick James Johnson, Thomas Vasser Morton, Homer Lotts Sheffe, and Joseph Kirk Folsom, were awarded a charter of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

The chapter established by this charter was inducted by 15 members from the Alpha Epsilon chapter of New York University and had as its first home a building at 17 Mine Street.

As the group expanded, more room was needed and the present chapter house was purchased by the alumni body.

With renewed vigor after the great war, Alpha Psi continued to grow. Since that time, it has never once faltered, always keeping its firm standing among the other groups on the campus and never once losing sight of the ideals and principles set before it in its charter.

Through its 24 years of existence on Rutgers campus, Alpha Psi has constantly remained true to its major purposes. The number of influential men graduated from its bosom are too numerous to name here. Suffice it to say that as the years pass Pi Kappa Alpha on the Rutgers campus will remain a strong rational group, recognized among its associates and ever honored by those bonded together within it.

In addition to representation in campus activities the chapter boasts a tri-annual publication, the "Alpha Psi News." An active Mother's Auxiliary functions, whose interest and aid have been extremely felt in the growth and prosperity of Pi Kappa Alpha.

PHI ZETA of Lambda Chi Alpha was founded at Rutgers University early in 1913 by four undergraduates who, when they had pledged a strong and loyal contingent, applied to the national fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, and were accepted.

The national society was established at Boston University in 1909, Phi Zeta being the ninth chapter to be added to the rolls.

At first the chapter meetings were held in a suite in Winants Hall. In 1914 a house on Mine Street was rented, and in 1915 the chapter moved into a house owned by the University at 502 George Street.

Phi Zeta purchased its first house in 1920 at 164 College Avenue, its present home. The membership continued to grow and in 1928 a three-story addition was added to the house, and the entire interior was remodeled.

In 1934 seven hundred gallons of gasoline were dumped into the fuel oil tank of the fraternity through a mistake in consignment, and shortly after midnight fumes began to seep through the sleeping house. Fortunately Phi Zeta has a dormitory system and all the men were safely three stories above the fumes, so a catastrophe of some sort or other was averted. Two men fought their way down through the awful murk and shut off the feed line before an explosion took place.

THE Rutgers Chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi began as a local fraternity under the name of Theta Phi. The organization was started in Winants Hall in 1914. Soon afterwards meetings were held in Ford Hall.

The group was soon reorganized as Lambda Chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi and received its charter in 1915. The first house was located at 44 College Avenue. As the fraternity grew in strength, the chapter was moved to what is now the Dutch Reformed Church House on the corner of College Avenue and Mine Street. Eight years ago the present edifice was constructed and has been the home of Phi Epsilon Pi ever since.

From the original nucleus of four men we have grown into a chapter that averages thirty active members each year. The fraternity has one or two outstanding men on the campus every year. Among the active men who have graduated as Lambda Fraters are Judge Rosen of Philadelphia, "Tex" Rosen, Dave Moscowitz, and Jack Grossman, all of whom excel in their various fields of endeavor. The chapter also claims title to an outstanding associate member, Abe Jelin, former Commissioner of Highways in New Jersey.

In view of this history and in consideration of these achievements, we, the present members of the Lambda chapter of Phi Epsilon Pi, feel that we have a tradition to uphold.

IN the troubled year of 1400 a group of students from the University of Bologna banded together for mutual protection against the wicked governor of the city, Balthasar Cossa. This society spread rapidly to other European universities, and its traditions and ritual descended through many of the noble families of the continent. The Kappa Sigma Fraternity of today is the direct descendant of this early brotherhood.

The present Kappa Sigma Fraternity was founded December 10, 1869, at the University of Virginia by five friends who, wishing to belong to the same fraternity, decided to found a new one. Two years later one of the brothers of this new fraternity, while traveling in Europe, came in contact with some of the few remaining members of this time-honored society from Bologna. These men wishing to perpetuate their order intrusted their ritual and traditions to this American with the understanding that they would be embodied in this newly founded fraternity. Thus it is that Kappa Sigma traces its history back some 557 years, and proudly claims relationship with those oppressed students of Bologna.

The growth of the fraternity was rapid and consistent so that at present there are 108 active chapters which are located in about half of the universities in the United States and Canada. This makes the fraternity second in size as far as numbers of chapters is concerned in America and first on the Rutgers campus.

RHO Sigma Zeta, the grandfather of Nu Beta Chapter of Phi Gamma Delta, had its first meeting in Winants Hall, Room 45, on October 11, 1909, under the leadership of two young men, Martin and Glanders, the latter serving as president and secretary.

The following year in December, the father of Nu Beta, the Scarlet Club, was formed. From its inception this club seems to have had but one objective, that of becoming a chapter of Phi Gamma Delta. The first home of the club was in the house on the corner of George Street and Seminary Place now occupied by the erstwhile president of Rutgers, Dr. William Demarest. During the years from 1910 to 1917 the original aim was kept in mind and every room in the house was decorated with signs of "Phi Gamma Delta or nothing." In keeping with ambitious idea, the Scarlet Club sought and soon gained a place in campus activities. Nothing was left to be accomplished except for the granting of a Charter by the National Convention of Phi Gamma Delta in 1917 upon the recommendation of many other fraternities on the campus at the same time. The installation of the chapter was delayed until April 6, 1918. In the next few years Nu Beta moved to its present address at 586 George Street on the corner of Bishop Place. Growth of the active membership necessitated an addition to the present house in 1950. The chapter has continued its growth and improvement, ever striving to keep and uphold the high ideals of Phi Gamma Delta.

I VY Lodge was founded in 1936 as a result of a merger of the Ivy Club, founded on this campus in 1913, and Tritelion Lodge, founded in 1925.

The members of the new fraternity comprised a well rounded group and the Lodge has already established its place on the campus.

The Alumni of the two former organizations responded wholeheartedly to the support of the Lodge and have contributed a great deal toward its success. Among the most prominent of that body is the well known orchestra leader, Ozzie Nelson, class of '27. Bryce MacDonald, who taught chemistry at Rutgers upon graduating, is now an executive of the Rutgers Alumni Association and President of the Interfraternity Council. John Kirkwood, a well known former lacrosse player when an undergraduate, is now president of the Board of Trustees of Ivy Lodge, and William Bohlke is an executive in the Radio Corporation of America.

The ideas of the founders of the two organizations were inculcated in the new fraternity, to foster scholarship, to encourage participation in extra-curricular activities, and to aid in the moral training of the members.

THE Raritan Club was organized as a result of a deep bond of friendship of a group living in the dormitories which grew during the course of three years' association. Sentiment among the members of the group crystallized one night when the group cooperated in driving away fraternity men intent upon paddling. In order that the ties of friendship might be drawn more closely together the men rented the house that is now occupied by Dr. Demarest and, with money raised by one of their number, set up living quarters.

Gradually the spirit of friendship and loyalty attracted others, and in 1926 the Board of Trustees of the College chartered the organization as a fraternity. This same bond of friendship has always existed among the men and, as a result, the Raritan Club has a well-knit, cohesive group of alumni who take an active interest in the undergraduate fraternity.

The house has grown during the past seven years and is proud of the fact that it is one of the two local fraternities on the campus. From the house on George Street in 1927 the fraternity moved to Mine Street and in 1930 the present home of the fraternity was occupied. At present there are seventeen men most of whom are actively engaged in extra-curricula activities. The ideals of the class of '25 are still uppermost in the minds of the men. Through periods of prosperity, as well as of adversity, the original idea of deep friendship and friendly "camaradie" still exists and it is this thought that the men carry with them both in the carefree days of undergraduate life and the more serious days after graduation.

TWELVE YEARS AGO a group of students living in close touch with each other in Hertzog Hall, and sensing a growing fellowship arising from their common interests, experiences and moral standards, decided to perpetuate these values by the formation of a new fraternity. In the meetings that followed they incorporated these values into the constitution of the Alpha Sigma Rho Fraternity.

During the autumn of 1894 the Rev. Paul Ziegler, a graduate of Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., noticing a deterioration in the spirit of true brotherhood had taken place in the Greek-letter societies in Trinity, proposed to his son, Carl, a member of the class of 1897, that he found a Greek-letter fraternity on a basis distinct from that of the existing societies. On June 4th, 1895, the first formal meeting of organization was held and Alpha Chi Rho was launched as a national fraternity.

In the spring of 1934 Alpha Sigma Rho decided to go national. After two years of investigation, it was decided to petition Alpha Chi Rho, whose landmarks were nearly synonymous with those of the local. The petition was accepted and in February, 1937, the Beta Phi Chapter of the Fraternity of Alpha Chi Rho was instituted to Rutgers campus.

We recognize our place is not at the top of the fraternities but we are near enough the period of our institution to realize the vigor of our fraternity. With this renewed spirit and enthusiasm we hope to climb to the top of the living groups by doing our share of making Rutgers the ideal college.

SINCE its inception as the Sigma Delta Chapter of the national Sigma Alpha Mu fraternity nine years ago, Sigma Alpha Mu has grown much.

Before going national, the chapter was known as the Sigma Delta Club and was located at 59 Mine Street. As years went on the fraternity grew, until 1932, the chapter moved to its present residence at 78 Easton Avenue.

Sigma Delta last year earned the Founders' Cup given to the best all-around fraternity of Sigma Alpha Mu's thirty-three chapters. The members of the house feel pleased with this achievement.

Although athletics have been very prominent in the fraternity's life, scholarship has not been neglected. It is significant that Sigma Alpha Mu ranks very high in scholarship.

Sigma Alpha Mu has entered enthusiastically into intermural sports. Members enjoy participating in intermural athletics.

An active group of alumni back the chapter. They add to our prestige and offer much help. Sigma Alpha Mu looks forward to maintaining its well balanced chapter and supporting Rutgers' activities as long as it shall exist.

TEN years ago a small nucleus of men gathered together through the efforts of John Mulhern '27, Charles Kieswetter '29 and Salvatore Salerno '29 and united in the bond of friendship of a new fraternity known as Phi Sigma Tau. A strong bond of friendship and mutual respect existing among the thirteen charter members aided in settling the important questions of organization.

A petition for recognition was presented to the Board of Trustees on January 14, 1927, and due largely to the hearty recommendation of Dean Frazer Metzger, Phi Sigma Tau was accorded the somewhat unusual distinction of having a charter granted in response to its first petition.

On December 27, 1929, permission to petition a national fraternity was granted by the proper authorities of the University. June 4, 5, and 6 of 1930 saw the installation of Phi Sigma Tau into the national ranks of Tau Kappa Epsilon as Alpha Eta Chapter.

THE chapter of Alpha Kappa Pi originated as Phi Lambda Sigma, a local fraternity at Rutgers. It was organized in 1926 by a group of men from the class of 1927 who sought to perpetuate the common bonds of friendship and scholastic interests which has held them together during their three years of college life. This group enlisted the aid of nine members of the class of '26 and three members of the class of '28. The Trustees of the University, influenced by the excellent record of the petitioners, granted them a charter in May of that year.

That summer a house on the southeast corner of Easton Avenue and Hamilton Street was leased for one year. Next in the minds of the members was the thought of purchasing a house for the fraternity, and the present location at 26 Union Street was obtained.

In the spring of 1929 the custom of having an annual alumni banquet was instituted. A total of thirty men attended this first banquet and did much in discussing the welfare and future of the chapter.

In the summer of the same year, the Collegiate Brotherhood, a local fraternity which had existed on this campus from 1895 to 1906, voted to affiliate with and be absorbed into Phi Lambda Sigma for membership in the Alpha Kappa Pi national fraternity was accepted, the Rho chapter was formally inducted into the rites and rituals of that organization.

THETA Chi, a national fraternity, was founded at Norwich University in 1856. The fraternity is composed of 50 chapters, of which Beta Delta was the fiftieth to receive a charter from the national fraternity. The Rutgers chapter, first organized as Theta Zeta Fraternity in 1917, was received into the national organization in May of 1952.

The local chapter has always advocated as its cardinal principal the fostering of scholarship and prides itself on the fact that fifteen of its members have been elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the last thirteen years.

In addition to its scholastic achievements, Beta Delta has carried out the objectives of the national organization in promoting the welfare of Rutgers and, consequently, its members have been active and distinguished themselves in all forms of campus activities.

A number of the members of Beta Delta Chapter have achieved distinction on the Rutgers campus among whom are A. Stuart Demarest '28, editor of publications, extension division; Ernest E. McMahon '30, alumni secretary; Ralph N. Campbell '31, assistant to Mr. McMahon; Harry Von Bulow '32, instructor in psychology; and Jack N. Wallace, assistant director of public relations.

TAU Gamma of Tau Delta Phi was introduced to the Rutgers Campus in 1921, when a group of students with the same interests at heart, founded the Evergreen Club. This body of men, although relatively small, made up in quality and activity what they lacked in size.

As this group grew in importance and strength it felt that expansion was in order. Accordingly, in 1928, it became the Eta Chapter of Omicron Alpha Tau. It, as did the Evergreen Club, produced men who have since proven their worth in the economic, social, political, scientific, and educational fields of endeavor.

Then, in June of 1954, the entire Omicron Alpha Tau Fraternity merged with the Tau Delta Phi Fraternity and the best features of both were combined. The Rutgers' chapter then became known as Tau Gamma of Tau Delta Phi.

Tau Delta Phi contributed new ideals and a new spirit. It is known in fraternity circles for its ideal administrative program, its selectiveness, and progressive, ever-expanding spirit; for even now, the need for expansion is felt and newer and larger quarters are in demand.

The Brotherhood formed here by the "Tau Delts" has become an integral part of Rutgers lore and tradition and as long as Rutgers exists shall this spirit of brotherhood continue to bind men together, with the strongest bonds that fraternities can produce.

The Rutgers Chapter of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers has done much this year toward furthering the interest of mechanical engineering students in actual technical problems. Prominent among its activities was the inauguration of a forum in which the students discussed many aspects of their side of the profession. The society also brought here as speakers several men from the engineering departments of large corporations.

In April, the convention of the eastern division of the society was held here under the auspices of the local chapter.

Philosophian is the oldest literary society on the campus. It is composed of men known for their interest in the thought of the day as expressed on the printed page. While the ideals of the society are many, the dominant one may be said to be the purposeful discussion of subjects as they are related to the current trends in arts, literature, and philosophy. Every attempt is made to keep the standards of this informal ventilation of live questions as high as possible because it is felt by Philosophian that its own official life reflects the cultural life of Rutgers campus in general.

The Rutgers Rowing Club was organized in 1935 by a group of men particularly concerned with fostering rowing as a sport at Rutgers. It is composed of men who have definitely evidenced an active interest in rowing, and the organization has attempted to awaken a like interest among the student body. The club provides a focal point whereby the "rowing-minded" undergraduates and alumni can get together and learn to know each other.

Rutgers Social Functions

THE Social season of 1956-57 will be marked for future generations of Rutgers students by at least two, and perhaps three innovations which bid fair to become permanent changes in the general program of festivities during the school year. The first of these was the attempt by the administration to set up a board of control to assign dates for all Rutgers and New Jersey College for Women events in such a fashion that the two colleges will not compete for attendance at any affair. Such events as the Sophomore Hop and Junior Promenade on both sides of town, the Christmas dances, Glee Club Dance and Prep School Week-end at the Coop, and the Interfraternity and Military Balls over here are assigned regular dates for the forthcoming year at the beginning of the semester. Then certain dates are set aside for house-parties on this campus and special dances at N. J. C.

The system promises to assist the social program by limiting the number of small dances, thus promoting better dances and better attendance, and by eliminating the cutthroat competition occurring when both colleges have a dance the same night.

The second innovation was the lifting of the responsibility for the financial success of a dance from the chairman of that dance, thus allowing him a greater degree of freedom in making up his budget. Designed to cut down the large profits recent dances had been making, it was unsuccessful in that dances this year showed larger profits than ever, successful in that it augurs bigger and better bands for future dances and smaller profits to be put in the class fund. The third item on the list concerns the successful staging of the second Annual Interfraternity Banquet.

JUNIOR PROMENADE

MORE than one thousand people met in a Japanese garden the night of the Junior Prom to dance to the music of Russ Morgan. The garden was located in the gymnasium, which had been magnificently transformed for the premier event of the social season. Encouraged by the largest decorations allotment in Prom history, the Sloer Company performed prodigies of magic.

The dance floor itself was lighted by a triple-tiered crystal chandelier, from which branched out yellow streamers, supporting Japanese lanterns and bird cages. The all-too-prominent railings of the balcony were effectively draped with valuable Japanese rugs, giving to each enclosed fraternity booth an air of comfort never before attained.

The pool itself was transformed into a Japanese garden, with colored spotlights playing color symphonies on the rippling waters, while a large green Buddha on the far side smiled an inscrutable blessing upon the dancing couples. He was housed in a pagoda stretching the entire length of the wall, with a range of mountains for a background, and wisteria trailing over the entrance. A yellow picket fence with intermittent arches separated the dancers from the garden proper.

For the first time since the senior class entered as undergraduates, favors were offered with the programs. The programs themselves, with black cutout composition covers outlining a Scotty dog on the red second page, were unusually effective, and a small cigarette lighter dangling by a colored cord provided a utilitarian as well as an extra decorative effect. Seventy gallons of punch were consumed by the thirsty dancers, with statistics on other refreshments unavailable.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Keller, Jr., and Professor and Mrs. Richard C. Reager acted as chaperons of the dance. Guests of the committee included President and Mrs. Robert C. Clothier, Dean and Mrs. Walter T. Marvin, Dean and Mrs. Parker H. Daggett, Acting Dean and Mrs. Frank G. Helyar, Dean Margaret T. Corwin and Dean Leah Boddie of the New Jersey College for Women, and Dean and Mrs. Fraser Metzger.

The dance was in charge of Thomas McMeekin, ably assisted by Clifford G. Lewis, David M. Hauben, Anthony J. Fama, Walter W. Colpitts, and Carlyle E. Miller. Although working on an unusually generous budget, the committee managed to eke out a profit of more than three hundred dollars.

The Saturday after the dance was featured by two successful sports events, a boxing meet with Springfield in which Rutgers managed to capture the majority of bouts, and a swimming meet with New York University in which we again emerged victorious. The twenty-one house-parties held at the various living groups were marked by one o'clock dancing for the first and last time of the year. Acting upon the request of Interfraternity Council, the Dean's advisory committee had sanctioned the continuance of house-parties until one o'clock, provided refreshments were served by the various houses at some time between twelve and one o'clock. This arrangement, so satisfactory to the various groups, and successfully tried during the Prom week-end, was later revoked when the New Brunswick City Council revived an ancient blue law requiring all dances to end promptly at twelve Saturday evening. At present dances may continue until one o'clock, with no dancing after twelve, which paradoxical situation represents the status of another innovation which might well have marked this social season for all future classes. But at least the extended house-parties, perhaps destined to become unique in Rutgers history made a fitting close to a dance that achieved a new high in entertainment.

FRESHMAN RECEPTION

CONTINUING the University policy of attempting to weld closer connections between the Men's and Women's colleges, President and Mrs. Robert C. Clothier, assisted by the Scarlet Key Society and the Student Relations Committee of the Women's League, presented the third annual Freshman reception at the Gymnasium early in the year.

Nearly six hundred freshmen from both colleges and a goodly number of Rutgers upper-classmen, who crashed to get a line on the new material for the year, attended the affair.

Various types of entertainment in the form of games and contests were offered in addition to dancing to the music of Jack Little and his orchestra.

The freshman reception was planned for the dual purpose of helping the new students to become accustomed to social life at college, and by introducing them to their classmates at the reception to break down the first barriers of loneliness so often erected by the incoming students, judging from the enthusiastic response of all classes, it is achieving its ends.

SCARLET KEY DANCE

SCARLET Key Society again had the honor of opening the social season at Rutgers with its fifth annual football dance, held the day of the Marietta game, October 3. Perc Arnsten, whose music at these affairs had become almost traditional, made his third straight appearance with his ten-piece broadcasting band.

Fraternity banners, a spotlight throwing its vari-colored beams over the dancers, a "spot" dance, and a door prize contributed to the enjoyment of the more than two hundred couples who attended the affair.

Members of both football teams were present as guests of the committee, which included William Walmsley, as chairman, and John Anderson as president of the society. The members of the Rutgers coaching staff and their wives attended as chaperones. As in past affairs, a substantial profit was realized which was set aside to meet the expenses of the society in entertaining visiting teams.

NEUTRAL COUNCIL DANCE

NEUTRAL Council being the successful bidder for the other Saturday night dance left open by the new committee on social affairs, it was under their auspices that the second football dance of the year was held in the gymnasium the night of the Boston University game. The members of the victorious B. U.

team were the guests of the committee.

For the first time in the memory of the present class, an all-girl orchestra offered the music. Fritzi Rich's fulsomely female contingent met with the approval of the large attendance, with the group's vocal numbers being particularly well-received. Fritzi's younger sister, Maxine, played the drums and rendered most of the choruses, while her conductor sister doubled in brass, offering clarinet and saxophone specialties. The gym itself had been decorated with fraternity banners, with booths being arranged along the walls of the gym.

Raymond Pontier '38 had charge of the affair, which realized a neat net profit of nearly $150. This marked the most successful dance yet staged by the neutral group, and provided them with a war chest for future development of the organization.

SOPHOMORE HOP

THE first formal dance of the year, the Sophomore Hop, was held December 4 in the gymnasium, with two well-known bands providing music for continuous dancing from 9 till 2 A. M. George Hall and Charlie Barnet, with their respective orchestras, alternated on the bandstand in the lavishly decorated gymnasium.

Officially entitled "Hotel Rutgers," the scene of the dance featured a terrace bordering the length of the pool with an aisle forming a secluded "Lovers' Lane," composed of shrubbery and potted plants, and separated from the pool by the inevitable white picket fence. The two bandstands were placed in the corners nearest the pool against effective backgrounds provided by orange and yellow drapes in a shell-like arrangement. Booths for the various fraternities were placed, as has become the custom, in the balcony, and were identified by decorative fraternity banners.

The begirdered roof of the gymnasium was hung with hundreds of brightly colored balloons which provided fairly effective camouflage as long as they were permitted to stay up there. However, souvenir hunters and others had begun to pull them down and carry them around long before one o'clock, the time which had been set for their official release. As a consequence, the sweet strains of the two orchestras were, during the last two hours of the dance, punctuated by the pops of bursting balloons and the squeals of affrighted or otherwise affected young ladies.

Two novelty dances were among the four extra dances added to the fourteen called for on the program. In one of these a spot previously marked on the floor entitled the couple nearest to it when the music stopped to the remission of their admittance fee, the probable assumption being that the female half of the couple would profit in the spending. In the other dance an anonymous couple was adjudged by acclamation the best pair of dancers on the floor.

George Hall interspersed his regular numbers with several novelties in which Dolly Dawn and Johnny McKeever carried the vocals. These were well-received by the more than 600 couples on the floor.

Barnet's swingy tunes were well-liked, especially his own interpolations upon the tenor saxophone, with which instrument he is reputedly well-nigh unbeatable. His vocalists included the "Modernaires," a sweet-singing quartet of nation-wide fame. As an extra added attraction, Welcome Lewis, featured songstress over many a commercial broadcast, presented several solos with accompaniment by Hall's orchestra.

One of the most unusual and most discussed features of the dance was the fact that it netted the committee headed by Walter Reeve Bruyere, III, almost $600 to turn over to the class treasury. The adverse criticism centered around the possibilities of having spent more money for the decorations or programs and thus make the dance more enjoyable, but when it was explained that the committee had worked under a liberal budget based upon previous affairs, campus comment turned to the ways and means of disposing of the surplus, and came forth with suggestions for free class hats and so forth. However, some of the funds were used for a class barbeque late in April, and the remainder will be used to further a class smoker next year or as an appropriation to some worthy University activity, probably crew.

Besides Bruyere, the committee included William Evans, Joseph Dorrington, Ernest Patten, Milton Kramer, Edward Benson, and Grover Coe.

Chaperons were Dean and Mrs. Parker H. Daggett and Dr. and Mrs. William H. Cole.

RUTGERS CONCERT SERIES

CONTINUING its long-standing tradition of bringing the best in music to the Rutgers campus, the Music Department, under the fine leadership of Professor Howard D. McKinney '15, again arranged a sterling program for music lovers.

Lawrence Tibbett, world-famous operatic, stage and screen singer, opened the series with a song recital featured by the performance of "The Bagpipe Man," composed by Professor McKinney, which he sang a second time in tribute to its composer, who, pink-cheeked and embarrassed but tremendously pleased, was forced to stand in response to the ovation its performance by the gracious star received. Other highlights of an interesting program were, "I've Got Plenty of Nuthin'," from "Porgy and Bess," and "Old Mother Hubbard," both offered as encores to the scheduled program. A capacity house of more than 3500 filled all the available seats and stood in the rear of the gym to hear the famous singer.

Equally well attended was the second of the series, a joint recital by Helen Jepson, billed as the leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, and Dalies Frantz, pianist. Included in Mr. Frantz's program were favorites by Liszt, Brahms and Bach, while Miss Jepson's renditions of the ever-popular "Tales from the Vienna Woods," was enthusiastically received.

The third concert offered a novelty in the form of the piano-playing duo of Bartlett and Robinson. Although a familiar form of entertainment to the more musically sophisticated, to the majority of the Rutgers attendance the concert was remarkable more for its novelty than for its entertainment—until they heard them. Then the couple won sustained and repeated applause for their marvelously precise and technically perfect rendition of pieces written or arranged for two pianos.

A world touring choir of approximately forty boys from Vienna, all between the ages of eight and twelve, was the attraction for the fourth concert of the season. Although at a slight disadvantage because the size of the gymnasium was a trifle too much for their amazingly well-trained but young voices, they literally brought down the house with an operetta in one act arranged to the music of the "Beautiful Blue Danube," by Johann Strauss. The fine natural histrionic ability, and fresh young voices of the players together with elaborately colorful costumes combined to offer an unforgettable pageant. A series of unaccompanied religious choruses, and selections from Schubert, Brahms and Humperdinck, along with two graciously rendered encores, rounded out the program.

Last on the program was the return engagement of the Boston Symphony, under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky. Probably the most successful of the concerts offered last year, their return was eagerly anticipated by all who recalled their marvelous rendition of Beethoven's "Eroica" Symphony, and the concert this season fulfilled all of the expectations of the capacity crowd.

INTERFRATERNITY BANQUET

SUCCESSING when attempts by the Senior Class to organize a class banquet had failed, Interfraternity Council staged its second annual banquet for fraternity men in Cooper Hall, New Jersey College for Women, early in March. Bucking an unfavorable reaction established when an overflow of last year's banquet resulted in little food and worse service, the committee under the able direction of Fred Luckenbach managed to obtain a turnout of almost five hundred men.

Featured by a prompt beginning, good food and plenty of it capably served by Cooper's charming waitresses, and two unusually interesting speakers in the persons of Cameron

King, NBC marine commentator and an international authority on things nautical, and Dean Dissler of Lafayette, the banquet was an unqualified success.

Dean Dissler pointed a humorously begun talk into a plea for the abolition of Hell week, inauguration of sound financial policies, and emphasis upon scholarship. Captain King's reminiscences of the sea, plentifully flavored by references to the Scots, of whose race he is, contained at least one remark worthy of remembrance when he said that the sailor who has a girl in every port is being rivaled by the modern college boy who has one on every davenport!

RUTGERS DRAMATICS

INSTEAD of the motto, "Ars Gratia Artis," we might use "Ars Gratia Rutgersis" for this article. Although as far as dramatics on its own campus is concerned, Rutgers has been dormant, the opportunities offered by Jane Inge's Little Theatre courses have been taken advantage of by a number of men who have joined the ags in their trek across town.

Last fall when the Dramatic Arts Department under Jane Inge gave Ibsen's "Doll House," William Schmidt '36 and Robert Kull '38 carried the leading roles. Later in the season Mrs. Inge presented a Broadway smash hit, "Merrily We Roll Along," which received general recognition as the best thing she has put on in the eleven years she has been superintending dramatics at the New Jersey College for Women. In this outstanding success were no fewer than fourteen "Men of Rutgers." Bob Kull and Jerry Baker, both '38, gave finished performances in the title roles. Larry Abrams, David Lilien, and Bill Hackett, all '37, took minor characterizations that contributed to the fine effect produced by the play. Two juniors, Cliff Lewis and Willis Myers, and six sophomores, Irving Cassell, Myles Geer, Dave Hellman, John Isenmann, Oscar Mazursky, and Eli Weisman, also had bits in the production, as did Ray Girard '36.

In the spring Mrs. Inge presented "Outward Bound," with practically all of the male roles being filled again by boys from this campus. Bill Schmidt, Ray Girard, Jerry Baker, and Willis Myers composed the group of Rutgers thespians participating in the final success of the season.

Despite the presence of this talent on the campus, the suggestion for a varsity show on this campus never got beyond the rumor stage and it seems as though we must wait many years for such an effort to be successfully staged.

BAND CONCERT AND DANCE

MORE than one thousand people attended the annual Spring Band Concert and Dance in the gymnasium, March 27. The concert was under the general direction of Charles W. Cook, bandmaster, but as has been the custom, student leaders directed portions of the concert.

Richard O. Smith '38, Jerome Levy and Frederick K. Sutphin, both '37, conducted three numbers each, with Mr. Cook taking the baton for the final three numbers. The hearty applause which greeted the direction of the several well-known works of the masters indicated that the band had surpassed even the high standard it has established over nearly a decade of such concerts.

At the conclusion of the concert several hours of dancing to the music of the Merry-men followed. A tidy profit resulting from the affair will be used by next year's organization toward the re-equipment and embellishment of the band.

WINTER SPORTS WEEK-END

THIS customary title for the annual Glee Club outing at Buck Hill Falls turned out to be something of a misnomer this year, for the several hundred students and faculty members of Rutgers and New Jersey College for Women who journeyed up to the Inn in the Poconos early Saturday afternoon, January 30, found nary snow there. Only the overcast skies gave promise of snow for Sunday and winter sports, as the guests spent Saturday in hikes to the Falls and horseback excursions over the various riding trails.

After dinner that night the Glee Club presented its annual concert in the auditorium. Dancing till midnight followed, when tails and veils were changed for breeches and ski suits and the group reassembled on the tennis courts for a hot dog roast and barbecue. Group singing around bonfires followed until the various groups began to wander back to their beds, back to beds, and just plain back.

Sunday broke over a slushy white world, the result of a snow in the early morning. Some hardy souls donned ski suits and wandered out to enjoy the meagre skiing facilities offered, but the majority stayed in bed till lunch, recuperating from the previous evening. The week-end officially disintegrated after lunch, with everyone rarin' to get back to work after their interesting week-end.

MILITARY AND SENIOR BALLS

AS this copy goes to press, both Wally Pringle and Jerry Jefferds are necessarily very indefinite about the exact nature of the dances they are respectively chairmanning. Wally reported that he is negotiating with several big "name" bands, including Eddy Duchin, Hal Kemp, Guy Lombardo, Benny Goodman, and Russ Morgan, so that we should be hearing one of these at the Military in May.

It was deviously brought to our attention that Ozzie Nelson, prize Rutgers alumnus refused a bid to play at the Ball—and incidentally, turned down beaucoup dollars—even though he was free for the date—because the Ball was "small stuff." If the report is true it sorta' makes a bum out of Hal Kemp, who played to a capacity audience at the affair last year.

At any rate, the dance will be brightened by the presence of three "honorary colonels" chosen by Scabbard and Blade from among the more pulchritudinous of the Coopsters in accordance with a custom inaugurated at last year's Ball. The decorations will feature some historical era, such as Colonial, Louis Quatorze, or perhaps, in harmony with many such schemes this year, the Coronation.

Jefferds could vouchsafe only the information that the Senior Ball will be as usual in the Woodrow Wilson Hotel, favors and food will probably be offered, and that a "full" evening will be had by all. (The quotations are mine own—again according to custom.)

Included on Pringle's Military Ball Committee are George D. McCarthy, Elmer W. Klinsman, John A. Gordon, Perry Bascomb, and Jerome J. Jefferds. The other members of Jefferds' Senior Ball Committee include Wally Pringle, John Gulick, Albert Lundwall, John Steele, and Granville Magee.
